

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

PREFACE

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY DUTIES AND FUNCTIONS

OF THE STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES

The State Board of Charities was established in 1867, and became a constitutional body January 1, 1895, under the provisions of article VIII of the Constitution of the State of New York, which was adopted in 1894. This article of the Constitution provides that the State Board of Charities shall visit and inspect all institutions, whether State, county, municipal, incorporated or unincorporated, which are of a charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory character, including institutions for epileptics and idiots, and all reformatories except those in which adult males convicted of felony shall be confined.

The Constitution also provides that the members of the Board shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate; that all the existing laws relating to the institutions above mentioned, and to their supervision and inspection, in so far as such laws are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution, shall remain in force, and that the Legislature may confer upon the Board any additional powers. It further provides that while payments by counties, cities, towns and villages to charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory institutions, wholly or partly under private control, for care, support and maintenance may be authorized, they shall not be required by the Legislature, nor shall such payments be made for any such inmate of such institutions who is not received and retained therein pursuant to rules established by the State Board of Charities.

The Commissioners comprising the Board are twelve in number, and are appointed for the term of eight years, one from each of the nine judicial districts of the State, and three additional members from the city of New York. They are required to reside in the districts or city from which they are respectively appointed, and no Commissioner can act as such while a trustee, director or other administrative officer of any institution subject to the visitation and inspection of the State Board of Charities.

Each Commissioner is paid actual expenses necessarily incurred while engaged in the performance of the duties of his office, and receives as compensation $10 for each day's attendance at meetings of the Board or of any of its committees, not exceeding in any one year the sum of $500.

The Board is required to report to the Legislature annually. Its seal is the arms of the State surrounded by the inscription, "State of New York — the State Board of Charities," and its chief officers are a president and a vice-president, elected annually from its members.

The State Charities Law, constituting chapter 55 of the Consolidated Laws, provides in part that:

"The state board of charities shall visit, inspect and maintain a general supervision of all institutions, societies or associations which are of a charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory character, whether state or municipal, incorporated or not incorporated, which are made subject to its supervision by the constitution or by law; and shall,

"1. Aid in securing the just, humane and economic administration of all institutions subject to its supervision.

"2. Advise the officers of such institutions in the performance of their official duties.

"3. Aid in securing the erection of suitable buildings for the accommodation of the inmates of such institutions aforesaid.

"4. Approve or disapprove the organization and incorporation of all institutions of a charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory character which are or shall be subject to the supervision and inspection of the board.

"5. Investigate the management of all institutions made subject to the supervision of the board, and the conduct and efficiency of the officers or persons charged with their management, and the care and relief of the inmates of such institutions therein or in transit.

"6. Aid in securing the best sanitary conditions of the buildings and grounds of all such institutions, and advise measures for the protection and preservation of the health of the inmates.

“ 7. Aid in securing the establishment and maintenance of such industrial, educational and moral training in institutions having the care of children as is best suited to the needs of the inmates.

“ 8. Establish rules for the reception and retention of inmates of all institutions which, by section fourteen of article eight of the constitution, are subject to its supervision.

“ 9. Investigate the condition of the poor seeking public aid and advise measures for their relief.

“ 10. Administer the laws providing for the care, support and removal of state and alien poor and the support of Indian poor persons.

In addition to the foregoing the Board is invested with power to approve or disapprove proposed certificates of incorporation of charitable institutions or organizations; to issue licenses to dispensaries, and to homes for the care of aged, decrepit and feeble-minded persons who are not proper subjects for care and treatment in a hospital for the insane, and for cause may revoke such licenses. Besides discharging these duties, it exercises such other functions as the supervision of placing out dependent children and the approval of plans for the construction of buildings for charitable institutions and is authorized, subject to approval by the Governor, to transfer inmates from one State charitable institution to another.

A list of incorporations approved and disapproved, of licenses issued, and of plans for buildings approved during the fiscal year appears later in this report.

REPORT

To the Honorable, the Legislature of the State of New York:

In conformity with the requirements of chapters 55 and 42 of the Consolidated Laws, known as the State Charities Law and the Poor Law, respectively, the State Board of Charities herewith submits its fifty-third annual report to your honorable body.

Only one change took place in the membership of the Board during the year: Benjamin Walworth Arnold who was appointed November 10, 1917, by Governor Whitman to fill the unexpired term caused by the resignation of the Commissioner from the Third Judicial District, and who rendered efficient service, was not reappointed at the expiration of his term March 23, 1919. Mrs. Mary M. Glynn of Albany was appointed in his place by Governor Smith for a full term of eight years, her appointment bearing date March 27, 1919.

ATTENDANCE AT MEETINGS

The following table, giving the names of the Commissioners of the Board, and the record of their attendance at Board meetings during the year 1918-1919, is respectfully presented in accordance with a requirement of the State Charities Law.

On Adult Wards: Commissioner Gratwick, Chairman; The President, ex officio; Commissioners Burdick, Marquand, Ridder and Werner.

IN MEMORIAM

The members of the State Board of Charities feel a sense of personal bereavement in the death of Dennis McCarthy on October 25, 1919, and realize that there has passed from the scene of action a man who has given the State notable service in the field of charity. On November 13, 1919, the Board adopted unanimously the following:

MINUTEDENNIS MCCARTHY

Former member of the State Board of Charities, and former Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities.

The tributes of sorrowing regard, prepared when death takes from us highly honored associates and friends, seldom adequately voice estimates of service that the world is willing to accept as final or complete. Friendship sweetens our memories and close association in service sheds a mellow light upon the pathway we have traveled with those who are gone. Fortunate is the man of whom it can be said "his life was devoted wholly to good and therefore none but good words can be spoken of him."

Dennis McCarthy was originally appointed by Governor Theodore Roosevelt in March, 1899, as Commissioner of the State Board of Charities to represent the Fifth Judicial District and continued a member of the Board until his resignation, October 31, 1909, to accept the office of Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities to which he was appointed by Governor Charles E. Hughes on November 4, 1909. Sympathetic with all forms of human suffering and deeply religious by nature, his duties, both as a member of this Board and as Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities, were particularly congenial to Mr. McCarthy and in both offices he gave himself without stint to the improvement of the state charitable and reformatory institutions and of all other public and private charitable organizations with which he had official relations. To the administration of the important office of Fiscal Supervisor he brought, besides his natural qualifications, his ten years' experience as a member of this Board.

After three years of useful service as Fiscal Supervisor, which ended in 1912 by the expiration of his term of office, Mr. McCarthy retired from public life because of failing health and his remaining years were spent within the home circle in which he constantly maintained the highest American ideals. It was a source of pride to him that his only son took an active part in the great war as an officer of the American Expeditionary Army abroad. Mr. McCarthy's death occurred at his home in Cazenovia, New York, October 25, 1919, in the sixty-sixth year of his age. A surviving family and many friends and former official associates cherish his memory as a good friend and a faithful public servant.

The State Board of Charities has learned with regret of the resignation of Albert H. Garvin, M. D., who, as Superintendent of the New York State Hospital for the Treatment of Incipient Pulmonary Tuberculosis, has rendered such efficient service to the State. He has been the means of placing that institution in a high rank for management and for remedial medical results. His departure from the State is to be regretted.

THE BOARD'S STAFF

With the gradual demobilization of the American forces and the disbanding of the auxiliary bodies, the members of the Board's staff who were in branches of the service returned to their positions as follows:

Evelyn H. Ellis resumed her duties as inspector on April 4, 1919, having served as nurse in the United States Army in the United States and in France, for a period of fifteen months.

John J. Skelly, clerk, returned to the Board's service on January 16, 1919, having served as coxswain in the United States Navy.

Harry M. Hirsch, transfer agent, returned to the Board's service on January 1, 1919, having served three months as employment expert, United States Ordnance Department.

Clara M. Paquet, clerk, returned to the Board's service on September 1, 1919, having served as secretary in the Woman's Overseas Hospitals in France for a period of one year.

James H. Foster, Superintendent, Division of Children, returned to the Board's service on September 1, 1919, after an absence of thirteen months having served as captain in the Sanitary Corps in the United States Army in this country and in France.

Mary A. Steer, inspector, returned to the Board's service on September 1, 1919, after an absence of one year in the War Camp Community Service at Camp Devens and in field work throughout the southeastern part of the country.

Chester L. Carlisle, M. D., Superintendent, Division of Mental Defect and Delinquency, resumed his duties on October 23, 1919, having served at Plattsburgh and Fort Slocum as captain in the Medical Corps in the United States Army for a period of one year.

In the absence of the superintendents of the Divisions of Children and of Mental Defect and Delinquency the work of those divisions was supervised by Richard W. Wallace, in addition to his duties as general superintendent.

It is of interest in this connection to note the length of service of the members of the Board's staff, some of whom have rendered long and efficient service to the Board and to the State.

Mrs. Ellen L. Tenney, statistician, has been connected with the Board's work since 1879, having been employed as temporary statistical clerk for a part of each year from that date until 1898, when she was appointed statistician on full time. Her faithfulness and ability in the performance of her duties is hereby recognized. Other members of the staff (names and present duties indicated) have served the Board for periods as follows:

Twenty-two years: Wellington D. Ives, Chief Clerk and Auditor; Henry M. Lehtrecker, Inspector.

Twenty years: Robert W. Hill, Superintendent of State and Alien Poor; Seward Wikoff, Deputy Superintendent of State and Alien Poor; Anna Mitchell, Stenographer.

Nineteen years: John B. Prest, Superintendent, New York Office.

Seventeen years: William C. Hinckley, Executive Hearing Stenographer; L. Elizabeth Thacher, Clerk.

Fourteen years: Clara M. Paquet, Clerk; Mary E. Walsh, Inspector; Harry M. Hirsch, Transfer Agent.

Thirteen years: Richard W. Wallace, Assistant Secretary and Superintendent of Inspection; Leola E. Ternan, Stenographer;

Clarence E. Ford, Superintendent, Division of Medical Charities; Alice M. Kautz, Inspector.

Twelve years: George W. Elson, Transfer Agent.

Eleven years: Hannah B. Oppenheim, Stenographer.

Ten years: Catherine L. O'Brien, Stenographer; George C. Rowell, Inspector; Anna H. Purcell, Stenographer.

Nine years: Augusta L. Mulholland, Stenographer; Alice M. Powers, Stenographer.

Eight years: Wilhelmina L. Barrett, Inspector.

Seven years: Flora E. Baehr, Stenographer; James H. Foster, Superintendent, Division of Children.

Six years: Gertrude J. Miller, Stenographer; Evelyn H. Ellis, Inspector.

Five years: Catherine E. Conway, Inspector; Harry E. Baxter, Clerk; David W. Park, Inspector; Margaret Freeman, Inspector; Henrietta Wecker, Stenographer.

Four years: Clare K. Miller, Stenographer; Julia Brown, Telephone Operator; Julius Brown, Inspector; Mary A. Steer, Inspector; William L. Chase, Inspector.

Three years: Violet H. Scheil, Stenographer; John J. Skelly, Clerk; Charles H. Johnson, Secretary.

Two years: Frances M. Landsborough, Stenographer; Florence D. Daniels, Inspector; Grace M. Leary, Stenographer; Hannah F. Hayes, Investigator; Chester L. Carlisle, Superintendent, Division of Mental Defect and Delinquency; Jennie R. Block, Stenographer.

One year: Margaret E. Burke, Inspector; Jennie M. Shannon, Investigator; Gertrude C. Welch, Stenographer; Amy W. Starkweather, Inspector; Lydia M. Wilde, Investigator; Grace Mintz, Stenographer; Anna M. Axleroad, Stenographer; Rose M. Hanlon, Stenographer; Edna G. Bridgeford, Investigator; Emilie H. Horton, Investigator; Helen M. Watkins, Inspector-Transfer Agent; Irene M. Killip, Inspector; Ida M. Clifford, Clerk; Mary G. Foster, Inspector.

Less than one year: Mary P. Crounse, Clerk; Frank J. Kelley, Stenographer; Harriet I. Ray, Stenographer.

THE WORK OF A STATE BOARD

The record of the Board's work as it is written in its annual reports to the Legislature can not completely enumerate all its activities; only the most important and significant can be described. The large and, we are glad to report, constantly increasing number of requests for information and advice, the many hours spent in consultation or conference with institution officials, the hundreds of communications relative to betterment of conditions in the care of the community's wards, cannot be tabulated successfully in this report. It is a pleasure to report that the Board's relations with the several hundred organizations subject to its supervision have been pleasant and harmonious. If occasionally the authorities of institutions and agencies have felt offended by the suggestions made to them by the Board, the misunderstandings have been removed by personal conferences which have revealed that the Board's requirements are not unreasonable and are for the best interests of the beneficiaries of the organizations. For every letter of protest received there are scores of others expressing gratitude for counsel and assistance in the solution of administrative or social problems. Mention is made of this situation because it is a proof of the practicability of the Board's contention that the relations of a State department to the institutions under its supervision need not be irritating or offensive. It is the settled policy of the State Board of Charities to be constructive rather than destructive in its criticism, to be inspiring rather than discouraging in its counsel, and to exert all its influence and resources to be helpful rather than obstructive. That this policy has been successful there is abundant evidence in the correspondence in the Board's files and in the gradual upward trend and development of public welfare work in this State.

A State department has, however, fixed limitations which define its activities much more accurately than is the case with a private organization, the flexibility of which is not possible in a State department, and this lack of flexibility should be taken into consideration when the work of the Board is the subject of discussion. There are many things which this Board desires to do but which by reason of statutory and financial limitations it cannot attempt. There are also many things which the public desires the Board should do, but which for the same reasons must be left undone. The State Board of Charities, in common with other departments, is limited in the number of employees by the decisions of the finance committees of the Legislature and this limitation extends also to the compensation to be paid. It cannot as in the case of a private charitable society expand its forces at will to meet new situations, nor can it hold out inducements to able and capable members of the staff that their good work will be suitably rewarded by increased financial compensation. All these matters are determined by an outside group which is usually but slightly acquainted with the problem, the possibilities, the necessities, and the ambitions of a particular department and which, in determining the financial limitations, must constantly have in mind scores of other departments and the necessity of keeping the State's budget within limits that will not arouse the resentment of the taxpayer. This is quite a different situation from that of the private society with its interested board of managers constantly planning for new work, increased funds, and more efficient equipment and personnel. There is, therefore, a legitimate place for the privately organized charitable society which may, through its broader freedom and its more flexible organization, inaugurate and carry on very important movements for social betterments until such time as the public machinery may be developed to meet its full task.

In recent reports to the Legislature attention has been called to the need of a definite program of prevention to be statewide in its extent and purpose. The Board, while confined by the Constitution and by statute to the inspection and supervision of charitable institutions and agencies, must consider the great necessity of decreasing the number of their beneficiaries. While, humanly speaking, it may be unlikely that the day will dawn when there will be no need of almshouse, orphan asylum, county hospital, or similar institutions, yet this possibly unattainable goal should be the ideal of the community and the State. The improvement and constant progress of the institutions must not be neglected, but even more to be desired is a coextensive effort to remedy the conditions and eliminate the causes that have created the large groups of dependents now requiring care. With the inspiration of what mankind has done in the fields of medicine, art, science, and construction, and in overcoming the obstacles of nature, is it too much to expect that the same energy, persistency, and coöperation, if applied to the field of preventive moral sanitation, would meet with equally great success? There are at present in every community many organizations and they reach every phase of social evil, but the unsatisfactory results so far obtained in reaching causes are due to lack of coöperation and coördination of effort. The State Board, if authorized, will gladly enter the community and seek to bring about a coördination of activity whereby a survey of conditions and the application of needed remedies be made possible.

RECOGNITION OF SERVICE

During the year two of the State schools for mental defectives have recognized the interest and work of the State Board of Charities in this field by giving to new buildings the names of two of its Commissioners.

Letchworth Village, with appropriate ceremonies in which the Governor participated, dedicated Stewart Hall, which will be the Assembly Hall of the Village, as a compliment to the President of this Board; and The State School for Mental Defectives, at Newark, has given the name of Stephen Smith to its new hospital building in well-merited recognition of the public services of Dr. Stephen Smith, for a long time a useful member of this Board, who recently retired by resignation from its councils.

CHILDREN'S CLEARING BUREAUS

In the last report of this Board reference was made to the need of children's clearing bureaus. This is a form of social activity which has for its aim the coördination of social agencies concerned with child welfare and the focusing of their united energies to meet the community need. Representatives of the Board have held with interested groups two conferences, one in Syracuse and one in Rochester. The committee, of which Mr. Frank E. Wing is chairman, appointed in the latter city to study the need of a child-clearing bureau, has prepared a very valuable and constructive report.

In the belief that the establishment of definite objects and standards of organization will stimulate the growth of this important movement, the recommendations of the Rochester Committee are given here for the information of those who are interested in the subject.

“The four possible methods considered for the creation of such a Bureau are:—

“1. By creating an entirely new agency, which would supplement work now done by existing agencies.

“2. By forming a Children's Bureau around existing agencies and enlarging its work to fill in the gaps.

“3. By wiping out all existing agencies and establishing a new agency to take over all of their work, together with additional work needed.

“4. By one of the existing agencies itself enlarging its field so as to undertake the work of a Children's Bureau.

RECOMMENDATIONS

“I. After full consideration of existing conditions, your committee is of the opinion that such a Bureau can best be formed by adopting the last method suggested, namely, that one of the existing agencies should enlarge its field so as to undertake the work of a Children's Bureau.

“II. The purposes of such a Children's Bureau would be: —

“A. To better correlate children's work in Rochester by serving as a connecting link between existing institution and agencies and to direct individual cases into proper channels.

“B. To supplement the work of existing institutions and agencies by: —

“(1) Providing means for more extensive and more intensive case work in families where there is actual or potential neglect of children with a view of eliminating causes which make court action against parents and children or forcible removal of children from the homes necessary.

“(2) Providing more adequate supervision of families from which children have been removed for placement with a view to the eventual possibility of returning these children to their homes.

“C. To provide clinics and other facilities for the study of individual physical and mental defects in dependent, neglected, and defective children with a view to advising the proper authorities as to the best possible disposition of such cases, to offer the use of these facilities to hospitals and institutions in which children have already been placed in order to determine whether they properly belong in these institutions.

“ D. To provide a temporary home for all such children during this period of study.

“ E. To serve in an advisory capacity to existing children's agencies, to aid them in standardizing their work, to develop uniform records of children's cases and to do all necessary things pertaining to the child welfare of the community not being done by existing agencies, keeping at the same time to the principle that the Bureau should serve as an agency for correlating children's work, for setting standards and for stimulating and encouraging the taking over by existing agencies of new work, the need of which may be demonstrated.

“ III. Departments. The work of the Bureau would naturally divide itself into the following well-defined activities: —

“ A. Application, clearing and information.

“ C. Clinics and child study.

“ D. Temporary home or shelter.

“ IV. Records. It would be highly desirable if there could be formed a central record office, combining the records of the Bureaus with those of other children's agencies, and establishing standard records for the use of all.

“ V. Advisory relation. It would also be advisable that the closest relationship exist between the superintendent and staff of the Bureau and the workers of other children's agencies.”

INSTITUTIONS DURING THE RECONSTRUCTION PERIOD

In previous reports this Board has recounted the work of the institutions during the war period. Of all the many factors which contributed to success during those trying months, the institutions caring for the dependent members of the community equaled, and in some ways surpassed, many others in loyalty and patriotic effort. With the close of the war the institutions have not ceased their efforts although they are confronted with many serious problems. Without exaggeration it may be said that at no previous period have the institutions had to deal with graver problems than at the present time. These may be enumerated as:

1. Problem of complaints.
2. Problem of labor and finance.
3. Problem of inadequate capacity.
4. Problem of standards.
5. Problem of population.
6. Problem of administration.

1. PROBLEM OF COMPLAINTS

Complaints are frequently made to the office of the Board, or to the Governor and referred to this office, of alleged ill-treatment or neglect of institution inmates. These complaints refer to the quality and quantity of the food supplies, harsh treatment by attendants or officials, or unnecessary detention of individuals in the institution's care. Every complaint made, however trivial, is carefully inquired into and a record of it kept. In more than a majority of cases the charges are found to be untrue and the result of a desire for revenge or of disappointment because of ungranted requests. Whenever any of these complaints is made public the usual tendency is to accept it as true, and even when disproved there lingers in the minds of many people a belief that the institution was undoubtedly at fault. The peculiar idea that institution inmates cannot or do not tell untruths has wrought injustice to many well-conducted institutions and to competent and conscientious officials. Unfortunately such charges are remembered much longer than the record for good work which may have been previously earned. Among the complaints which have been made during the year against State institutions, three have come to the attention of the public and received considerable prominence in the public press.

During the legislative session a member of the Senate voiced charges, which he stated had been brought to his attention, against the management of the Western House of Refuge for Women at Albion. No complaint had ever been made to the Board by any official or inmate, but the Board has had cognizance for some time of friction between members of the board of managers, and the cause of the disturbance seemed to be the unwise policy of divided authority. The State Board of Charities arranged conferences with them and recommended that authority be placed in the hands of the Superintendent, and that this official be held responsible until she had shown herself unsuited to carry such responsibility, in which event the board of managers could justly make a change in the administration. When the matter was brought to the attention of the Senate, a committee was appointed with an appropriation of $5,000 to conduct an investigation.

Two hearings were held by the committee, and the purpose which actuated the charges was made apparent. One of the principal factors in the existing situation, which was brought out with considerable force, and which results from the appointment of an undue proportion of members of a board of managers from the immediate community in which the institution is located, is the inevitable tendency on the part of such a local group to attempt to interfere with its internal administration.

Later a complaint was made to the Governor relative to conditions in the New York State Soldiers and Sailors' Home at Bath, and, as the institution is located not far from the home of the Lieutenant-Governor, the matter was placed in his hands for investigation. Subsequently he was appointed under the Moreland Act as a commissioner to make a formal investigation of the matters in controversy. A more detailed statement with reference to this situation is found in the report of the Division of Adult Wards, which appears later in this volume.

For several years conditions at the New York State Reformatory for Women at Bedford Hills had given the State Board much concern. Careful inspections of the work of this institution were made, copies of reports of which were transmitted to the managers; following which conferences were held with the board of managers, individually and collectively, and a survey of the educational work made by the State Education Department at the request of this Board, the object being the correction of undesirable conditions which were claimed to exist in the institution. The matter culminated in the appointment by the Governor of John S. Kennedy, Vice-President of the State Commission of Prisons, to investigate the situation.

It is the conviction of the Board as expressed in its previous reports to the Legislature that the changing character of the inmates of this institution requires radical modification in methods of treatment and care. With this in view, there should be provided opportunities for therapeutic treatment of psychopathic and disturbed cases and the use of the adjoining Rockefeller group of buildings might well be secured for this purpose and made a part of such a program.

Notwithstanding these complaints, when the large number of institutions and their large population are taken into consideration, it is gratifying to report that the treatment of the inmates, whether young or old, sick or well, dependent or delinquent, is practically free from brutality and harshness.

2. PROBLEM OF LABOR AND FINANCE

The problem of the proper care and treatment of the inmate leads naturally to a consideration of the character of the attendant who is most closely associated with him. Very much of the success of an institution depends upon the character of its subordinate employees. In order to get a high class of persons who will be patient, interested, helpful, and reliable in their treatment of the inmates, certain inducements must be given. These include a reasonable working day, satisfactory living conditions, and adequate compensation. As for the first named, the institution day has heretofore had no limit. On many occasions an employee might have to work most of the twenty-four hours, twelve hours usually being the minimum. With the insistent demand by labor leaders for a shorter day in industries, the institution employee has been aroused to a consciousness of the length of his own working day and many persons refuse to accept this kind of employment because of the long hours of work and the unsatisfactory quarters provided for living purposes. Organization of employees in the State institutions has already taken place and the discussion of an eight-hour day has been going on for some time. This movement has not yet entered the private institutions but all are experiencing difficulty in getting labor because of the long hours.

The high price paid for labor in the war industries and since the close of the war in all kinds of employment has rendered it impossible for either public or private institutions to compete with the present general wage scale. Consequently, there has been a steadily increasing difficulty in securing competent assistance. In reply to a letter from the Secretary of this Board, a Superintendent of a State institution writes: "You speak of the tension throughout the State relative to treatment of inmates, and this prompts me to state that there is a tension at the institution as to whether or not we shall be able to give our inmates any sort of attention. We are having difficulty at present in keeping employees enough on hand to give our inmates any sort of care. We have at present twelve vacancies and ten people off duty sick or for other reasons, and this necessitates such long hours of service on the part of the remainder that we are receiving resignations weekly and are unable to fill the vacancies. To my mind this is a very serious situation and under the present conditions I do not see just how to meet it." What is expected and what is given for the high class of service desired may best be illustrated by the following statement from a recent Civil Service announcement relative to a position in a State institution: "It is desired to secure men of good physique, who are possessed of sound health, good character, undoubted honesty, great personal courage, a kindly but firm disposition, sound judgment and discretion, an inclination to carry out the orders of a superior faithfully, and a personality and temperament calculated to command the respect and obedience of persons in their custody." For these qualifications the salary promised was $1,000 per year with maintenance.

The importance of securing the right kind of people for the subordinate positions cannot be overestimated. It is the attendant, guard, matron or some other subordinate with whom the ward is in daily and constant association. Much harm can be done by dishonest, heartless or inefficient employees before the superintendent is made aware of it. One of the most serious difficulties in institution administration to-day is the insufficient number of employees and the inefficient character of many of those now employed.

Owing to the expectation that the cost of living would be reduced because of the close of the war, the appropriations requested by the State institutions in 1919 were cut, and the expected reduction for necessary maintenance expenses not taking place, the financial situation has been a very trying one. Deficiency appropriations will have to be provided early in the legislative session of 1920. The private institutions dependent upon donations and subscriptions from the public have been in similar financial straits. The endless number of "drives" have as a rule not helped the institutions, but have rather drawn the attention of the public away from local needs. With the desire to assist the institutions the Board sent the following letter to all the newspapers of this State:

“STATE OF NEW YORK

STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES, OFFICE AT THE CAPITOL

ALBANY, N. Y., OCTOBER 22, 1919

DEAR SIR:

The State Board of Charities desires to appeal through your columns on behalf of the private charities of your community whose needs were never greater than now. During the war heavy drains were made upon our philanthropic resources to aid the distressed in foreign countries. It was necessary that this work should be done even though the result might be that some of our own local needs were neglected. Now that the demand for assistance abroad has largely decreased, it is advisable for our people to turn their attention to the needs of local charities, by which we mean orphan asylums, hospitals, dispensaries, homes for the aged, and similar organizations that care for the dependent members of society.

“The maintenance of these philanthropic agencies is more or less dependent upon voluntary gifts from citizens of the community. The great increases in the cost of everything which the institutions use have not been met by corresponding increases in contributions to them. It is unnecessary to enter into details regarding the high price of food, clothing, building repairs, drugs, labor, and everything else which enters into the daily life of an institution. Our people should realize that the responsibility for the care, education and protection of human beings which has been placed upon the institutions is a heavy one and ought to be shared by the public. The boards of managers receive no compensation but give their services. The employees receive comparatively small salaries, which in many cases have not been increased recently to meet the increased cost of living, and the standards set by the State for their work are high. Should we not now direct to the care of the orphans, the sick and the helpless persons in our own community the zeal and interest which we have shown in the care of these classes in Europe?

“We find that at present the financial problem is almost impossible of solution for these institutions and we believe that, if the public were informed of this fact, it would not allow this situation to continue. The approach of winter aggravates the problem. We therefore appeal through your columns to the citizens of your community to take an interest in the material welfare of your local hospitals, children's homes and other institutions caring for those who cannot care for themselves; so that the necessary anxieties incident to this work shall not be increased by financial difficulties. It would assist greatly if you would treat of this editorially and also arrange for the publication of popular articles on the actual situation with respect to your local institutions and organizations, the facts to be secured by your reporters from interviews with administrative officers and managers.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES H. JOHNSON,
Secretary."

A communication was also sent to the institutions requesting them to acquaint the newspapers with their needs. The press very generously and generally gave publicity to the appeal and the institutions seized the opportunity to present their difficulties to the people of their communities. In addition, the Board has held conferences with groups of the superintendents and managers and assisted in preparing appeals to boards of supervisors for increased per capita payments for the care of public charges. At the time of writing this report several counties have granted additional amounts. The request of the institutions caring for children that they receive $4.50 per week per child is very reasonable in view of the increased cost of practically everything necessary for their maintenance, and in fact this amount falls far short of the actual per capita expense for the care and training of the children.

3. PROBLEM OF INADEQUATE CAPACITY

While to the taxpayer and to the casual observer it may appear that the State is well supplied with institutional accommodations, the fact is that there are not adequate facilities for certain classes who must be cared for. The groups which are thus insufficiently provided for to which the Board desires to call attention are the following:

(a) Juvenile delinquents. The State Agricultural and Industrial School, at Industry, is a school of which the State may justly be proud, but it is being used to capacity and the question of an increase in the number of cottages will soon have to be given serious consideration. The New York House of Refuge, on Randall's Island, is a private institution supported by the State. This is not an ideal arrangement and in addition the location and equipment of the buildings occupied are not what the Empire State should provide for its delinquent boys. The project to construct the New York State Training School for Boys at Yorktown Heights has been abandoned. The site is now a part of Mohansic Park and is under the control of the commissioners of that park. With the culmination of this arrangement there passed away the results of more than ten years of effort to provide more adequate care for delinquent boys, involving an expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars. The State, as far as the care of these wards from Greater New York is concerned, is back where it was a score of years ago. Many improvements have been made in the New York House of Refuge, but the name, the type of buildings, and the location are altogether out of date. Steps should be taken to remedy this situation and a commission appointed to determine upon a site and to plan an institution for the delinquent boys of the eastern part of the State equal in opportunities to those afforded the boys from the central and western portions in the School at Industry.

(b) Mental defectives. The situation relative to this class of persons has improved but slightly during the year. The State Board of Charities has annually called attention to the seriousness of this defect in the institutional equipment of the State. The State Commission for Mental Defectives with which the Board is closely related has endeavored to relieve the situation and its report will outline a program which the State should adopt and carry through to its conclusion. At the present time all the institutions caring for this type of State wards are overcrowded. Letchworth Village has increased its capacity by about 500 beds and, as soon as the necessary additional help could be secured to care for the inmates, these accommodations were filled. It is hoped that by the summer of 1920 about 500 more beds will be ready. Attention is called to the fact that all the institutions of this group are now known as State Schools for Mental Defectives and that the term "feeble-minded" has been eliminated from the statutes.

(c) Tubercular children. The attempt to eliminate tuberculosis from the community or to minimize its ravages must know no cessation. This movement, ordinarily described in terms of warfare, calls on all citizens and all of the State's facilities to be used in what may be considered a very hopeful campaign for the defeat of one of the most widespread and destructive enemies of mankind. The public must be educated to realize that tuberculosis may be prevented, may be communicated, and may be cured. It is with the latter that this report is now specially concerned. The earlier the recognition of the presence of the disease, the more encouraging is the prospect of recovery from it. The State has its hospital for incipient cases at Raybrook but no public facilities for the care of children who are stricken with the malady. The Board of Trustees of the hospital and many other interested organizations and citizens think this defect should be remedied and that in the wholesome and invigorating climate which nature has provided in the Adirondack region the State should furnish an opportunity for the tuberculous child to regain health and be preserved for social and economic usefulness.

(d) Epileptics. At Craig Colony is found the largest and, we believe, one of the best institutions in the world for the care of sufferers from one of the most dreadful and mysterious ills to which mankind is heir, namely, epilepsy. But as it is estimated that the ratio of epileptics in the general population is 1 to 500, one institution having a capacity for 1,400 inmates situated in the extreme western part of the State is not sufficient provision for a population of 10,000,000 or more people. It is impossible to care adequately and properly for the needs of the State at Sonyea, where there is constant overcrowding and where a long waiting list is constantly maintained. The great distance from New York City is an additional hardship to the patients who are separated from friends and relatives for long periods of time. There should be in the vicinity of the metropolis an institution for this type of sufferers, and in addition there should be provided throughout the State clinical and dispensary facilities whereby discharged patients and potential epileptics may receive aftercare or expert advice in the treatment of their disease.

4. PROBLEM OF STANDARDS

One of the functions of the State Board of Charities is to formulate standards for administration and encourage institutions to attain those standards. There has happily been a constant upward trend in movement toward the realization of ideals. Owing to the unfavorable industrial conditions new buildings have necessarily been few; but such as have been planned have been carefully scrutinized by the Board and its Committees, and the architects and managers have been urged to build for efficiency in the care of their particular type of inmates more than for architectural beauty. In the supervision of the institutions the Board has been persistent in its efforts to raise the level of their work and as far as possible seek the elimination of the evils of institutionalism. The upward tendency in administrative conditions may be seen from the table showing changes in rating or classification which appears later in this report under the heading "Inspection of Charitable Institutions and Agencies."

The children's institution has especially an opportunity to instill, in a period of unrest and reconstruction, lessons of loyalty and devotion to the nation of which the children are an important part. The Board sent out letters recommending the observance of Roosevelt's birthday and information and programs for the observance of the day were supplied. The use of the English language in these institutions is also insisted upon, as the impropriety of using public funds for the support of children in institutions whose educational work is conducted in any other language must be clear to every American. Health standards have been presented and officials of the State Department of Health were invited in the spring of 1919 to be present at the annual round table conferences with the superintendents of institutions for children throughout the State at which the subjects of weighing, measuring and feeding children were discussed.

5. PROBLEM OF POPULATION

Changes in social and industrial conditions and increased efficiency in methods of social work have brought about changes in the population of institutions which materially affect and determine their work. In those for children there has been a noticeable decline in population continuing now during a period of about five years. It was expected that with the serious epidemic of influenza there would be an increased number of children in children's institutions. On the contrary, their population has decreased about 600 during the year. This continued decrease may perhaps be accounted for on the ground of unusually favorable industrial conditions which have made it possible for families to remain together, and through the increase in safety devices and other special efforts to preserve life and limb, and through the development of the child welfare boards whereby many children have been retained with their mothers instead of being supported in institutions. It has recently been estimated that there are about 1,400 vacancies in the homes for children in Greater New York alone. This subject is dealt with more in detail in other portions of this report.

There has also been a decrease in the number of inmates of almshouses and in addition their enfeebled condition is particularly noticeable so that in many of the almshouses at the present time there are few able to do any work. During the war the demand for labor was so great that even aged persons could command a living wage and thus avoid institutional care. Many of the almshouse superintendents have had much difficulty in producing and harvesting crops from their extensive farms owing to the difficulty in getting outside labor and the impossibility of utilizing their own inmates to any extent.

The population of training schools and reformatories shows a decided change of type. The effectiveness of the probation system and other social agencies in the community may be seen in the elimination of the casual offenders of normal mentality who in such large numbers composed the institutional population of a former day. Through the efforts of the Big Brother and Big Sister movements, the probation officer, the juvenile court, and other agencies of a similar nature, the institution is now a last resort. It is probable that, if the individual be of normal intelligence, he will respond favorably to the various agencies seeking his reclamation, and if he resists them all and the community is compelled to place him in an institution he is probably in some way deficient. Consequently the institutions of the type we have just mentioned receive only those cases that filtered through what might be designated as the social sieves and these inmates are far different from the group for which the institutions were originally intended. It therefore becomes a problem for the reformatory to make its methods, intended for normal individuals, function satisfactorily for a group composed largely of subnormal individuals. Methods of discipline, instruction, awards and parole must necessarily be vitally affected by this continuing change of type of inmate population.

There has also been a marked change in the type of the inmates of institutions for mental defectives. In former years quite a number of low-grade individuals were received and the problem of their care was purely custodial. In recent years this particular type has decreased in number so that it seems to be comparatively rare that a low-grade idiot or imbecile is received. On the other hand, the number of high grade mental defectives seems to increase so that the institutions have a large number of the moron type which necessitates a change in methods. The question now to be decided is not how to care for these individuals the remainder of their days but the possibility of training them for usefulness, however limited, in the outside world. This carries with it the question of parole, colonies and other forms of life outside of the institution, which could not be considered as long as the institutions were of a purely custodial type.

6. PROBLEM OF ADMINISTRATION

The State and private institutions under the supervision of this Board are, in general, governed by boards of managers the members of which serve without compensation. In the State institutions such boards are composed of seven members, except in two cases in which the membership exceeds that number. It is not an easy matter to secure for such boards seven persons who not only possess the necessary qualifications for the work but also have the requisite amount of time and interest in the work to serve properly the interests of the institution, its beneficiaries, and the State. A member of one of these boards is in a position of great responsibility and any one who has accepted appointment with the understanding that there is little or no work to be done, later may find himself in the difficult position of being compelled to neglect the meetings and other work of the board, or to resign. It is important that the work of these boards be performed in a business-like manner and with due consideration to the welfare of the inmates committed to their care. A citizen of this State who accepts appointment to the position of manager of a State institution, with all the responsibilities that such appointment implies, should be willing to give of his time and ability to attend the meetings and perform any other work necessary for the protection of the inmates being cared for by such institution.

The State Charities Law requires that managers of the State institutions shall meet at the institution once each month for the transaction of business and for an inspection of the institution in its various details. Section 50 of this law requires that such managers or trustees "shall, by a majority of its members, visit and inspect the institution for which it is appointed at least monthly, and shall make a written report to the Governor, the State Board of Charities and the Fiscal Supervisor within ten days after each visitation, to be signed by each member making such visitation." There is presented herewith a table showing the attendance of managers of the State institutions at the meetings during the calendar year 1919, as shown by reports filed with the State Board of Charities. According to this record, at a number of meetings there were not enough members present to constitute a quorum, with the result that any important business of the board must necessarily be deferred until a later date.

BOARDS OF CHILD WELFARE

With the return of the members of our staff who have been engaged in war service, it has become possible to assign one member to this division of the Board's work and thus to make possible closer coöperation and consequent helpfulness between the Board and the local boards of child welfare in standardizing methods and in continuing the development of the work throughout the State.

Aid to widowed mothers with dependent children, administered through these boards, has been for four years an integral part of the machinery provided by law for the conservation of child life in the State. Chapter 228 of the Laws of 1915, under which this assistance is administered, constitutes a great step in advance in community responsibility for the preservation of home care and training in the interests of the most valuable asset of any community — children. The mother who is "a proper person mentally, morally, and physically to care for and bring up such child or children" is at once the best and least expensive agent the State can find for the care of her dependent, fatherless children. During the period in which the various active boards of child welfare have been working, it has been established that the support of these wards of the State in their homes tends not only to decrease the amount of care given in homes for children, sanatoria, and institutions for delinquent children, but also to decrease the immediate burden on police departments, children's courts, societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, and other agencies dealing with the neglect or abuse of minors or with juvenile delinquency. Funds expended for child welfare are the best social investment which any community can make, for "The race marches forward on the feet of little children." In some counties the conception of child welfare is so limited, or public opinion still so slow in recognizing the necessity for any form of public aid not provided by the poor law, that no appropriations have been made to enable the boards of child welfare to function. But the State in general has accepted the principle underlying the Child Welfare Law and the question now before us is not the validity of that principle, but the improvement of standards of administration, the extension of the operation of the law to all counties of the State, and the possibilities of increasing its effectiveness by amendments to which experience points as desirable.

The operation of the law was extended through the amendment of section 153, subdivision 1, by chapter 373 of the Laws of 1919, which authorizes the granting of allowances to the widows of certain aliens. This amendment, effective January 1, 1920, provides that a widow whose deceased husband was "a resident of the State for a period of two years immediately preceding his decease and whose child or children were born in the United States and who has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States within a period of two years immediately preceding his decease" may be a beneficiary. The form of the last requirement, however, is clearly defective, since it excludes the family of an alien who has lived more than two years after taking out "first papers," regardless of the fact that at the time of his death he may not have completed the five-year residence required by the naturalization law before petition for full citizenship can be made. It is hoped that this requirement will be so changed by further enactment as to accomplish the full purpose of the amendment.

Many of the allowances now granted are too low, especially where the original grants have not been increased to meet the increased cost of living. The necessity of periodical adjustment of allowances to the cost of living is shown by the following facts: The Commercial and Financial Chronicle states that the cost of living has gone up 102 per cent. in the United States since 1915, the year of the enactment of the Child Welfare Law. This means that a dollar has to-day slightly less than half the purchasing power which it had four years ago. A late bulletin of the Bureau of Applied Economics makes the following statement with respect to the cost of living: "The lowest possible figure on which a family of five can keep alive in this country is in the neighborhood of $1,386 a year. This figure is taken from estimates approached from three different angles. It does not include any comforts."

To secure adequate returns on the investment in good citizenship which it represents, the allowance should be made to cover the need of the family up to the maximum permitted by law, that is, the cost of institutional care for the children. Indeed, the full value of the statute is "tested fundamentally by the type of home in which the children draw breath." The boards of child welfare are working on causes and will not meet their full responsibility until, through coöperation with other social agencies when the aid which they can give is insufficient, proper housing conditions, adequate food, necessary physical care, educational advantages which include adequate training for industrial life, and opportunity for play are provided for the children under their care.

In twenty-three counties of the State no appropriations are made for the work of the boards of child welfare and the children of widowed mothers resident therein are without the benefits obtainable under the Child Welfare Law. To secure these benefits in the inactive counties, the first essential is a full and active membership on the board of child welfare. The county judges as the appointing officers are responsible for the selection, as members of these boards, of men and women who have a practical insight into conditions relating to the relief of the poor in their own homes and a keen realization of the importance of child welfare. The members, in turn, should thoroughly understand the importance of the duties laid upon the boards and be willing to assume the full responsibility of faithful attendance at meetings and of the maintenance of a live interest in the work which acceptance of membership on a board entails. Their first duty is the securing of an appropriation to enable the board to perform its work and the State Board of Charities is ready to render them assistance in their efforts along this line.

PLACING-OUT LAWS

In Erie, Onondaga, and Schenectady counties, an effort is made by public officials to care for a considerable portion of their dependent children in family homes, instead of in institutions, and in some other counties a smaller portion are so cared for; but by far the greater part of the work of this nature is done through private agencies to whose care children are committed by courts and poor-law officials, and by incorporated or unincorporated organizations whose work is maintained entirely by private funds.

Public officials, and institutions and agencies receiving public funds, are required by law to report to the State Board of Charities all placements of children in foster homes, but those not in receipt of public funds for the care of inmates are not required to make such reports. Neither do the laws provide for State supervision or direction of the methods practiced by the institutions and agencies in the selection of foster homes or in the supervision of children after placement.

Advertisements appearing in newspapers in certain localities that infants born in lying-in asylums or maternity hospitals conducted as private sanatoria, together with the nature of replies to inquiries made in answer to such advertisements, show the willingness of the managers of some of these institutions to place young infants in foster homes without due inquiry into the character and financial ability of the would-be foster parents.

There is, therefore, need for amendment to the laws governing the disposition of children placed out to require adequate reporting of all placements and to provide for the enforcement of satisfactory standards to be observed in the placing and supervision of destitute or other children placed in foster homes.

MINIMUM STANDARDS FOR CHILD WELFARE

As the conclusion of the Children's Year program, a Conference on Child Welfare Standards was held at the request of the President of the United States under the auspices of the Children's Bureau of the Department of Labor. This Conference consisted of a series of meetings beginning with one in Washington May 5-8, 1919, and followed by eight regional conferences. Their purpose was to set up certain irreducible minimum standards for the health, education, and work of the American child. Leaders who are prominent in movements for the practical protection of childhood in the allied countries and a number of American experts upon the various phases of child welfare considered were invited to be present. The State Board of Charities was asked to send a representative to both the Washington meeting and the regional conference held in New York City.

The general summary of the proceedings of the Conferences says: "The Children's Bureau Conferences reported in this volume represent perhaps the most conspicuous single attempt yet made to state what contemporary civilization has learned concerning the welfare of childhood. * * * — the organizers of the conferences brought together men and women whose sole purpose was to apply to the service of the American child what has been proved to be incontestably true. Nothing doctrinaire nor anything unsupported by the burden of scientific data now available was admitted."

Three groups of minimum standards are the final result of the Conferences. These cover:

1. Minimum standards for the greater protection of children against the wrongs of premature labor, which concern the great majority of children.
2. Definite standards for the protection of the health of mothers and their children, which affect all children.
3. Standards relating to children in need of special care, which class includes the dependents, the incurably weak, and the delinquents.

They are published in the pamphlet listed as Conference Series No. 2, Bureau Publication No. 62 of the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor. The report states: "These are intended only as minimum standards and not as in any way limiting the degree of protection which an advanced state might desire to give its children."

It is with the third group of standards that the State Board of Charities is the more directly concerned. In the words of the report: "For this last named class first effort at reform began. Their plight inspired the beginnings of the child welfare movement." Since these children constitute one of its chief problems, this Board desires to bring the standards evolved in relation to them to the attention of the Legislature. With this purpose, that portion of the report of the Washington Conferences covering standards relating to children in need of special care is here reprinted.

"STANDARDS RELATING TO CHILDREN IN NEED OF SPECIAL CARE"1. General statement.

The conclusions of the White House Conference of 1909 on the Care of Dependent Children are reaffirmed in all essentials. They have been guides for communities and states in reshaping their plans for children in need of special care. They are commended for consideration to all communities whose standards do not as yet conform to them, so that they may be translated into practice in the various states.

The fundamental rights of childhood are normal home life, opportunities for education, recreation, vocational preparation for life, and moral, religious and physical development in harmony with American ideals and the educational and spiritual agencies by which these rights of the child are normally safeguarded.

Upon the State devolves the ultimate responsibility for children who are in need of special care by reason of unfortunate home conditions, physical or mental handicap, or delinquency. Particular legislation is required to insure for such children the nearest possible approach to normal development.

2. Adequate income.

Home life which is, in the words of the conclusions of the White House Conference, "the highest and finest product of civilization," cannot be provided except upon the basis of an adequate income for each family.

3. Assistance to mothers.

The policy of assistance to mothers who are competent to care for their own children is now well established. It is generally recognized that the amount provided should be sufficient to enable the mother to maintain her children suitably in her own home, without resorting to such outside employment as will necessitate leaving her children without proper care and oversight; but in many states the allowances are still entirely inadequate to secure this result under present living costs. The amount required can be determined only by careful and competent case study, which must be renewed from time to time to meet changing conditions.

4. State supervision.

A State board of charities or a similar supervisory body should be responsible for the regular inspection and licensing of every institution, agency, or association, incorporated or otherwise, which receives or cares for mothers with children or children who suffer from physical or mental handicaps, or who are delinquent, dependent, or without suitable parental care, and should have authority to revoke such licenses for cause and to prescribe forms of registration and report. This State agency should maintain such supervision and visitation of children in institutions and children placed in family homes as will insure their proper care, training and protection. The incorporation of private organizations caring for children should be required and should be subject to the approval of the State board of charities or similar body. State supervision should be conceived and exercised in harmony with democratic ideals which invite and encourage the service of efficient altruistic forces of society in the common welfare.

5. Removal of children from their homes.

Unless unusual conditions exist, the child's welfare is best promoted by keeping him in his own home. No child should be permanently removed from his home unless it is impossible so to reconstruct family conditions or build and supplement family resources as to make the home safe for the child, or so to supervise the child as to make his continuance in the home safe for the community. In case of removal separation should not continue beyond the period of reconstruction.

6. Home care.

The aim of all provision for children who must be removed from their own homes should be to secure for each child home life as nearly normal as possible, to safeguard his health, and to insure for him the fundamental rights of childhood. To a much larger degree than at present, family homes may be used to advantage in the care of such children.

7. Principles governing child placing.

Before a child is placed in other than a temporary foster home, adequate consideration should be given to his health, mentality, character and family history and circumstances. Arrangements should be made for correcting remediable physical defects and disease.

Complete records of the child are necessary to a proper understanding of his heredity and personality, and of his development and progress while under the care of the agency.

Particular consideration should be given to children who are difficult to place and who require provision adapted to their peculiar needs.

Careful and wise investigation of foster homes is prerequisite to the placing of children. Adequate standards should be required of the foster families as to character, intelligence, experience, training, ability, income, environment, sympathetic attitude and their ability to give the child proper moral and spiritual training. When practicable children should be placed in families of the same religious faith as the parents, or the last surviving parent.

A complete record should be kept of each foster home, giving the information on which approval was based. The records should show the agency's contacts with the family from time to time, indicating the care given the child entrusted to it. In this way special abilities in the families will be developed and conserved for children.

Supervision of children placed in foster homes should include adequate visits by properly qualified and well-trained visitors who should exercise watchfulness over the child's health, education and moral and spiritual development. Periodic physical examinations should be made. Supervision of children in boarding homes should also involve the careful training of the foster parents in their task. Supervision should not be made a substitute for the responsibilities which properly rest with the foster family.

The transfer of the legal guardianship of a child should not be permitted save with the consent of a properly designated State department or a court of proper jurisdiction.

In all cases involving the legal adoption of children, the court should make a full inquiry into all the facts through its own visitor or through some other unbiased agency, before awarding the child's custody.

8. Children in institutions.

The stay of children in institutions for dependents should be as brief as possible. The condition of all children in such institutions should be carefully studied at frequent intervals, in order to determine whether they should be restored to their own homes, placed in foster homes or transferred to institutions better suited to their needs. While they do remain in institutions, their condition should approximate as nearly as possible that of normal family life as to health, recreation, schooling and spiritual, æsthetic, civic and vocational training.

9. Care of children born out of wedlock.

The child born out of wedlock constitutes a very serious problem, and for this reason special safeguards should be provided.

Save for unusual reasons both parents should be held responsible for the child during its minority, and especially should the responsibility of the father be emphasized.

Care of the child by its mother is highly desirable, particularly during the nursing months.

No parent of a child born out of wedlock should be permitted to surrender the child outside its own family, save with the consent of a properly designated State department or a court of proper jurisdiction.

Each State should make suitable provision of a humane character for establishing paternity and guaranteeing to children born out of wedlock the rights naturally belonging to children born in wedlock. The fathers of such children should be under the same financial responsibilities and the same legal liabilities toward their children as other fathers. The administration of the courts with reference to such cases should be so regulated as not only to protect the legal rights of the mother and child, but also to avoid unnecessary publicity and humiliation.

The treatment of the unmarried mother and her child should include the best medical supervision, and should be so directed as to afford the widest opportunity for wholesome, normal life.

10. Care of physically defective children.

Special care and educational opportunities for deaf, blind and crippled children should be provided in the public educational system, local or State.

11. Mental hygiene and care of mentally defective children.

The value of the first seven years of childhood from the point of health, education and morals and formative habits cannot be overestimated. Throughout childhood attention should be given to the mental hygiene of the child — the care of the instincts, emotions and general personality, and of environment conditions. Special attention should be given to the need for training teachers and social workers in mental hygiene principles.

Each State should assume the responsibility for thorough study of the school and general population for the purposes of securing data concerning the extent of the feeble-mindedness and subnormality.

Adequate provision should be made for such mentally defective children as require institutional care. Special schools or classes with qualified teachers and adequate equipment should be provided by educational authorities for such defective children as may be properly cared for outside of institutions. The State should provide for the supervision and after-care of feeble-minded persons at large in the community, especially those paroled from institutions. Custodial care in institutions for feeble-minded children should not be resorted to until after due consideration of the possibility of adjustment within the community.

12. Juvenile courts.

Every locality should have available a court organization providing for separate hearings of children's cases; a special method of detention for children entirely apart from adult offenders; adequate investigation for every case; provision for supervision or probation by trained officers, such officers in girls' cases to be women; and a system for recording and filing social as well as legal information.

In dealing with children the procedure should be under chancery jurisdiction, and juvenile records should not stand as criminal records against the children.

Whenever possible such administrative duties as child placing and relief should not be required of the juvenile court, but should be administered by agencies organized for that purpose.

Thorough case study should invariably be made. Provision for mental and physical examinations should be available.

The juvenile victims of sex offenses are without adequate protection against unnecessary publicity and further corruption in our courts. To safeguard them the jurisdiction of the juvenile court should be extended to deal with adult sex offenders against children, and all safeguards of that court be accorded to their victims; or if these cases are dealt with in other courts, the facts revealed in the juvenile court should be made available, and special precaution should be taken for the protection of the children, as here suggested.

13. Rural social work.

Work for children needing special care has been neglected in rural parts of the country. Social conditions in rural communities are often as acute as in urban communities. The principles of child care, as enumerated above, are applicable to rural needs. Agencies for rural service should be encouraged and should be adapted to the peculiar needs of rural communities. The county is usually the best administrative unit.

14. Scientific information.

There is urgent need of a more adequate body of scientific literature dealing with principles and practice in the children's field of social work, and the meeting of this need is a responsibility resting on those so engaged. Careful interpretation and analysis of methods and results of care and the publishing of these findings must precede the correcting of many present evils in practice. Boards of directors, trustees and managers should particularly consider participation in the preparation of such a body of facts and experience as being a vital part of the work of their staff members.

SUMMARY OF GENERAL MINIMUM STANDARDS

Economic and social standards.

At a general session of the Washington conference the economic and social aspects of child-welfare standards were discussed. While detailed standards were not formulated in this wide field it was recognized that an adequate wage for the father, wholesome and pleasant housing and living conditions and the abolition of racial discrimination are fundamentals to the realization of any child-welfare program.

Recreation.

The desire for recreation and amusement is a normal expression of every child, which must be considered in any program for the physical and moral education of children. Parents and others charged with their care should be educated as to the importance of recreation. Public provision should be made for wholesome play and recreation, both indoor and outdoor, under trained leadership, and especially adapted to the different age periods of the child.

Commercialized amusements should be safeguarded by official supervisors having a scientific knowledge of recreation.

Child-welfare legislation.

The child-welfare legislation of every State requires careful reconsideration as a whole at reasonable intervals, in order that necessary revision and coordination may be made and that new provisions may be incorporated in harmony with the best experience of the day. In states where children's laws have not had careful supervision as a whole within recent years, a child-welfare committee or commission should be created for this purpose. Laws enacted by the several states should be in line with national ideals and uniform as far as desirable, in view of diverse conditions in the several states.

Child-welfare legislation should be framed by those who are thoroughly familiar with the conditions and needs of children and with administrative difficulties. It should be drafted by a competent lawyer in such form as to accomplish the end desired by child-welfare experts and at the same time be consistent with existing laws."

SOCIAL LEGISLATION IN 1919

The following is a summary of the legislation of 1919 relating to charitable and correctional work:

Chapter 45 repeals article XXI of the State Charities Law relating to The Anchorage at Elmira.

Chapter 57 amends the County Law in relation to county tuberculosis hospitals and repeals section 2 of chapter 268 of the Laws of 1918 relating to the same subject.

Chapter 67 relates to the care and maintenance of indigent patients of the town of Cortlandt in the Peekskill Hospital.

Chapter 83 amends the State Finance Law in relation to purchases by State departments, boards and commissions, permitting the same to be made from the United States government, with the approval of the Comptroller, if the price be lower than the ruling market price, notwithstanding any provision of statute inconsistent therewith.

Chapter 104 authorized the electors of the town of Ticonderoga to vote on the question of appropriating money annually to the Moses Hospital.

Chapter 110 amends the Poor Law in relation to the expense of burials of soldiers, sailors or marines.

Chapter 130 amends section 44 of chapter 217 of the laws of 1914 by changing the name of the department of poor of the city of Buffalo to department of public welfare, and the superintendent thereof to the director of public welfare.

Chapter 136 amends the Education Law by placing the New York State School for the Blind at Batavia under the jurisdiction of the State Education Department. The statute provides that "Nothing herein contained shall in any way deprive the State Board of Charities of its powers of visitation and inspection in regard to said school for the blind as provided in the constitution nor affect in any way the fiscal control of said school now exercised under the State Charities Law by the Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities."

Chapter 140 repeals chapter 625 of the Laws of 1913 establishing a Commission on Sites, Grounds and Buildings.

Chapter 164 amends the Education Law in relation to the cost of maintenance and instruction of pupils in institutions for the deaf and dumb.

Chapter 305 amends the State Finance Law by adding section 52, providing for an exchange of surplus farm products between State institutions.

Chapter 373 amends section 153 of the General Municipal Law, in relation to local boards of child welfare, permitting allowances if otherwise proper to a widow whose deceased husband was "(1) a citizen of the United States and a resident of the State at the time of his death; or (2) a resident of the State for a period of two years immediately preceding his decease and whose child or children were born in the United States and who has declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States within a period of two years immediately preceding his decease."

Chapter 416 amends the Penal Law in relation to sentence to New York House of Refuge, State Agricultural and Industrial School and the State Training School for Girls.

Chapter 421 amends the Public Health Law in relation to the establishment of hospitals or camps for the treatment of pulmonary tuberculosis.

Chapter 477 amends section 197 of the State Charities Law with relation to the transfer of inmates of reformatories for boys to a penitentiary or to the State Reformatory at Elmira.

Chapter 633, constituting chapter 71 of the Consolidated Laws and known as the Mental Deficiency Law, continues the State Commission for the Care of the Feeble-minded under the name of the State Commission for Mental Defectives. The Commission consists of three members, one of whom shall be a reputable physician, a graduate of an incorporated medical college with at least ten years' experience in the actual practice of his profession who shall be chairman of the Commission and who shall be appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate for a term of three years. The other members of the Commission shall be the Fiscal Supervisor of State Charities and the Secretary of the State Board of Charities. The general powers and duties of the Commission are to

1. Administer the law in relation to the custody, care and training of mental defectives;

2. Prepare and keep a record of mental defectives in the State as defined in the preceding article and provide accommodations for all such as require care and training in suitable institutions; and for this purpose the Education Department and any other State agency shall furnish such aid and information, within its power, as the Commission may require:

3. Have power to establish and conduct or to take part with other State departments, municipal corporations and incorporated hospitals in the establishment and conduct of mental clinics in such places and at such times as in their judgment shall seem to be best;

4. Direct the transfer of inmates on the original order of commitment to another State institution for mental defectives where they can be conveniently received, whenever in its discretion a State institution for mental defectives shall become overcrowded with inmates, or the number of buildings shall be reduced by fire, or for other cause, the expenses of such transfer to be paid for from funds provided for the maintenance of the State institution from which the inmates are transferred;

5. Report annually to the Legislature its acts and proceedings for the year ending June 30th, last preceding, with such facts in regard to mental defectives as it may deem necessary for the information of the Legislature, including an estimate of the number of additional beds, if any, that will be required for the accommodation of mental defectives during the ensuing year;

6. Recommend to the Legislature when necessary the establishment of new institutions and the type thereof.

7. Determine from time to time the capacity and population of each of the State institutions for mental defectives and incorporate a statement of such capacity in its annual report to the Legislature.

REVISION OF LAWS RELATING TO CHILDREN

Partly as a result of the importance of the conservation of child life which was brought out among the allied nations as essential to winning the war, the whole country is waking to a realization that adequate protection and proper training must be afforded children at all times for the further development of the nation. In the recognition that there are in existing social and industrial conditions elements which are increasingly sources of danger to children, there has been agitation for several years past in a number of states for a revision of laws relating to children. In several this has resulted in the creation of commissions or in the formation of a committee of citizens from some organization interested in social betterment for the purpose of studying conditions and suggesting revision of these laws. States in which commissions have reported to the Legislatures after surveys covering from one to four years are Ohio, Missouri, Minnesota, Delaware, Oregon, and Michigan. A commission in Wisconsin and committees in New Hampshire and Montana have not yet completed their studies. During the past year, new commissions have been created in Connecticut, Indiana, Nebraska, South Carolina, and Kansas.

As a result of the 1919 Convocation of the University of the State of New York, a committee was formed for the purpose of taking up the necessity of action by this State in the matter. This committee included representatives from the five State departments or commissions concerned with the welfare of children, namely, the Department of Education, the Department of Labor, the Department of Health, the State Board of Charities, and the State Probation Commission. The State Board of Charities was represented on that committee by its secretary. The first recommendation from the committee was that the Legislature appoint a commission to be composed of members of the Legislature, representatives of the departments interested and representative citizens for the purpose of studying existing children's laws and making such recommendations as the study should reveal to be necessary. Organizations engaged in any form of social work have long appreciated the fact that many of our laws relating to children are obsolete, many are vague and inapplicable, and many are insufficient. As a preliminary step in furnishing a basis for the work of the proposed commission, the Board has held conferences with groups of interested workers with the destitute, the neglected, and the delinquent child, so that those most vitally affected by any legislation to be suggested may have opportunity to present the results of their experience with the present laws.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LEGISLATION

1. Appointment of a commission for the purpose of studying the laws pertaining to children and making such recommendations for their revision as such a study may indicate.

2. Provision for a commission to select a site for a school for delinquent boys to take the place of the present New York House of Refuge on Randall's Island.

3. Revision of laws pertaining to the care of the deaf and dumb children as wards of the State. At present such children up to twelve years of age are subject to commitment by poor law officers and thereafter by the State Department of Education. The latter should be the controlling factor through the whole period of their school life.

4. Revision of the Poor Law with reference to superintendents of the poor and overseers. The former should be removed from the field of politics and be civil service appointees and the latter should be appointed by the superintendents.

5. Constitutional amendment granting equity powers to children's courts and courts of domestic relations in order to provide courts of competent jurisdiction to enforce laws relating to child welfare.

6. Further enactment to remedy a defect in the wording of chapter 373 of the Laws of 1919 which amends the Child Welfare Statute by authorizing the granting of allowances to the widows of certain aliens.

7. The amendment of section 315 of the Public Health Law to increase the minimum air space per child and distance between beds in institution dormitories used for the care of infants.

8. Legislation providing that all placements of children in foster homes be reported to the State and for the formulation and enforcement of standards for the placing and supervision of such children.

APPROPRIATIONS FOR STATE INSTITUTIONS

The recommendations for appropriations do not include all for which the institutions have asked nor all that the Board thinks should be made to bring the institutions to their maximum capacity of usefulness or accommodation. Much new construction is needed but owing to the extremely high cost of material and labor it would not be advisable to undertake it during the coming year. It is the opinion of the Board, after careful consideration of the requests made by the institutions and lengthy conferences with the State Architect and the Fiscal Supervisor, that new construction should now be restricted, even though much needed.

The following recommendations are the result of careful study of the most pressing needs of the institutions and the available funds:

In accordance with the by-laws of the Board it is the custom of the commissioners to visit as need may require the institutions in their respective districts. Each of the State institutions is visited annually by the President of the Board and one or more of the other commissioners, either individually or as members of committees. A majority of the other public institutions and a large number of the private are also visited by members of the Board. In addition, the Secretary and other officers make visits of inspection to institutions of all classes and the members of the Board's staff make careful and detailed general inspections, the reports of which are considered by the Board and its committees. Appropriate action is taken with reference to each such report, and a copy is usually transmitted to the administrative officers. It is the policy of the Board to have at least one general inspection of each institution, society and agency each year and, in addition, special inspections and inquiries are made as occasion requires. The inspection work of the Board was considerably affected during the fiscal year by the absence in war service of three of its inspectors, one of its transfer agents, and two of the four division superintendents.

Notwithstanding the handicap resulting from the absence of these members of the staff, the work of the inspectors, transfer agents and investigators during the year was as follows:

General inspections:

Almshouses	87
Boards of child welfare.....	16
County and city poor-law administration.....	16
Day nurseries	1
Dispensaries	244
Fresh air charities	14
Homes for aged.....	24

Total general inspections	975
Special inspections and reports	28
Special inquiries and reports	42
Visits to children in foster homes.....	440
Visits to institutions, public offices and individuals..	3,454
Miscellaneous reports	90
Examinations of State, alien and nonresident poor persons	1,696
Removal of alien and nonresident poor person.....	1,285
Transfers of alien and nonresident persons.....	122
Mental examinations	1,051

The reports of inspection were carefully considered by the Board and, despite the high cost of commodities and of labor and the difficulty of securing satisfactory employees, the conditions of the institutions were found generally satisfactory. Whenever it became necessary to bring to the attention of the managers serious needs or defects there has been willing and ready response, so far as practicable, to the requests of the Board for remedial action. While there were increases in appropriations to public institutions and in the rates of payment for the care of public charges in private institutions in most localities throughout the State, these increases were in many cases inadequate to meet the increased cost of administration, and necessary expenditures required in many instances the use of special funds, and frequently the creation of additional indebtedness, for general maintenance purposes. The high cost of material and labor for new construction caused an almost entire cessation in building operations and a delay in making of needed improvements of less extensive character. Following the conclusion of the war, however, there has been some revival of construction work but, except where new buildings are an absolute necessity, the high cost of materials and the difficult industrial conditions still existing will prevent new construction for some time to come. The reports of inspection show generally, therefore, a satisfactory situation so far as administrative conditions are concerned, but there has been no improvement in the condition of the plant and equipment in most institutions and a deterioration in some.

RATING OF INSTITUTIONS

When reports of general inspection are considered by the Board or its division committees, the institutions are with some exceptions classified on the basis of plant and administration. Institutions whose reports show no defects or only those so minor in character as not materially to affect the efficiency of their work are placed in Class I. Those showing more important needs and defects are placed in Class II, unless such defects are so serious as to endanger the health, safety or welfare of the inmates, in which case they are placed in Class III. The following tables show the rating of the institutions of the more numerous groups, and the comparison of such ratings for the last two years.

The above tables show an improvement in administrative conditions notwithstanding the handicaps under which the institutions have worked during the trying war times and the early part of the reconstruction period. In the remaining groups, which are smaller in number, the conditions are little changed from those of the preceding year and the relative number of those placed in Class I is approximately the same as for homes for children. The result in general, considering all the circumstances, is gratifying, and the managers of public and private institutions are to be highly commended for their unselfishness and willingness to sacrifice time and money for the benefit of the wards of the State.

For the purpose of inspection and the general supervision of the institutions subject to its supervision, the Board's work is divided into four divisions as follows:

1. Division of Children, dealing with all institutions and agencies making provision for children who become dependent upon the public, except the sick and the mentally defective.

II. Division of Medical Charities, through which the Board supervises dispensaries, hospitals, and sanatoria.

III. Division of Adult Wards, having to do with the almshouses, homes for the aged, and lodging houses for adults; also the care of nonresident, alien and Indian poor and the removal to their places of settlement of those who belong in other states and countries.

IV. Division of Mental Defect and Delinquency, having charge of the problems of mental defectiveness, epilepsy, and delinquency, and the inspection of institutions for inmates belonging to those classes.

I. DIVISION OF CHILDREN

Committee on Children: Commissioner Stewart, Chairman; Commissioners Frankel, Gillespie, Gratwick, Higley, Lewis, and Ridder.

James H. Foster, Superintendent of Division.

The Division of Children is charged with the work of the Board in relation to children, except those in institutions for the mentally defective and for the sick. It maintains the Board's relations with institutions and agencies for children under its supervision through inspections, made usually once during each year, or more frequently as special circumstances may require, and through conferences, correspondence, and visits with public officials, managers, and superintendents, and other persons interested in child welfare. It endeavors to assist, by advice and suggestion, institutions and agencies in effecting changes and improvements in their work, both in matters called to their attention by the reports of the Board's inspections and in those of their own initiation. On account of the number of institutions to be supervised, the variety of their work, and the necessity for numerous field inspections, for example, in case of placed-out children, eleven of the Board's inspectors are usually assigned to the work of this division.

Ten meetings of the Committee on Children were held with an average attendance of six of the seven members. The committee has considered all reports of inspectors on institutions and agencies belonging to the Division of Children and has made recommendations to the Board for appropriate action in each case. Reports of conditions which have demanded special attention have been referred to the members of the committee for inquiry and report, with the result that the interest and coöperation of institution authorities and other responsible persons have been secured and progress made toward bringing about desirable changes and improvements. Members of the committee have personally visited many of the institutions and agencies assigned to the Division of Children and have conferred with their managers, in regard not only to the general policies, but to the details of their work.

The institutions and agencies supervised through the Division on June 30, 1919, may be classified as follows:

STATE INSTITUTIONS

The four State institutions for the care of children, not mentally defective or sick, are the State Agricultural and Industrial School at Industry, receiving boys 12 to 16 years of age, committed for delinquency; the New York State Training School for Girls at Hudson, receiving girls not over 16 years of age, committed for delinquency; the Thomas Indian School at Iroquois, for destitute Indian boys and girls; and the New York State School for the Blind, at Batavia.

STATE AGRICULTURAL AND INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Industry, Monroe County

Originally established in 1846 as the Western House of Refuge for Juvenile Delinquents.

President of Board of Managers, Mrs. Fanny A. Whitney, 22 South Goodman Street, Rochester; Secretary, John McKie, Rochester; Superintendent, Hobart H. Todd.

The school now has capacity for 755 inmates. The number present, July 1, 1918, was 881; 547 were admitted during the fiscal year, making the total number under care 1428; 713 were discharged, leaving, June 30, 1919, 715. The average census was 765 and the weekly per capita cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed $10.32; excluding this value, $7.05.

The State Agricultural and Industrial School is designed for the reception and education, under such disciplinary conditions as may be imposed by the school authorities, of boys over twelve and under sixteen years of age committed for delinquency.

Prior to April 30, 1918, when chapter 388 of the Laws of 1918 took effect, limiting the age at which commitments to the school might be made, a considerable number of boys under the age of twelve years were received as delinquents. The intent of this amendment to the law was to prevent the commitment of boys under the age of twelve years and thus to relieve the school of the necessity of dealing with children of tender years as a part of a group composed principally of older boys.

It appears, however, that under section 2184 of the Penal Law, boys under the age of twelve "convicted of a crime amounting to a felony" are still committed to the institution. The same objections exist to the presence of such boys that led to the exclusion from the school of boys under the age of twelve convicted of less serious offenses and it is desirable that legislation be enacted to prevent the commitment of any child under twelve years of age to the school, regardless of the nature of his offense.

Among the boys committed to the school are a considerable number who, though committed as ungovernable or disorderly, appear to be in fact truants only. It is manifestly unjust to these boys to place them in a correctional institution designed for the reception of delinquents whose offenses are of a more serious nature or criminal character. In his annual report the Superintendent says:

"It is doubtless true that many truants have ungovernable tendencies, but it was never intended to give such an interpretation to the term "ungovernable" as would permit the sending of boys who would not attend school to a place that was established for the care of uncontrollable and vicious children. It is impossible to keep the fellow who plays hookey entirely separate from his more experienced and hardened associates, and what the truant has not learned about badness and evil ways before he enters such an institution, he soon acquires after his admission, and a well meaning but misguided dispenser of justice is responsible for the opportunity which he has given the youngster to become schooled in that in which later he may become an adept."

Legislation is needed to prevent the commitment of boys whose only offense is truancy to the State Industrial School or any other institution planned for the reception of those more definitely delinquent.

The importance of the State Agricultural and Industrial School lies not only in its actual work but in its influence upon reformatory activities in this and other countries. Its reputation, as one of the best planned and conducted institutions of its kind, attracts to it visitors interested in the problems of delinquency and its remedy not only from our own country, but from Europe and the East.

NEW YORK STATE TRAINING SCHOOL FOR GIRLS

Hudson, Columbia County

Established in 1904

(Originally established in 1881 as the House of Refuge for Women)

President of Board of Managers, Mrs. Annie Winsor Allen, 9 Myrtle Street, White Plains; Secretary, Mrs. Helen Esselstyn, Hudson; Superintendent, Hortense V. Bruce, M.D.

The school has capacity for 369 inmates. The number present July 1, 1918, was 369; 184 were admitted during the fiscal year, making the total number under care 553; 178 were discharged, leaving June 30, 1919, 375, of whom 4 were infants. The average census was 369, and the weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $10.64; excluding this value, $9.92.

The training school receives girls from twelve to sixteen years of age, committed as delinquents. In order to accomplish its purposes of checking their progress toward vicious or criminal practices and assisting their return to social normality, the institution is organized on an educational rather than a correctional basis, and endeavors to emphasize its functions as a disciplinary school, rather than as a penal institution. Its efforts are directed toward the return of its pupils to life under normal conditions and accordingly include both school instruction and industrial training, such as is regarded as likely to make it possible for discharged pupils to obtain suitable employment at a living wage.

The educational influences of the school also include careful attention to the physical and mental needs of its pupils, diversified recreational activities, and an attempt to produce, so far as is possible under institutional conditions and under the restraints and limitations incident to disciplinary needs, the atmosphere of home life in the cottage groups.

The school endeavors to continue its influence over its pupils through a parole system, whereby inmates are paroled, upon fulfillment of conditions prescribed by the Board of Managers, to the supervision of parole agents during minority, but are liable to be returned to the institution in case of failure in good conduct.

As has been shown in previous reports, the presence among the pupils of the school of many girls who are of inferior intelligence or of abnormal mentality makes necessary considerable modifications of any program designed for the normally-minded, and with the further facts of the various types of delinquency, of harmful environment, and of experiences destructive of trust and confidence, before admission to the school, points clearly to the need of persons of exceptional qualifications to deal with the inmates of the school. It seems to be increasingly difficult to obtain, at the wages paid, employees who exhibit the needed characteristics of sympathy and understanding combined with firmness and intelligence.

The affirmation by court decision during the past year of the right of the school to return, to the custody of the sheriff of the county from which she came, any girl incapable of being materially benefited by the discipline of the institution, while of assistance to the institution in disposing of certain of its problems, emphasizes once more the need for institutional provision for delinquents of the subnormal type. In the absence of such provision, the managers of the training school are under the necessity of retaining pupils whose progress can hardly be satisfactory and whose presence prevents the reception of girls of the type for which the institution is particularly designed. Since this is the case, it is evidently desirable that the pupils be carefully classified and to a great extent segregated on the basis of capacity as well as character; that particular attention be paid to those of the superior group for whom, as most likely to reward the efforts expended, every practicable advantage is justified; and that the institutional program be radically modified to meet the necessities of the inferior groups with regard to treatment within the school, to parole, and to provision, by legal enactment if necessary, for permanent care.

The results of such expedients, while protecting the State against the consequences of setting free to follow their own devices a considerable number of the unfit, and guarding the unfortunates concerned against the evils to which they so easily fall a prey, would in a short time be singularly unfortunate to the institution and to the State. The school would quickly lose its characteristic features and become a mixture of custodial asylum and disciplinary school with complicated and well-nigh hopeless administrative problems; the position of the superior group would prove intolerable; and the State would be deprived of a necessary part of its reformatory machinery. Even now the facilities of the school are overtaxed and admission is denied to girls in need of its influences because there is no room to receive them. The evident solution of the problem lies in provision elsewhere for the permanent care of the mentally defective delinquent girls, and a readjustment of the school's organization to meet the needs of superior and inferior groups of girls capable of being benefited by its educational and reformative processes.

THOMAS INDIAN SCHOOL

Iroquois, Erie County

Established 1875

President of Board of Managers, William S. Lawton, Lawton; Secretary, Maj. Herman W. Johnson, M.D., Gowanda; Superintendent, Mrs. Emily P. Lincoln.

The school has capacity for 184 inmates. The number present July 1, 1918, was 184; 34 were admitted during the fiscal year, making the total number under care, 218; 40 were discharged; leaving, June 30, 1919, a census of 178, of whom 83 were boys and 95 girls. The average census was 173 and the average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $9.97; excluding this value, $7.82.

The Thomas Indian School, originally established under private control, was taken over by the State in 1875 and receives destitute and orphan Indian children from the several reservations within the State. It has a normal capacity for 184 pupils but this number is often exceeded, and the school census has at times been somewhat over 200. In spite of the reception of a larger number of pupils than the buildings are designed to accommodate, it is reported that there has been for several years past a long waiting list of children eligible for admission to the school and in need of its benefits who cannot be received by reason of the limited accommodations available.

Pupils received at the school are in general admitted at a younger age than was the case a few years ago and spend a longer time under its influences. It is apparent that the education and training which they receive and the ideals and standards of living which they acquire are of utmost importance, not only to the individual pupils but to the communities to which they return. The school, accordingly, is organized to provide both school instruction and industrial training. The industrial work for boys has been to a large extent agricultural, but the use of tools and elementary shop work have also been taught and considerable development in this direction may be expected to follow the completion and equipment of the shop building now under construction. The girls are taught domestic arts, such as sewing and the making of garments, cooking, laundry work, and general housekeeping.

The economic and social conditions which prevail in many of the homes from which the pupils of the school are received render the setting up of high standards and the instilling of fine ideals of home life perhaps the most important of the institution's tasks. Under the present physical limitations of the school's buildings, there is limited opportunity of accomplishing these ends by the concrete methods of actual experience. For this purpose, it is believed that the most effective means lie in the construction of home cottages, to which the older pupils, both boys and girls, may be assigned and where the complete processes of ordinary home life and housekeeping may be learned by actual everyday experience.

Special facilities for the care and training of young children are also needed and the erection of a kindergarten building for these purposes is recommended.

NEW YORK STATE SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND

Batavia, Genesee County

Established 1865

President of Board of Managers, F. Park Lewis, M.D., 454 Franklin Street, Buffalo; Secretary and Superintendent, Charles A. Hamilton, M.A.

This school has a capacity for 175 pupils. The number present July 1, 1918, was 163; 41 pupils were received during the fiscal year, making the total number under care 204; 52 were discharged, leaving 152 present on June 30, 1919. The average number was 121, and the weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $13.15; excluding this value, $12.84.

The New York State School for the Blind receives "blind persons of suitable age and capacity for instruction" from all portions of the State excepting New York City and the neighboring counties. Admission is obtained through application to the board of trustees; no tuition or other charges are made, but clothing and certain necessary traveling expenses for indigent pupils are paid by the counties from which they come.

The educational work of the school is directed not only to the ordinary scholastic and industrial activities, accepted as suitable for the blind, but to the development of special capacity in individual pupils, with the purpose of encouraging them to higher educational accomplishments, or training for skilled employment.

The relations of the State Board of Charities to the school, under its general powers and with reference to chapter 136, Laws of 1919, are discussed in another section of this report. (See page 144.)

SCHOOLS FOR THE BLIND AND THE DEAF

The work of schools for the blind and deaf, while involving many of the problems of institutions for the care of children not thus handicapped, is in its educational aspects more highly specialized, requiring specially trained teachers, a larger proportion of instructors, and more extensive equipment than in schools for the physically normal. The State Board of Charities exercises a general supervision over them as required by the Constitution and the statutes, but the State Commissioner of Education, to whose visitation they are also subject, is charged by section 970 of the Education Law with detailed and specific oversight and direction of their educational methods and work.

Such schools in receipt of State funds for the care and training of pupils admitted under the provisions of the State Education Law are as follows:

The following institutions, in which blind children are received for care and training, do not receive State aid, but receive payments from counties and cities for the care and maintenance of such children as are accepted by poor law officials as public charges. They cared for a total of 102 blind children during the year 1918-1919, and are included in the list of homes for children which appears later in this report:

Brooklyn Home for Blind, Crippled, and Defective Children, Port Jefferson.

Catholic Institute for the Blind, New York City.

International Sunshine Branch for the Blind, Brooklyn.

St. Joseph's Asylum for Blind Girls (of the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin for the Protection of Homeless and Destitute Children), Staten Island.

The last named also cares for twenty-four blind women not included in the census of homes for children.

DEPENDENT CHILDREN

The number of children cared for by institutions and agencies, other than those for the mentally defective and the sick, has continued to increase. The following table shows the number of each group of dependent children under care at the close of each of the past five fiscal years:

Grand totals.....	41,588	45,820	54,031	58,142	61,028

This tabulation indicates that the number of children cared for has increased by 2,886 during the year, mainly among those whose widowed mothers are assisted in their own homes by boards of child welfare. The number under institutional care, including delinquents, but excluding the blind and the deaf, has decreased by 628. Decreases have also occurred each year since 1915, but this must be considered in connection with the number maintained by the Department of Public Charities of the City of New York in order to obtain a true estimate of the situation in the State.

Reports from that Department show children under care at the end of the several fiscal years as follows:

	1915	1916	1917	1918	1919
	23,270	22,117	21,099	20,310	18,979
Decrease	1,153	1,018	789	1,331

It appears from these figures that more than the entire decrease from year to year is accounted for in New York City since 1916 and that the number of public charges in institutions for children in the remainder of the State has actually increased. While it is difficult, if not impossible, to make any accurate statistical estimate as to the various factors which have produced these results, certain general conclusions may perhaps be fairly drawn.

During the years 1914 and 1915, conditions in the country at large were much disturbed and the number of persons in need of public relief grew rapidly. But under the stimulus of war conditions and general industrial activity, combined with extraordinary efforts on the part of relief organizations, there seem to have resulted, beginning with 1915, a reversal of this tendency. At the same time the cutting off of immigration since 1914 has operated both to increase the demand for labor and to decrease the number of recently arrived immigrants whose children for one reason or another become public dependents. It seems likely that this factor has been especially felt in New York City which was formerly the greatest gateway for immigration and where many of the recently arrived remain, at least during the first part of their career in the United States.

A further cause for the decrease indicated is found in the work of the boards of child welfare. During the period considered, the number of children in families of widowed mothers receiving allowances from the boards has grown from none to 22,921. As each of these must be considered as potentially a proper subject for institutional care in default of the allowance made to the mother, it is more than possible that here is to be found the most important single cause for the reduction of institutional population. The New York City board has been active throughout this period and the decrease in the number of children dependent upon the Department of Public Charities is believed to be largely due to its work.

The influenza epidemic, occurring late in 1918 and continuing into 1919, must not be overlooked as a factor operating in the opposite direction. In view of the present economic conditions and of recent health conditions it seems fair to assume that, were it possible to disregard cases arising from this cause, there would be an actual decrease in the number of children maintained at public expense in institutions throughout the State as well as in the city of New York. But reports of public officers and others conversant with the situation in various parts of the State indicate a great increase in the number of children dependent on account of the death of one or both parents from this cause. Although it is estimated that approximately 1,200 such children were accepted as public charges in the City of New York, reports of the United States Public Health Service and other medical authorities indicate that the incidence of the epidemic was less severe in that city than in other large centers of population and in the rural districts and smaller towns of the State.

Finally it appears that the Department of Public Charities of the City of New York has been increasingly careful in its investigation of applications for relief and has thus been guarded against the acceptance of children for whose maintenance other provision might be made.

HOMES FOR CHILDREN AND INFANT ASYLUMS

The problems involved in successful institutional care for children have been often and widely discussed. In brief, they relate to adopting modern and progressive practices in providing for ordinary and obvious material and physical needs, and to solving educational and social problems arising from the artificial conditions of institutional life and from the various disabilities and handicaps from which the children in many cases suffer. It is encouraging to find, from the supervisory work of the Board, that gross faults in the physical care of children in the institutions visited have largely disappeared from among the defects noticed by the Board's inspectors; and, especially in certain of the larger institutions, the principles developed by scientific studies in child welfare are applied in the accurate planning of dietaries, in careful periodical physical examinations and appropriate treatment based on their results, and in attempts to differentiate and meet the needs of individual children, especially those presenting special problems. At the same time it must be admitted that there is still need in many cases for appreciation of the advantages to be gained from the study and application of the theory and practice of child care as developed by the experience of progressive institutions and the studies of private and governmental agencies.

The statistical tables presented later show 2,653 among the children discharged during the year, and 4,440 among those remaining at the end of the year who had been under institutional care for five years or more. There is no doubt of the profound influence upon these children of long continued institutional life, which is at best an artificial and makeshift substitute for the home care and training of which they are unfortunately deprived. It is the firm conviction of the Board that both the institutions and the public officers by whom children are committed should give especial consideration to those children who seem likely to be dependent for long periods, in order, as far as practicable, to shorten their stay within the institution and to render the experience and training of those who must remain as useful as possible with a view to self-support through occupations suited to the best capacities of the individuals concerned. Many of the children discharged during the year had reached an age appropriate to the beginning of industrial education, a fact which emphasizes the importance of provision for at least the elements of such training under institutional auspices or by taking advantage, as is done by some institutions in the larger cities, of the opportunities offered by trade and other special schools by sending selected children to them.

Homes for children and infant asylums under the supervision of the Board include four county and city institutions for children, and 152 under private control but in receipt of payments from counties, cities, and towns for the care and training of children committed to them. These private institutions include 14 infant asylums, 9 institutions for the mentally or physically defective, or children needing special care, 12 for delinquent or truant children, and 117 for normal children. The aggregate number of children in the care of this entire group during the year was 53,048, including 34,052 present July 1, 1918, and 18,996 received during the year. Of this number 19,595 were discharged during the year, leaving 33,453 children present on June 30, 1919. This number includes 2,909 children cared for in boarding homes under the supervision of the institutions, the remainder being provided for within the institutions.

The institutions to which these children were committed, the number of public charges and private charges cared for, the average population during the year, and the number present in each on June 30, 1919, are as follows:

ADMISSIONS

The total number of children admitted to institutions as reported to the Board, during the year ending June 30, 1919, was 18,996. These were received as follows:

Received by judicial commitment:

For destitution	48
For improper guardianship	2,495
For delinquency	2,513
For truancy	374
Committed by poor-law officers	7,713
Received from parents or guardians	4,205
Returned from foster homes	236
Transferred from other institutions or returned from hospitals	1,103
Otherwise received	304
Total	18,996

These children are further classified on the basis of their age when admitted as follows:

Less than one year of age	2,087
Between one and two years	879
Between two and five years	3,172
Between five and fourteen years	11,177
Over fourteen years	1,681
Total	18,996

The 13,148 children received on commitment by public officials and the 4,205 received from parents or guardians are, with few exceptions, new cases for institutional care. The causes for dependency of those received on commitment by public officials, so far as such causes can be interpreted from the individual records of admission filed with the Board, are shown in the following tabulations:

GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS ORPHANS' HOME

Of this number 2,909 children were maintained in boarding foster homes under the supervision of the institutions, while the remaining number were cared for within the institutions themselves. The following table shows an age classification of the children whether in boarding homes or in institutions, the latter also grouped according to the unit size.

Totals.....	144	5,322	23,430	4,701	33,453

Although these institutions are commonly called orphan asylums, only a few of the children cared for are full orphans. Of the total number referred to above, 13,565 had both parents living, 15,337 were half orphans, and 2,208 were orphans, while 2,343 were foundlings or illegitimate children or those regarding whose parents no information could be secured. Of this entire number, 27,650 were committed children for whose support counties, cities, and towns were directly responsible to the institutions; 3,878 were maintained in whole or in part by relatives or guardians; while 1,925 were maintained free of charge by the institutions.

Those maintained at public expense grouped according to the length of time they had remained under institutional control are as follows:

		Per cent.
Retained less than 1 year.....	9,696	35.07
Retained from one to two years.....	4,907	17.75
Retained from two to three years.....	3,486	12.60

		Per cent.
Retained from three to five years.....	5,121	18.52
Retained from five to seven years.....	2,658	9.61
Retained from seven to ten years.....	1,456	5.27
Retained more than ten years.....	326	1.18

These statistics appear to furnish a basis for certain approximate deductions as to the average stay of children under institutional care, the shifting character of the greater part of institutional population and the prolonged residence of certain children.

Assuming that the average length of stay for each year group of children discharged is found midway between the limits of the group — that is that children discharged within one year after admission average six months in the institution, those discharged between one and three years average two years, and so on — and giving proportionate weight to each group, it appears that the average stay under institutional care is approximately two and one-half years. A similar conclusion is indicated by consideration of the numbers admitted, discharged, and remaining, over a period of several years. Except for a continued but comparatively small preponderance of discharges over admissions, these totals remain substantially equal to each other from year to year, and bear a constant relation of more than one-half to the number remaining at the end of each year, indicating a rate of change which would, if maintained throughout the whole group of children, renew the entire institution population in less than three years.

But it must not be supposed that the situation is as simple as might be argued from an average stay or average rate of change. Many children in fact remain under institutional care for periods far in excess of any average stay. The tabulation of length of stay of children remaining at the end of the year shows that 34.51 per cent of these children had been under institutional care for three to ten years or more, while the table of discharges shows that 31.34 per cent of those discharged had been under care for similar periods.

It may then fairly be said that for the greater number of children coming under institutional care, it is a temporary condition, so brief as hardly to be likely to leave any important impress of what is generally understood by the term "institutionalism"; but thus to dismiss this group only emphasizes the institution's responsibility for the minority who remain for longer periods, and no effort can be spared, in fairness to these children, by institution authorities or by responsible public officers, to secure for such of them as are physically and mentally fit, discharge to more normal surroundings, and in the meantime to make their stay under institutional care as far as possible a practical preparation for the business of life. Another phase of the problem lies in the fact that many of these children are handicapped by physical or mental defects or peculiarities which make independent self-support on their part doubtful or impossible; for these some form of custodial care or permanent guardianship is beyond doubt necessary.

The high death rate in infant asylums indicated by the table on page 75 must be interpreted in view of the fact that several of these institutions are in fact both hospitals for sick children and asylums for the well. Institutions of this class receive many infants in such physical condition that there is little hope that they can long survive and the large number of deaths resulting in such cases cannot in any sense be considered as due to causes arising after admission to the institution. The plan of securing wet nurses for young infants is often followed in New York City with good success but it is not always practicable to secure such service. Nutritional disorders and failure in adjustment to artificial diet are apparently the cause of many deaths among infants in institutions. Experience, however, also points to the conclusion that young children do not thrive when large numbers are cared for in common, even under the most favorable conditions, and that the chances of survival are much greater among children receiving individual care under home conditions than among those retained under institutional care, even though received in good physical condition. It is believed that this condition is due largely to cross infections which might, in part at least, be avoided by increasing the air and floor space per child in institution dormitories and reducing as far as possible the size of dormitory and other rooms. To this end, it is suggested that section 315 of the Public Health Law be amended so far as concerns institutions caring for children under two years of age to require an increased air space per child and a greater space between beds, or the use of cubicles providing practically a separate room for each infant, such requirements not to be subject to modification by permit of a local board of health. A report of the Public Health Committee of the New York Academy of Medicine, made in 1917, recommends the minimum air space of from 1,000 to 1,500 cubic feet per child, and a minimum distance of six feet between beds.

BOARDS OF CHILD WELFARE

Two counties in which no appropriations had previously been made for the work of the Boards of Child Welfare, Delaware and Wyoming, made appropriations during 1919. In Delaware county the appropriation was not made until June 3, 1919, and, as the board had not organized, no report for the year ending June 30, 1919, has been made.

Thirty-four boards are now active in thirty-eight counties, including the New York City board, which covers five counties, and the Dutchess county board, created by chapter 354 of the Laws of 1917 to deal with all work for dependent and delinquent children in the county, including the usual work of a board of child welfare. Westchester county does not operate under the Child Welfare Law but has a Department of Child Welfare under its Department of Charities and Corrections which grants allowances to widowed mothers as part of its work in caring for all dependent and delinquent children. The extent of the work performed in these thirty-nine counties in caring for children in the homes of their mothers during the year ending June 30, 1919, is indicated in the following table:

Totals for the year ending June 30, 1918.	7,411	21,339	$1,813,022 89

A comparison of totals for the years 1918 and 1919 shows the growth of the work of the boards in the past year. It should be noted in this connection, however, that deaths occurring as a result of the influenza epidemic of 1918 were a large factor in the increase of the number of beneficiaries during this period. A child committed to an institution costs the public from $13.33 to $24.14 per month, while the average monthly allowance per child paid by the boards of child welfare ranges from $3.34 to $10.37 as shown by the table. The per capita cost of this form of care means nothing, however, unless related to the work as actually performed by any board. In some cases, a low per capita may be maintained only at a serious cost to the children concerned. No mother can rear her children in health and under good home conditions if the family income will not provide the fundamentals of food, clothing, and shelter necessary to maintain a sound physical basis of life. Inadequate or uncertain relief leads to a direct injustice to the children and thus defeats the purpose of the law. The granting of adequate assistance is conditioned upon the use of the complete family budget. If the allowance granted by the board is to make up the difference between the ordinary income of a family and the expenditure necessary to maintain a wholesome standard of living on a minimum basis, it is of utmost importance to know what both are. The use of family budgets also insures the wise expenditure of funds and enables the board to ascertain the changes necessary in the amount of the allowance to meet the further needs of the family.

CHILDREN IN FOSTER HOMES

Placements in foster homes, carefully made and supervised, furnish the most satisfactory form of care for such dependent children as can not remain in their own homes and are not for special consideration committed to institutions. Not only the normal child but many exceptional children are, by placement either in free homes or at board, given the advantages of the surroundings of family life, mingling with their fellows in a natural way, and developing toward maturity under more normal experiences and associations than can be provided under institutional care. It is believed that the number of such placements may be considerably increased and that with added attention on the part of institutions, public officers, and special agencies, placing in foster homes can become increasingly the solution for the problem of caring for dependent children, especially those who are likely to be the wards of the public for considerable periods. The various agencies throughout the State engaged in the selection of foster homes for dependent children, as designated in section 301 of the State Charities Law, include societies for the prevention of cruelty to children, poor law officials, and incorporated institutions and agencies. The work is of three kinds, namely: the maintenance of children in foster boarding homes for which the foster mother receives a per capita weekly or monthly compensation; the securing of free foster homes where the child may be treated as a member of the family with or without prospect of adoption; and the placing of children at employment under supervision.

Public officials in various parts of the State have to a considerable extent made provision for the maintenance of children in family homes at public expense instead of committing them to incorporated institutions, a large number being so provided for in Erie, Westchester, Schenectady, Onondaga, and Dutchess Counties. In New York City the policy of boarding out the younger group of dependent children by the Department of Public Charities has been discontinued. At the beginning of the fiscal year, 309 children were so boarded out, their number being gradually reduced through return by foster mothers, transfer to hospitals, and discharge from public care; 135 were still maintained in boarding homes on June 30, 1919.

While the difficulties of securing suitable homes and exercising effective supervision over children boarding in them, under the conditions existing in New York City and in view of the great number of small children to be cared for, are fully recognized, the advantages accruing to the child placed in a good family home as compared to the child under institutional care warrant a large expenditure of money and effort through a considerable period, even in the face of initial failures to attain uniformly successful results. The same advantages to the child might be secured by perfecting agreements with the child-caring institutions and agencies to whose care the city's dependent children are committed, whereby they undertake to place out certain designated classes of children instead of retaining them under institutional care, thus devolving the actual finding of foster homes upon the institution or agency, and safeguarding by official supervision the quality of the work done. Institutions having the care of children committed by the Department of Public Charities are allowed additional compensation for boarding in family homes, but no great number of children are so maintained except in the case of certain institutions which have long followed a policy of boarding out their younger children. There is real encouragement in the fact that a considerable number of satisfactory homes were found, the use of which has been continued, and it is hoped that a practical boarding-out system, either directly by the Department of Public Charities or through other agencies, may soon be developed.

In twenty-three counties and in the cities of New York, Newburgh, Schenectady, and Syracuse, agencies have been established, either as a part of the poor-law organization or closely related to it, to assist poor-law officers in cases where children are involved. The details of the work undertaken by the several agencies vary widely. In Dutchess and Westchester counties, for example, the agencies assume entire charge of all cases involving dependent children, while in Onondaga and Cayuga counties the duties of the agencies are limited to placing and supervising children in foster homes. In general, however, these agencies assist poor-law officials in the investigation of applications for the relief of children, in devising plans for such relief, in placing out and supervising children in foster homes, and in following up the cases of children committed to institutions with a view to their discharge to relatives or upon other conditions as may seem advisable.

The placing of children in free homes, either with or without the prospect of adoption, is for the most part performed by private organizations. Most institutions for the care of children follow the practice of placing, either in free homes or at employment, certain of their wards, who for any reason cannot be returned to their own families when their discharge from institutional care seems desirable, either because the child may be advantageously placed, or because discharge is necessary on account of the discontinuance of payments for support from public funds. Some of the institutions for children have organized the work of investigating prospective foster homes and of supervising children placed in them in a careful and effective way; but institutions from which the number of children placed is small sometimes do this work unmethodically and with an evident failure to grasp the essential principles of successful placing with reference to careful investigation and approval of foster homes before children are intrusted to them and to adequate supervision after placement.

A number of private agencies engaged in placing-out work maintain no institutions. The Catholic Guardian Societies of Manhattan and Brooklyn are in general engaged in the supervision of children discharged from institutions, either in their own or in foster homes, rather than the actual finding of homes for them. The number of placements made by societies for the prevention of cruelty to children or, as they are often called, humane societies, and by agencies not in receipt of public funds, and the quality of their work, are not known, as reports from such organization are not made to the Board. It is believed that, in order to safeguard the interests of children removed from their natural homes and committed to the care of foster parents, legislation is necessary providing that all placements of children by any agency or person be reported to the State and that provision be made for the formulation and enforcement of standards for the placing and supervision of such children.

The work of the public and private agencies and institutions engaged in placing children in family homes, so far as reported to the State Board of Charities, is as follows:—

MISCELLANEOUS INSTITUTIONS

Children's Clearing Bureaus are designed for the reception of children accepted as public charges before it is decided what type of care is best adapted to each case. Their functions include the study of the children received, in order to determine the needs and disposal of each so as best to promote individual welfare, and the preparation of these children before they are sent forward to the various forms of care determined upon.

Two institutions of this general character are in operation. That of the New York City Department of Public Charities, established in 1916 as the Children's Clearing Bureau, is installed on Blackwell's Island and functions mainly as a reception house for children accepted by the Department as public charges prior to their transfer to institutional care. Their stay is usually brief and the work undertaken in most cases does not extend beyond a physical examination and a general cleaning-up process. Some dental work is done and medical or surgical cases in need of hospital treatment are transferred to appropriate hospitals, but the work of physical restoration that cannot be attempted during the short time spent at the Bureau is left to the institutions to which the children are committed. A report on conditions found and of needed treatment accompanies each child to the institution to which he is sent. It is believed that, in caring for children coming from the Children's Courts and other sources, as well as from the Department of Public Charities, a plan of cooperation will soon be developed between the private institutions and the city authorities whereby the physical needs of each child will be fully met and opportunity will be afforded for determining the social treatment likely to be most advantageous, before the case of any child is finally disposed of.

The Children's Aid and Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children in Buffalo has extended its work as a clearing house until it now receives most of the children committed to institutional care from Erie County. Detailed physical and mental examinations are made in all cases and needed treatment is given in order that each child may go forward in the best possible condition and that due discrimination may be exercised in determining the choice of institutional or other care.

Increasing appreciation of the advantages to be gained by the individual study and treatment of children through clearing bureau methods, especially in the larger cities of the State, points to the probability that the essential features of such work will in the near future be made a part of the regular machinery for dealing with dependent children wherever considerable numbers pass through the hands of public officials. There is no apparent reason why such bureaus established in the larger cities may not serve also neighboring counties and smaller cities, to the great advantage of the children concerned and to the assistance of public authorities responsible for their care.

Temporary Homes. The following institutions provide temporary care for employed children who are homeless and in need of guidance and assistance until completely self-sustaining and for other children who require shelter for brief periods:

Industrial Schools include day and evening schools conducted in New York City by the Children's Aid Society and the American Female Guardian Society. The work undertaken is school instruction in kindergarten and the lower grades, with some manual and industrial training in certain of the schools, and the distribution of a small amount of relief in the form of food and clothing. The Rhinelander School of the Children's Aid Society receives only crippled children and attempts, so far as their age and condition permit, to give them training in trades suited to their individual possibilities. The evening schools are planned for older boys and girls and seek to combine club work and other social activities with their class-room instruction. In their unspecialized activities these schools closely parallel the public schools; several of them have already been closed, and it seems likely that the remainder will be abandoned within a short time unless need be found for their continuation as specialized agencies of one kind or another.

It must not be overlooked that the statistics presented above for institutions under private control are limited to such as receive payments from public funds and accordingly are not complete for charitable enterprises having to do with children within the State. By far the greater number of day nurseries and fresh air charities and many homes for children are entirely dependent upon private support, and not subject to the supervision of the Board.

II. DIVISION OF MEDICAL CHARITIES

Committee on Medical Charities: Commissioner J. Richard Kevin, M. D., Chairman; The President, ex officio; Commissioners Burdick, Frankel, Gillespie, Glynn and Werner.

Superintendent of Division: Clarence E. Ford.

Since its organization the principal work of the committee has been the supervision of the facilities provided and the work accomplished by the institutions coming within the division. Such institutions include two State hospitals — the New York State Hospital for the Treatment of Incipient Pulmonary Tuberculosis, Raybrook, and the New York State Hospital for the Care of Crippled and Deformed Children, West Haverstraw, — city and county hospitals including the public sanatoria for tuberculosis, private hospitals in receipt of public funds, and all dispensaries. At the close of the State fiscal year on June 30, 1919, there were under the supervision of the division 241 hospitals and 218 dispensaries, a total of 459 institutions. As compared with last year this number represents a net increase of two hospitals and five dispensaries.

In considering and classifying reports of inspection of these institutions and deliberating on other matters pertaining to its work, the committee held eleven monthly meetings during the year. With seven members on the committee the average attendance at meetings was more than six and at no meeting were less than five commissioners present. At several meetings commissioners, not members of the committee, attended and participated in the discussions. In addition to other matters coming before it, the committee considered a total of 541 general inspection reports submitted by the inspectors, usually six in number, working under its direction. Of these reports 258 were on dispensaries and 283 on hospitals. In the following statements, institutions coming within the division are discussed under three general heads — state institutions, hospitals and dispensaries.

STATE INSTITUTIONSNEW YORK STATE HOSPITAL FOR THE CARE OF CRIPPLED AND DEFORMED CHILDREN

West Haverstraw, Rockland County

President, Board of Managers: George Blagden, 56 Wall street, New York City.

Secretary: Auguste M. Thiery, 93 Nassau street, New York City.

Superintendent and Surgeon-in-Chief: John J. Nutt, M. D.

Children under sixteen years of age, residents of this State, who are crippled or deformed or likely to become such are received for care and treatment. Only those whose condition indicates that relief may be afforded by proper surgical treatment are admitted. With the opening of the new pavilion, which took place last year, the capacity has gradually been increased to approximately 175 beds. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, a total of 232 children received 52,664 days of treatment. The average number of patients was 144, a number considerably larger than the preceding year. These patients came from approximately forty counties. Rural counties furnish somewhat more than their proportionate share of the population, since facilities for orthopedic treatment are locally available in most of the larger cities. Of the patients discharged during the year, all had either recovered or improved under the treatment given. The average stay of patients was somewhat less than two years.

During the year the new hospital building has been supplied with equipment for heating the solaria, wells for a larger and better water supply provided and the new laundry building equipped with power machinery.

The usefulness of this institution has already been fully demonstrated and the work accomplished is receiving ample recognition. For its further development two principal recommendations are made at this time.

1. There should be a resident superintendent responsible for the administration of the hospital. In making this recommendation the State Board of Charities is mindful of the skill and interest of the nonresident executive surgeon, who is also superintendent. With the growth of the hospital, however, the administration becomes increasingly important and the details can doubtless be best carried out by a resident superintendent having full responsibility and authority. To accommodate properly such an officer a superintendent's residence should be erected.

2. Modern school facilities not now available should be provided, including equipment for manual as well as academic training. Many of the patients are able to receive instruction, but the facilities are not such as are furnished in the better public schools.

NEW YORK STATE HOSPITAL FOR THE TREATMENT OF INCIPIENT PULMONARY TUBERCULOSIS

Raybrook, Essex County

Established, 1900

President, Board of Trustees: John Hurley, Little Falls.

Secretary: Mrs. Bessie Boasburg, Buffalo.

Superintendent: Harry A. Bray, M. D.

So far as possible, admission is restricted to persons suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis in the incipient stage. According to the experience of the hospital at least three-fourths of the really incipient cases can be cured. In recent years the hospital has, in addition to its curative work, developed a medical center in which health officers and others having to do with the disease may receive instruction and have opportunity to observe modern methods of diagnosis and treatment.

During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, a total of 754 patients received 105,073 days of treatment. The present capacity for 320 patients may be somewhat increased during the summer. An average population of 288 patients has been cared for at a daily per capita cost for maintenance of $1.78, a sum which, while higher than last year, is still lower than in most hospitals doing similar work. During the year the filtration beds at the sewage disposal plant have received some attention and are in better condition than formerly. The milk supply is reported to be improved under a contract recently made.

Because of a lack of suitable facilities, few children have been cared for at this hospital, although the younger patients are generally the most susceptible of improvement. An earnest effort is being made to secure appropriations for the buildings necessary to accommodate 100 boys and 100 girls, from five to sixteen years of age, suffering from tuberculosis of the medical type. For their accommodation a boys' unit, a girls' unit, an admission unit and a schoolhouse are planned. Few of the public or private tuberculosis hospitals make sufficient provision for the treatment of children. The children's division at Raybrook will, therefore, not only be a place where cures are effected, but will also afford an example for similar institutions in other parts of the State.

HOSPITALS

PUBLIC HOSPITALS OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK

For many years this Board has mentioned in its reports the peculiar arrangement under which the public hospital work of New York City is conducted by three coordinate departments acting for the most part independently of each other with resultant overlapping of function and without centralized responsibility for providing all parts of the city with adequate hospital facilities. Hospitals of the Department of Public Charities in general receive cases of a more chronic type although in Brooklyn an ambulance service is maintained and emergency cases received. Department of Health hospitals are principally for the treatment of contagious disease although institutions for tuberculosis are also maintained. Bellevue and Allied Hospitals provide four large general hospitals located in Manhattan and the Bronx serving to a considerable extent local territory. In a city growing so rapidly as is New York frequent surveys are necessary to see what further should be done to provide for all sections of the city a sufficient number of hospital beds and suitable emergency service. At the hearing held at the New York office of the Board last spring with reference to the adequacy of present provision for the care of the sick poor in their homes, the opinion seemed to be unanimous that centralized control of the hospitals of New York is essential, if such care is to be realized.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC CHARITIES

The eight hospitals maintained by this department had at the time of our most recent inspections a total of 5,087 beds and only 3,121 patients. The overcrowding which has at times existed seems to have been relieved by present industrial and health conditions. All hospitals of the department are suffering from a shortage of nurses and the full quota of employees is seldom present. Under these conditions the low census is advantageous.

METROPOLITAN HOSPITAL

The Metropolitan Hospital, having a capacity of 1,733 beds and located at the north end of Blackwell's Island, is much the largest hospital of the Department. During the year Dr. Conley, superintendent of the hospital, has been made general medical superintendent of all the institutions of the department on Blackwell's Island, and Miss Ward, superintendent of nurses, has been made general superintendent of the nurses of the department. The addition to the male medical buildings containing lavatory and utility rooms is nearly completed. Many needed repairs have been made and some additions to the equipment provided. Particular mention should be made of the children's pavilion with nearly 350 beds. This building is of recent construction and provides excellent facilities including modern glass cubicles to afford necessary segregation. The work performed at the Metropolitan Hospital is particularly difficult because of the fact that patients of so many different types and suffering from such a variety of disease are received. Besides the general medical and surgical cases, there are a number of chronic cases, specific cases, lepers and drug addicts in the same building. The several hundred tuberculosis patients, housed in three buildings, would themselves constitute a large hospital. An increased specialization of the hospital is desirable.

CITY HOSPITAL

The capacity of the City Hospital, located at the south end of Blackwell's Island, has during the year been slightly increased and is now 1,010 beds. As the hospital is smaller and the work less varied than at the Metropolitan, the administration is simpler. Because of the cost of building only the most needed repairs to the plant and additions to the equipment have been made. Administration has been improved by the employment of two more trained nurses in the social service department. Among the important needs are better day rooms and balconies for the use of convalescent patients and a maternity pavilion of modern fireproof construction.

KINGS COUNTY HOSPITAL

Of the five hospitals of the Department conducted in the Borough of Brooklyn, the Kings County Hospital with 1,010 beds is much the largest. In addition to the ward work a dispensary is conducted and an extensive ambulance service maintained. The most important improvement during the year has been the completion of the laundry building now for a long time under way. New X-ray apparatus has been installed and utensil sterilizers provided for lavatories in the west wing. While a number of improvements are planned it is still true that new construction and the upkeep of the plant have not kept pace with the increasing needs of the institution. The children's building and the west wing are modern hospital structures, but the main building is so old and generally unsuitable that its defects can be remedied only by the erection of a new and modern building.

BRADFORD STREET HOSPITAL

This institution, located at 113 Bradford street, is a branch of the Kings County Hospital. For some time hospital beds have not been maintained and the work has consisted of a dispensary and an ambulance station. The ambulances take patients to Kings County Hospital, but the ride of several miles must in some cases be a hardship. Hospital facilities are badly needed in the Bradford street section of the city and plans long ago made for their provision should be carried to fulfillment.

CUMBERLAND STREET HOSPITAL

During practically the entire year, this hospital located at 109 Cumberland street, has been used by the navy department for the treatment of sailors, more than four thousand of whom were cared for. It has now been returned to the Department of Public Charities and is again in use as a general hospital with 168 beds and for dispensary work. The building is old and its many defects cannot be remedied. A new hospital building is being erected on a site near by and will, it is hoped, be ready for occupancy early in 1920.

CONEY ISLAND HOSPITAL

The Coney Island Hospital located on Ocean Parkway, Coney Island, provides 130 beds primarily for the accident and other emergency cases at this great resort. The ambulance service has recently been improved by a second motor ambulance and new X-ray equipment has been installed. While the building is of recent construction, the need for additional wards has already been shown. Increased accommodations for employees are also needed.

GREENPOINT HOSPITAL

This hospital located on Kingsland avenue is intended to serve the Greenpoint section of the city. Its present capacity is 252 beds. Two ambulances are maintained and an extensive dispensary work is carried on. Since the building is of recent construction, few betterments other than some additions to the equipment are needed.

SEA VIEW HOSPITAL

This institution is located at Castleton Corners, Staten Island, and has capacity for 784 patients. It is therefore one of the largest hospitals for tuberculosis in the United States. Since our last report work has progressed on the twenty-one additional pavilions in which patients are to be maintained and the early completion of these buildings is hoped for. These will greatly increase the capacity. A recent appropriation of $170,000 is to be used to provide sewers and water and an addition to the power house to serve the new section. The new buildings are arranged in two groups, one for the men and one for the women, and will provide recreation halls and other facilities not heretofore available. Since the appointment of the present superintendent nearly two years ago, there has been much reorganization of the administration in an effort to secure increased efficiency.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES OF BELLEVUE AND ALLIED HOSPITALS

Following is a brief statement with reference to each of the five hospitals of this department. At the time of most recent inspection by this Board, the hospitals had a combined capacity for 2,655 beds and a census of 1,938 patients.

BELLEVUE HOSPITAL

First avenue and 26th street, Manhattan. Capacity, 1,721 beds. With the practical suspension of building operations there has been little change in the hospital during the past year. New construction has, however, been approved by the Board of Estimate as follows:

	Estimated cost
Construction of Pavilions F and G.....	$1,500,000
Interior and equipment, Pavilions F and G.....	750,000
Additional boilers	40,000
Additional wings to Bellevue Training School for Nurses	350,000
Building for Out-Patient Department and Women's Dormitory	1,055,000

With the exception of the boilers appropriations available are for the preparation of plans only, but it is expected that some of the buildings proposed will be begun during the coming year. While the additional buildings are greatly needed, new construction has in previous years been provided to such an extent that less than a third of the patients are now cared for in the old building. A new kitchen and improved dispensary facilities are now especially needed.

GOUVERNEUR HOSPITAL

Gouverneur Slip, Manhattan. Capacity, 202 beds. This hospital, located in one of the most congested sections of the lower east side, maintains a large dispensary, an active emergency ambulance service and a general hospital. The dispensary is new and modern but the hospital does not provide needed facilities and has been at times inadequate for the number of patients received. A modern nurses' home to provide comfortable quarters for the nurses in place of the old dwellings now used for their accommodation is greatly needed.

HARLEM HOSPITAL

Lenox avenue and 136th street, Manhattan. Capacity, including porches, 389 beds. Only necessary improvements and minor changes have been undertaken at this hospital during the year. Because of the very active service covering a congested section of the city overcrowding is likely to exist at certain seasons. The buildings occupied are modern but the work has outgrown the plant, necessitating a considerable extension of existing buildings. The Board has observed with pleasure the gradual development of this hospital until it now provides facilities which are more nearly complete than those of any of the other municipal hospitals.

FORDHAM HOSPITAL

Southern boulevard and Crotona avenue, Bronx. Capacity, 216 beds. In order to relieve for the time being the overcrowding which has frequently occurred in this hospital, arrangements have been made for the construction of temporary ward buildings which will serve their purpose until better ones may be provided. The pressing needs of the hospital are stated in a recent report of the Board's inspector as follows:

"The hospital building is much too small for the work demanded of it. Overflow patients from the crowded wards are cared for on balconies designed for convalescents. Utility rooms planned for work in connection with a lesser number of patients are not adequate to meet the increased demand. Day rooms for all wards and a labor room in the maternity suite are lacking. Quiet rooms for the segregation of disturbing cases are insufficient."

The very rapid growth in population of the Borough of the Bronx makes the need for additional hospital facilities in this borough very urgent. To meet the demands of the population public spirited citizens have from time to time proposed the establishment of private hospitals which were insufficiently backed with funds to assure their proper maintenance. Extension of the municipal hospitals of the borough either by an addition to Fordham or by the creation of a new hospital is urgently needed.

NEPONSIT BEACH HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN

Neponsit Beach, Borough of Queens. Capacity, 127 beds. This hospital is maintained for the care and treatment of children suffering from tuberculosis in its non-pulmonary forms. The location is excellent and the buildings generally suitable for the work undertaken. A playroom, long needed, is to be provided from funds made available by a recent bequest of $11,000. In addition the kindergarten room has been newly furnished and the whole interior of the building repainted. A second building to provide quarters for employees and adequate laundry facilities, is needed.

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

The hospitals of this department receive drug addicts, tuberculosis cases and persons, principally children, suffering from contagious diseases. At the time of our most recent inspection the combined capacity of the five hospitals amounted to 2,671 beds, the census being 1,494 patients. While the hospital for tuberculosis and that for drug addicts were filled nearly to capacity, the census of each of the three hospitals for contagious diseases was very low. The largest of these, the Willard Parker Hospital, East 16th street, Manhattan, had 848 beds for contagious diseases. During the war it received large numbers of men sent by the Navy Department and the care of sailors was continued during most of the fiscal year. Arrangements have been made so that the Minturn Hospital which is near by will be taken over and operated as a part of the Willard Parker. As there has been practically no change in the buildings since last year, the principal needs then existing, such as a better kitchen and an improved measles pavilion, still remain.

At the Queensboro Hospital for contagious diseases in Jamaica, the provision for nurses has been improved by the leasing of an additional house for their accommodation. The new pavilion for diphtheria cases at the Kingston Avenue Hospital in Brooklyn has been opened and the diet kitchen in the new service building is in use.

The Municipal Sanatorium at Otisville contains 560 beds for the care and treatment of favorable tuberculosis cases in whom improvement may reasonably be expected. The census at the time of inspection was 512 patients. This institution occupies an excellent mountain site with abundant land for farming and other purposes. Only minor changes in plant and equipment have taken place during the year. A central heating plant and an infirmary building are needed.

Riverside Hospital on North Brother Island formerly used principally for tuberculosis has recently been devoted to the treatment of drug addicts, nearly 600 of whom may be cared for at a time. It is not expected that its present use will be long continued and drug cases will probably be out of the hospital by the end of March, 1920. On account of difficulties of transportation, Riverside Hospital is not especially well suited to the care of contagious diseases for which purpose it was formerly used. Since the hospital is, however, because of location adapted to the care of advanced cases of tuberculosis, it might well replace for this purpose the tuberculosis division of the Metropolitan Hospital in which a majority of the advanced cases are now cared for.

PUBLIC HOSPITALS OUTSIDE OF NEW YORK CITY

The General Municipal Law makes provision for the establishment of public general hospitals by cities, towns and villages. A number of cities have established such hospitals and other localities have the matter under consideration. Mention is made in the following paragraphs of each of the public hospitals outside of New York City.

Albert Lindley Lee Memorial Hospital, Fulton. This small but modern hospital provides 25 beds for patients. There was little change in the buildings or equipment during the year but a general renovation has taken place.

Binghamton City Hospital, Binghamton. Following a survey during the fall of 1918 by a hospital expert employed for the purpose, the board of managers engaged a new superintendent who has already made a number of changes in administrative methods and improvement in the plant. These changes have resulted in increasing the bed capacity although it is at times still inadequate. Other improvements are under way or planned.

Buffalo City Hospital, 962 Grider street, Buffalo. Buildings of this hospital recently completed constitute about half of the proposed plant and have been erected at a cost of approximately $1,250,000. Plans for the construction of the remainder of the hospital are now under consideration. While tuberculosis cases principally are received, a general hospital work is also carried on. The city of Buffalo has now one of the most modern municipal hospital plants in the State.

De Graff Memorial Hospital, North Tonawanda. The building of this hospital is also nearly new and provides generally good facilities for the 32 patients who may be accommodated. A nurses' home, a maternity department and modern X-ray and laboratory equipment are needed.

Lockport City Hospital, Lockport. This hospital has been for many years conducted by the city under the supervision of the department of health. The building is not new and renovation and repairs are needed.

O. E. Jones, General Hospital, Jamestown. The city of Jamestown maintains this hospital under the direction of a board of managers. Buildings are of recent construction and have been improved by minor changes accomplished during the year.

Oneida City Hospital, Oneida. As this hospital has only four beds for patients, it is one of the smallest in the State under the supervision of this Board. Sterilization and other facilities have been improved during the year and an increase in capacity is planned.

The Oneida County Hospital at Rome is the only general county hospital in the state conducted independently of the almshouse administration. Its present capacity is 186 beds about one-third of which are occupied by cases of tuberculosis. There has been little change in the buildings during the past year and a pavilion for children is still urgently needed.

Utica General Hospital, Utica. Capacity 96. This hospital occupies buildings most of which are old, poorly arranged, and not in good repair. If the hospital is to be continued the main building should be replaced by a modern fireproof structure.

In addition to the public general hospitals just mentioned, there are in several of the larger cities special hospitals for contagious diseases which are operated in close coöperation with the health departments of their respective localities. Such hospitals are the Ernest Wende Hospital, Buffalo, the Rochester Municipal Hospital, the Syracuse City Hospital, the Schenectady Isolation Hospital and the Yonkers City Hospital for Contagious Diseases. In nearly all of these cities the hospitals occupy modern buildings designed for the purpose and in good condition of repair. There have been no important changes in these hospitals during the year.

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITALS

Under the provisions of recent amendments to the County Law it is required that every county in the State containing a population of 35,000 or over at the time of the latest State census shall establish a hospital for tuberculosis or otherwise make provision for tuberculosis cases in a manner approved by the State Commissioner of Health. This law also requires that plans of new buildings be approved by the Commissioner of Health and that the board of managers of each county hospital employ a county nurse.

While responsibility with reference to the enforcement of this law rests with the State Commissioner of Health, this Board is empowered both by the constitution and by law to visit and inspect the county hospitals. In addition the general relation of tuberculosis to poverty and dependence both as a cause and as an effect makes the measures used to prevent and relieve the disease a matter of special interest to the Board.

During the year the new hospitals in Broome and Rensselaer counties have been opened and the patients removed from the old and inadequate structures formerly occupied. Rockland county has completed, equipped and occupied its new hospital. In Nassau county the two buildings of the original project are completed and will be ready for occupancy when furnished and equipped. The new hospitals of Chautauqua, Columbia and Delaware counties are nearing completion and in Herkimer county the buildings are well advanced. Wayne, Allegany, Livingston, Warren, St. Lawrence and Genesee counties are still considering sites or plans for buildings. The site selected in Westchester county, disapproved by the local health officer, has on appeal been approved by the Board of Appeals consisting of the Lieutenant-Governor, Speaker of the Assembly and the State Commissioner of Health. In many of the counties which already have hospitals, projects for their enlargement or remodeling are under consideration. The record of the year therefore has shown much progress toward providing New York State with the system of county tuberculosis hospitals contemplated by the statute just mentioned.

While the County Law requires that the boards of managers of county tuberculosis hospitals employ county nurses, these boards can carry out its provisions only in so far as appropriations for the purpose are made available by the respective boards of supervisors. In several counties the boards of supervisors have withheld such appropriations to the detriment of the work.

PRIVATE HOSPITALS

The hospitals included under this heading are controlled and operated by individuals or corporations, but because of their receipt of public funds for the care of patients are made subject to the supervision of the Board. During the year four private hospitals were added to the list for inspection and six were closed or dropped because no longer in receipt of public funds, thus leaving 182 such institutions under supervision on June 30, 1919.

The high cost of building operations and the difficulty of securing workmen and materials have prevented realization of a number of the building plans under consideration by the managers of the respective hospitals. No new buildings of importance were begun during the year and only those previously under construction were completed. Several plans for hospital buildings were, however, submitted to the Board for approval and considered. Even a moderate reduction in building costs would result in a greatly increased amount of needed new construction of hospital buildings.

The difficulty of bringing expenses within income constitutes a problem which, insistent during the war, has become increasingly troublesome since the signing of the armistice. The following table shows the increased per capita cost of maintenance in two groups of private hospitals, those having less than fifty beds and those with fifty or more beds. Only those hospitals caring for the acutely ill and doing work of a somewhat general nature are considered. Computations have been made from the reports of the respective institutions to the State Board of Charities for the fiscal years ending June 30, 1919, and June 30, 1918.

Average per capita daily cost of maintenance:

Hospitals in Greater New York	1919	1918
Fifty beds or over (42 hospitals).....	$3.53	$3.22
Under fifty beds (5 hospitals).....	3.52	3.15
Hospitals outside of Greater New York
Fifty beds or over (51 hospitals).....	2.81	2.57
Under 50 beds (36 hospitals).....	2.91	2.53

As shown by these reports the cost of maintaining a patient is about the same in a small hospital as in a large one. While the per capita daily cost of the hospitals of Greater New York is somewhat more than of those outside the city, the amount of increase during the year of the two groups has been approximately the same. In few of the hospitals does the rate for ward patients equal the cost of maintenance. The hospital is therefore compelled to make up its deficit by increased appropriations of public funds, by drawing on its endowment or by securing contributions from the charitable. In order that private hospitals may not be obliged to contribute to the maintenance of public charges, the Board has repeatedly urged upon mayors of cities and other public officials the fairness of a rate of payment which shall compensate the hospital for the expense incurred.

An examination of the location of hospitals, public and private, shows that nearly all are to be found in the large centers of population. Extensive and well-populated rural sections of the State, hundreds of square miles in extent, are remote from hospital facilities. The need for hospitals in these rural communities and the type of institution which can best meet their requirements are being considered by this Board and we expect to make further mention of this matter in our next report to the Legislature.

HOSPITAL STATISTICS

Totals as to numbers of patients and days of treatment in hospitals are shown in the following table:

	Paying patients	Public charges	Free patients	Total cared for	Aggregate days' treatment
State.....	986	986	157,737
Other public.....	13,278	128,559	141,837	3,575,513
Private.....	250,737	66,654	46,899	364,290	5,570,616
Grand total.....	264,015	196,199	46,899	507,113	9,303,866

These statistics are complete as regards State and other public hospitals but include only such private hospitals as are in receipt of public funds for the maintenance of patients, and therefore required to report to this Board. As compared with the preceding year they show a slight decrease in the number of patients in public hospitals but an increase in the number cared for in private hospitals. Both the number and the proportion of paying patients have increased while the number of free patients have correspondingly decreased. In both public and private hospitals the aggregate number of days of treatment has decreased, a fact which is remarkable since nearly all of the hospitals were crowded during the influenza epidemic in the fall of 1918. The average daily census of 10,338 in the public hospitals and 15,202 in the private hospitals is also lower than last year. The average length of stay of each patient has been this year 160 days in the two State institutions, 25 days in other public hospitals and 15 days in the private hospitals. This difference is undoubtedly due to the fact that the public hospitals care for many chronic cases while the patients of private hospitals are for the most part acute cases.

The following list gives statistics with reference to the patients cared for in each of the hospitals under the supervision of the Board:

DISPENSARIES

At the close of the fiscal year on June 30, 1919, there were 218 dispensaries licensed by this Board and upon its inspection lists. Four dispensaries discontinued their operations while nine were added to the list, a net gain of five. This increase is somewhat less than the average for the past ten years. None of these dispensaries is the out-patient department of a general hospital and only one is connected with a hospital. All are organized to do a special work the nature of which is usually indicated by their names as given below:

Clinic for Functional Re-education.....	Manhattan
Housekeeping Dispensary of Rochester.....	Rochester
Jewish Communal Home Dispensary.....	Syracuse
John E. Berwind Free Maternity Clinic.....	Manhattan

 Yorkville District Dispensary..... Manhattan

In discussing dispensaries we desire to make particular mention of the unique work being carried on by the Clinic for Functional Re-education at 5 Livingston Place in the Borough of Manhattan. While established primarily as a war service to help disabled soldiers and sailors, the promoters plan to make it a permanent institution for those who become disabled through accident or otherwise. Although space is limited and the work cramped, a number of special departments doing excellent work are maintained. Among these may be mentioned the hydrotherapy with its diversified baths and douches, an electro-therapeutic department furnished with apparatus for the diagnosis and treatment of nerve, muscle and joint diseases, baking department, special therapeutic exercises and massage and an X-ray department. Novel apparatus for mechano-therapy designed by Maj. Tait McKenzie, M. D., of the University of Pennsylvania, and Prof. E. A. Bott, of Hart House, Toronto, for use in the Canadian army, is being used by the clinic for the first time in this country. We take pleasure in calling attention to this valuable addition to the dispensary facilities of the city.

As compared with ten years ago when there were in the State only 131 dispensaries, the present number represents an increase of 66 per cent. Classification of these dispensaries according to function is shown by the following table:

This table, therefore, shows an ever-increasing proportion of special dispensaries, a condition mentioned in our last report. Such special dispensaries are for the most part conducted by municipal departments of health or by societies endeavoring to carry on some one branch of charitable endeavor. In the smaller cities and in rural communities the formal dispensary for tuberculosis is being supplemented by occasional clinics held at some central point after preliminary work by a public health nurse.

The following tables show the work of the dispensaries during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, and the preceding year:

The number of dispensaries in operation during the whole or a part of the fiscal year is shown by the following table:

Outside New York City.....	39,694	54,994
Total entire State.....	229,146	199,437

These statistics show a reduction in the amount of dispensary work as compared with the preceding year, the single exception being a slight increase in the number of different persons treated in the Borough of Brooklyn. A decrease of more than half a million treatments in a single year is of course an interesting social phenomenon and may be due to the following causes: Because of the possibility of obtaining work at good wages there is apparently less disposition to seek treatment at a dispensary. A few of the dispensaries reporting in previous years were in the buildings of hospitals taken over by the United States government and hence not available for the public. Military service, also, called away from dispensaries large numbers of physicians with the result that departments had to be closed or their activities curtailed. In addition a number of the dispensaries were closed in the fall of 1918 because of the influenza epidemic. As the decrease in attendance has taken place while the population of the State has undoubtedly increased, the relative decrease is therefore even more striking.

CLASSIFICATION

One duty of the committee is the classification of the reports of inspection according to the conditions described. The results of such classifications are shown in tabular form elsewhere in this report. We are pleased to note an increased proportion of dispensaries in Class I as to plant and as to administration. As regards hospitals the percentage of those in Class I has slightly increased as to administration but has decreased as to plant. Some deterioration in buildings and equipment might reasonably be expected in consideration of the greatly increased cost of new equipment and repairs and the difficulty of securing workmen and materials. Such a result has apparently taken place. We are also pleased to note a decrease in the number of hospitals and dispensaries placed in Class III, the Board's lowest rating, which shows serious defects.

III. DIVISION OF ADULT WARDS

Committee on Adult Wards: Commissioner Gratwick, Chairman; the President, ex officio; Commissioners Burdick, Marquand, Ridder and Werner.

Robert W. Hill, Superintendent of Division.

The supervision of adult wards, including alien and Indian dependents, together with the almshouses and other homes for the aged and infirm and the performance of the duties required by law or prescribed by the Board in connection with the care and final settlement of the poor, is intrusted to the Division of Adult Wards, the former Department of State and Alien Poor. The Committee held ten meetings during the fiscal year with an average attendance of more than three-fourths of its membership. At these meetings reports of inspection of the institutions supervised and the various problems of poor-law administration, immigration, and related subjects were discussed and recommendations concerning them made to the Board. The Superintendent of this division, who is also Superintendent of State and Alien Poor, directs and supervises the visitation and inspection of the almshouses and other public institutions for the care of the aged and the incorporated homes for the aged which, though under private control, receive public money. Besides this relation to institutional care of the aged, he is charged with the disposition of "State poor" persons in such county almshouses as are used, under contract with the Board, for their maintenance. To him is also committed the care of Indian dependents, and the removal of such State, alien, and nonresident poor as may, under the provisions of the State Charities Law and the Poor Law be sent to their residential localities in other states or countries.

The Division of Adult Wards maintains a record of poor persons committed to almshouses in this State, as the Poor Law requires that duplicate records of all such commitments shall be made out by local officials and transmitted to be filed by the State Board of Charities. These records are necessary for the protection of the public and for the investigations upon which the future disposition of committed poor persons depends. They also enable the Statistical Division to compile valuable statistics showing some of the causes and centers of dependency and its associated evils.

CLASSIFICATION AND REMOVAL OF POOR PERSONS

All State, nonresident and alien poor persons under public charge in charitable institutions are returned to their places of legal residence in other states or countries when such removal is to the advantage of the State. The statistics which follow show that many persons in these classes are sent to their former homes, although many others for various reasons cannot be returned and continue to be maintained at public expense in the charitable institutions of New York. This is especially true of aliens from the countries recently engaged in war.

"Poor persons" in their relation to this Division are divided into four groups: "State poor," "Alien poor," "Nonresident poor," and "Indian poor." The first of these groups is a special class of poor persons who are maintained in charitable institutions wholly at the expense of the State. The second is a nativity group based upon foreign citizenship, and those who compose it are usually maintained at the expense of the counties in whose public charitable institutions they are found, having resided in such counties too long for maintenance at State expense. Sometimes, however, aliens belong also to the "State poor" group. This is the case whenever they have not resided in any one county of the State for more than sixty days in the year immediately prior to their application for public relief. The third is a locality group and consists of poor persons not settled in the State of New York whose relatives and friends live in other states. The fourth is a racial group — Indians whose maintenance under the laws of the State is to be provided for out of State funds.

STATE POOR PERSONS

Early in the history of the State Board of Charities it became necessary to classify the adult State wards in the almshouses, and six years after its establishment the Legislature, by chapter 661 of the Laws of 1873, changed the status of a group of such poor persons who theretofore had been maintained at county expense and the State thereafter assumed direct responsibility for their care and final disposition. Prior to the enactment of this law entitled "An act to provide for the care and support of State paupers," the public relief of all poor persons without "settlement" in some town in the State of New York was a charge upon the county in which such persons became unable to maintain themselves.

The new law made a distinction between dependents who "had not resided for more than sixty days in any county of the State" and other non-settled poor persons, and the State Board of Charities was authorized to establish "State almshouses" in a number of counties. These are county almshouses which contract to care for "State poor persons" at a weekly per capita rate, and to these such "State paupers" were thereafter to be committed, the cost of their maintenance to be borne by the State. The term "State paupers" originally applied to this group has since been changed to "State poor," and the removal of this class of dependents, of other nonresident poor persons, and of aliens to their proper residential localities in other states and countries is a special duty of the State Board of Charities, the removal of "alien poor" being specifically authorized by chapter 549 of the Laws of 1880 and its subsequent amendments. After the adoption of the Constitution of 1894 the general and special laws relating to public relief were revised and their provisions became a part of the Poor Law enacted as chapter 225 of the Laws of 1896, which with amendments now constitutes chapter 42 of the Consolidated Laws.

REMOVALS

The removal work of the Department of State and Alien Poor is mainly done in three places: at the office of the Board in the Capitol, Albany; the New York City branch office, located in the Charities Building, 287 Fourth avenue; and at the Transfer Agency, which is located at 237 Terrace, Buffalo, with the office of the Superintendent of the Poor of Erie county. The reports of the deputy of the Superintendent of State and Alien Poor stationed in New York City and the Transfer Agent at Buffalo are in statistical form and show the condition and character of the nonresident poor referred by local authorities to the State Board of Charities for such action as may be deemed advisable. The consolidated statistics of the Division also show that approximately three-fourths of the poor persons whose cases were considered during the fiscal year were between the ages of sixteen and forty-five, and that the principal causes of dependency are sickness and non-employment.

Since the acts of 1873 and 1880, referred to, made the care and support of the "State poor" chargeable to the State and placed upon the State Board of Charities the responsibility of removing alien and nonresident poor, 55,285 "State poor persons," 11,951 of whom were women, have been committed to the several "State almshouses." Of these, 33,312 were returned as non-residents by the Department of State and Alien Poor to their homes and friends in other states. Besides these removals 12,678 "alien poor persons" have been repatriated since 1880 when the special authority to return pauper aliens to their homes in other countries was devolved upon the Board.

In addition to the large number of aliens and State poor, 7,773 other "nonresident poor persons" were returned to their homes in other states. This shows that 53,763 poor persons, who were aliens and nonresidents, were removed from almshouses, hospitals and other charitable institutions in this State where in all probability they would have remained as permanent dependents upon public charity but for the beneficent intervention of the State Board of Charities. The average length of residence of permanent charges in almshouses is fifteen years. Taking this for granted, the expenditure which would have been involved in the permanent support of these 53,763 poor persons would have been, at a minimum of $2.00 per week, no less than $83,870,280. Removal is therefore a far more economical method of dealing with the dependent aliens and nonresidents than maintenance in almshouses or other charitable institutions, and from the human standpoint it is also best for such persons as it restores them to their homes and to the care of friends. This should not be overlooked and in fact must be given greatest weight in the final decision as to the disposition to be made of public charges, for in the end the aim of the State is best expressed not in terms of dollars but in charity and social adjustment.

REMOVALS OF THE FISCAL YEAR

The State Board of Charities, through its Department of State and Alien Poor, during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, returned 1,285 persons to their homes in other states or countries. Of these persons thus removed at public expense, 254 were "State" poor, 816 "nonresident" poor, and 243 "alien" poor, 28 of the latter being also "State" poor. The 243 "alien" poor included 203 removed directly by this Board and 40 by the Board in cooperation with the United States Immigration Service. The preceding fiscal year the total removals were 1,545, of whom 190 were aliens, including 138 removed directly by the Board and 52 by the national authorities on investigation and initiative of the State Board of Charities, and the remainder, 1,355, were either nonresidents or "State poor" persons properly settled in other states. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1917, the total number of removals was 1,312, of whom 241 were aliens, including 195 removed directly by the Board and 46 through the government. The remainder, 1,071, were nonresidents or "State poor" persons from other states. Nearly all the "State poor" persons are either "aliens" or "nonresidents" of the State and out of a total of 499 State poor provided for during the year, 254, of whom 28 were aliens, were removed from the State at public expense. The average per capita expense of these removals of "State poor" was only $10.66.

NONRESIDENT POOR

Dependent persons having a legal residence in other states or friends who will support them there, but who are not "State poor" persons because they have been in some county of New York for more than sixty days in the year preceding application for relief are, when deemed advisable, given transportation at State expense as "nonresident poor," their relief within an institution being at county, city or town expense. Of this class of dependents 816 were removed during the last fiscal year at an average per capita expense of $9.44.

The largest number of removals of State, alien and nonresident poor are made from the branch office of the Division of Adult Wards, located at 287 Fourth avenue, New York City.

Some alien poor are removed through the Buffalo gateway by the United States immigration officers but the great majority of all removals is by way of New York City. The statistical tables of that office are therefore of interest and value and follow here. They show not only the countries to which aliens are sent but other social facts which make evident the kind of work the State is doing in this direction about which little is known. The tables are as follows:

ALIEN POOR

Alien poor are persons of foreign birth dependent upon public charity, who have not become naturalized citizens of the United States; 243 such aliens were removed to their homes in other countries by the Department of State and Alien Poor. Forty of these persons were removed by the United States Immigration Service without expense to the State, but after the Department had fully investigated each case. The average expense to the State of alien removals including Federal deportations was $5.12, but excluding those removed by the United States officials and others repatriated at no expense to the State, the average cost per capita was $19.01. Considering that this expenditure is made only in cases of aliens likely to be permanently dependent from recognized incapacitating diseases or disabilities, the ultimate saving to the State is apparent, for it costs far more than the average expense of a removal to support a poor person in a hospital for one month.

The war centered attention upon resident aliens as possible enemies and many were interned. Since war has ended an intense anxiety has developed in all sections of the country owing to their increasing numbers and to the fact that so many have failed to take advantage of the opportunity to become naturalized although in the United States for many years. They are widely distributed and as non-citizens constitute a political, economic and social problem in most of our communities. This fact requires that greater attention than has heretofore been deemed necessary be given hereafter to immigrants at the time of their arrival from foreign lands.

THE ENFORCEMENT OF THE IMMIGRATION LAWS

The following classes of aliens are deportable under existing laws by the United States within five years of the date of their landing:

1. Aliens who become dependent from causes existing prior to their arrival in the United States.
2. Members of the excluded classes, as defined in the Immigration Law.

The following class is deportable by the United States within one year after their arrival:

Aliens, their dependence being due to causes arising subsequent to landing, who make request for repatriation.

Alien criminals and prostitutes may be deported at any time after arrival when apprehended. There is no time limit for deportation for this class.

The Federal Immigration Law confers upon the Secretary of Labor authority to make rules and regulations for the enforcement of the provisions of the law, and these, until changed or abrogated, are the effective interpretations which control the relations of the Bureau of Immigration to the State and city.

In criticism of the rules now in force it should be said that:

1. The reference of all requests for the deportation of aliens to the Department of Labor at Washington results in serious delays. In all cases where the facts clearly show that aliens are proper cases for deportation, the Commissioner of Immigration at Ellis Island should be empowered to act without referring the applications for removal to Washington.

2. Aliens who are properly deportable by the United States for causes existing prior to landing should not be considered by the rulings of the Bureau of Immigration beyond its jurisdiction, if, after they become public charges and their deportation has been requested, the period of five years after arrival in the United States expires. Administrative delay in the final adjudication of such cases should not be construed to give additional rights to such aliens, nor change their status under the law.

3. The detention of aliens in hospitals and other charitable institutions, after warrants of arrest have been issued, is frequently difficult, and as such institutions are seldom prepared to enforce detention, the administrative rules and regulations of the Bureau of Immigration should make provision for the removal of such aliens to a place where they may be safely held pending deportation. This would prevent frequent escapes which now occur and which make unavailing the work done to secure their deportation.

The physical examination now made of immigrants likely to become public charges through inability to maintain themselves by labor should result in the exclusion of many who would have passed inspection heretofore. If incapable aliens are permitted to settle in our communities they will affect social standards harmfully, lower the wages of competent laborers and their moral influence will be hurtful.

In the same way the routine examinations as to mental impairment to which the immigrant is subjected upon his arrival are not yet sufficiently stringent to protect the public welfare; but the new plan should result in the exclusion of most of the obviously insane and feeble-minded persons who are a menace to society. But even this searching examination is not likely to disclose the mental instability which while latent is none the less a menace. This tendency, as is well known, exists in many immigrants who are capable of passing the ordinary hurried examination even when made by expert alienists. If, in the application of the revised Immigration Law of 1917, a deeper probe is not applied to all aliens seeking admission to the United States the country must inevitably suffer from the admission of many whose mental abnormalities would otherwise not be detected. Aliens of this class are most undesirable for although they may be strong and otherwise healthy their mental powers are liable to be permanently impaired by the rapidity with which they are compelled to meet new experiences.

INDIAN POOR

The total number of Indian poor provided for in almshouses or asylums during the fiscal year was 75, as compared with 85 last year, but besides these many others, sick adults and mothers with children, were relieved or cared for in their homes on the reservations, and the expenditures on account of Indian relief amounted to $7,823.92.

Dependent Indians in New York are legal charges upon the State itself, and not upon its subdivisions, and, therefore, in accordance with the provisions of the Poor Law, the administration of relief to all indigent Indians is under the direction of the State Board of Charities. The Poor Law and the rules of the Board in regard to Indian relief require that destitute Indians, if capable of being moved, shall be cared for in almshouses, but temporary outdoor relief is given in cases requiring immediate assistance, and when the Indian cannot be moved to the nearest almshouse, or when on account of children it would be improper to remove the family to an almshouse.

As the Indians of New York are not taxable citizens of the State the officials of towns and counties are reluctant to expend local funds upon them. They have a peculiar status, being mainly subject only to the Federal laws, usually living upon reservation lands which cannot be sold. Approximately 7,000 reside in the State, the majority of whom are in poor circumstances, especially liable to debilitating disease and contagious epidemics, hence a considerable amount must be expended each year for competent medical service.

The unsanitary condition of many Indian homes tends to recurring outbreaks of what are known as "filth diseases," and cases of these are frequent. The same is true of respiratory diseases, pneumonia, influenza, and tuberculosis causing many deaths each year, especially among the older Indians, while deaths of children from colds, influenza, and measles occur in consequence of exposure, constitutional weakness, lack of proper care and shelter, and the constant insufficiency of good food.

Besides the relief work among Indians of this State carried on by the State Board of Charities, the State Health Department has maintained careful watch over general sanitary conditions and employed the State Constabulary in the control of epidemics, using the troopers to quarantine the reservations so far as deemed necessary. Even with this supervision the condition which prevails upon reservations remains a serious problem and requires the constant attention of sanitary officers. In fact, from social, economic and health standpoints there is urgent necessity that some conclusive action be taken by the State; for although the members of the tribes are now comparatively few in number they control large areas of valuable land which is held by tribal or treaty title and for the same reason much of it is either poorly cultivated or unimproved.

On March 6 and 7, 1919, a conference for the consideration of the relations of the New York Indians to the State and Federal governments was held in Syracuse under the auspices of the Onondaga Indian Welfare Society, the Onondaga Historical Association, and the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce. At this conference the State and Federal departments which have relations to the New York Indians were represented by delegates, the State Board of Charities by Ceylon H. Lewis, Commissioner of the Board from the Fifth Judicial District, Secretary Charles H. Johnson, and Superintendent of State and Alien Poor Robert W. Hill. The United States Commissioner of Indian Affairs was represented by a deputy, but officers of the Indian Rights Association and the members of the United States Indian Commission were there in person. The chiefs of several Indian tribes and the many members of local organizations interested in the Indian were in attendance.

As a result of this conference the Legislature was requested at its last session to plan for the social and political changes which may be necessary for the welfare of the Indians in this State, and to this end, with the approval of the Governor, enacted chapter 590 of the Laws of 1919, which provides for a commission to confer with the committees of Congress in relation to Indian affairs in the State of New York.

The commission appointed pursuant to provisions of the act is composed of the Attorney-General of the State, the Temporary President of the Senate, and the Speaker of the Assembly, together with two members of the Senate appointed by the Temporary President, and four members of the Assembly appointed by the Speaker, in addition to whom the Governor appointed four other persons as representatives of the departments of the State which have special relations to the Indians.

As thus constituted the membership of the commission is as follows:

Ex officio members:

Attorney-General, Charles D. Newton,
Temporary President of the Senate, J. Henry Walters, Speaker of the Assembly, Thaddeus C. Sweet.

Appointive members:

Senator James W. Yelverton,
Senator Loring M. Black,
Assemblyman Edward A. Everett,
Assemblyman DeHart H. Ames,
Assemblyman Charles D. Donahue,
Assemblyman Peter A. McArdle.

Appointed by the Governor:

Dr. Robert W. Hill of Albany, representing the State Board of Charities,
Arthur C. Parker of Delmar, to represent the Department of Education,
Dr. Matthias Nicoll of New York City, to represent the State Department of Health,
Mr. David Russell Hill of Syracuse, to represent the New York State Indian.

The commission organized on July 9, 1919, by the selection of Assmbyman Everett as Chairman, Senator Black as Vice-Chairman and Arthur C. Parker as Secretary.

If the Congress of the United States, through its committees, can be induced to terminate the present anomalous political status of the tribal Indians in New York and make them full citizens of the State, vested with all the privileges and responsibilities of citizenship, it should not be long thereafter before the so-called Indian problem will have been successfully solved.

Had it not been for the property rights involved the reservation plan would long ago have disappeared in the State of New York, but as the Indians, owing to experience in the past, have been afraid that change of status might result in the total loss of their landed property, the tribes heretofore have always objected to citizenship unaccompanied by satisfactory provisions for safeguarding their property rights. In view of what has been accomplished by Federal legislation for the Western Indians it is highly probable that a reasonable plan can be formulated whereby the New York State Indians will have the full protection of property they need and yet be enabled to enjoy all the rights and privileges of citizens.

The commission has not yet been able to hold the conference with the Congressional committees contemplated in chapter 590 of the Laws of 1919, but it is anticipated that such conferences will be held from time to time after the new session opens.

Many Indian children living on the several reservations should be in boarding schools and provision made for their protection. There is no appropriation for the support of deaf-mute Indian children in schools for the deaf in cases where ordinarily the support would be at county expense. There should be an amendment to the Education Law so that all such children under twelve years of age shall be maintained from the funds made available for the education of State pupils in residential schools.

The State maintains only one institution for dependent Indian children — the Thomas Indian School — and as it is located at Iroquois, in Erie county, the needy children from the reservations in the eastern part of the State are seldom placed in the institution. The management of the school would be glad to receive all the needy children from the St. Regis Reservation, but there are more than enough dependent children on the western reservations to fill the school to its utmost capacity, hence some additional provision for pupils should be made so that the Indian children of the St. Regis Reservation may have an equal opportunity for an education with that enjoyed by the Indian children of the Seneca, Cattaraugus, Tonawanda, Allegany and Onondaga reservations.

If educational institutions under public or private control could be utilized for this class of children whenever the Thomas Indian School is filled, a special fund being appropriated for the maintenance of such pupils, the children of the St. Regis Reservation would have equal opportunity with others for practical training.

FINANCIAL SUMMARY

	Year ending June 30, 1918	Year ending June 30, 1919
Maintenance of State poor.....	7,502.69	6,826.65
Removals of State poor.....	4,359.17	683.45
Removals of non-resident poor.....	7,613.42	7,705.53
Removals of alien poor.....	1,126.59	1,254.90
Maintenance of Indian poor.....	8,348.39	7,823.92

On July 1, 1919, certain bills were due for maintenance, but could not be paid until after the next audit; while several large bills for removals from March 1, 1919, have not been received from the railroad companies. Hence these amounts will appear as expenditures paid during the fiscal year beginning on that date although the funds will be taken from the prior appropriation.

HOMES FOR THE AGED

One of the most important functions of the Division of Adult Wards is the supervision of Homes for the Aged. These are (1) State institutions, (2) the almshouses and municipal lodging-houses, (3) homes for the aged under private control which are in receipt of public money. The first class includes the two State institutions maintained solely for adult wards who have served in the military or naval service of the nation or who are mothers, wives or widows of such veterans. In one of these institutions aged women nurses who served with the military forces of the nation during the Civil War are also accepted. These two institutions — the New York State Soldiers and Sailors' Home, located at Bath, Steuben county, and the New York Woman's Relief Corps Home, located at Oxford, Chenango county, continue in useful operation. For years they have given care and shelter to large numbers of aged men and women who although unable to maintain themselves in their declining years were of great service to the nation in the days of their vigor and maturity.

Besides these two State institutions maintained by direct annual appropriations there are in each of the counties, except Hamilton and Schuyler, public almshouses or homes for the aged and infirm which receive and care for dependent adults. In the city of New York where the county distinction as to relief is abolished, the three divisions of the City Home for the Aged and Infirm receive committed applicants from the five counties which compose the city. In addition to county almshouses some municipalities have established their own homes for the aged and infirm, and the county of Nassau has two town almshouses but no county home.

A general survey during the fiscal year of these public homes for adult dependents has shown that in the main they are in good condition, well managed and have adequate equipment for the care of the class of inmates committed to them. While it is true that none of them are absolutely perfect, with two or three exceptions all indicate real progress and are in better condition than they were one or two years ago. The county superintendents of the poor in their annual conferences insist more and more upon liberal appropriations for improvements and give frequent expression to the belief that their best service to the public is through a constant agitation for good equipment and ample means to maintain this class of public institutions in a satisfactory way.

The great majority of the inmates of homes for the aged are beyond the working period of life and are unfitted for employment. Most of them also suffer from some chronic form of disease, and even those who are not above sixty years of age have either mental, physical or moral weaknesses which make them dependent. In fact many persons who ultimately become inmates of almshouses or prisons have throughout life been incapable of efficient self-direction, and although in their earlier years they may have managed to earn enough to provide food, clothing and shelter for themselves, their lack of stamina and perseverance finally caused them to enter charitable or penal institutions. They are often unrecognized mental defectives, yet their endowment, if developed and used, would be sufficient; but they have either inherited or acquired an unwillingness to struggle even for the acquisition of necessary things or others which they know are desirable. Many are physically defective to such a degree that they cannot be profitably employed. When physical inferiority is coupled with laziness, mental dullness, illiteracy, or other undesirable conditions, which make laborers unacceptable to employers, the unfortunates either become vagrant beggars or enter the almshouse. As a consequence they break down under the strain of protracted effort, and although they may partially recover from time to time are likely to end their days as inmates of public or private institutions.

It is fortunate that the people of the State scrutinize closely the management of our public homes for the aged and although the criticisms made by individuals or committees which appear in the press are not always justified, the fact that an intelligent interest is manifested in the welfare of the aged and infirm by our people is an assurance that abuse, carelessness, and indifference to the needs of the inmates of these public institutions cannot long escape detection. Sometimes very serious charges of brutality on the part of employees have been made by individuals or committees, but in most instances careful inquiry has led to the conclusion that ignorance, excessive zeal in behalf of the inmates, or strong prejudice against officials led to an overemphasis of incidents or conditions. Thus during the past year a complaint against the management of the Broome County Almshouse led to a careful investigation and, although all the facts alleged by the complainants were not proved, the evidence showed the necessity for a change in the administration of the almshouse and the need for a new building besides other improvements conducive to the comfort and welfare of the inmates. The County Superintendent of the Poor, Mr. George A. Watrous, did not, as do many county superintendents, live at the almshouse and it was possible for carelessness and even indifference among employees to exist without his knowledge. He was an excellent official, a thoroughly good citizen of high ideals, one deeply interested in the welfare of the poor of his county, and the nervous strain upon him, due to the adverse criticism of the complainants at a time when he was incapacitated by sickness and confined to his bed, ultimately proved too great and before all the improvements which he hoped to see carried out were accomplished he passed away.

A new superintendent, George C. Briggs, was appointed by the board of supervisors on September 9, 1919, and has announced his intention to carry forward the plans for the changes and improvements recommended by this Board, and the board of supervisors has since appropriated nearly one hundred thousand dollars for the construction of a new dormitory building for men inmates, and as the plans have been approved by the State Board of Charities there is every reason to believe that the unsanitary housing conditions complained of will disappear entirely when this new building is in use.

STATE HOMES FOR THE AGED

The two following institutions in this class are an outgrowth of philanthropic activities which began during the Civil War and have continued nearly sixty years.

NEW YORK STATE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS' HOME

Bath, Steuben County

Established 1878

President, Board of Trustees: Robert P. Bush, M. D., Horseheads.

Secretary: Col. Peter Sheridan, Rochester.

Commandant: Col. S. M. Morgan.

This institution has capacity for 1,400 inmates. The number of inmates July 1, 1918, was 1,047; the admissions were 615; total enrollment for the year, 1,662. There were 469 discharged, and 191 died, leaving at the end of the year a membership of 1,002. The average number present during the year was 853, and the weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $8.44; excluding this, $7.97.

The decline in the inmate population in this Home which has brought the roster of membership down to 1,000 men is expected to continue until arrangements are made whereby the institution can receive an additional class of dependent veterans. The survivors of the Civil War are passing fast and in the course of nature the day is not far distant when "Taps" shall be sounded over the last representative of that sturdy and valiant host which bore the Stars and Stripes through years of conflict to the final victory which made this a nation one united and indivisible.

We who live in the present and are realizing to some extent the horrors of the Great World War lately ended may see less clearly national conditions as they existed from 1860 to 1866 during which time not only were sanguinary battles fought but men's minds were so exercised upon great national problems that everywhere — North, South, East and West — all other interests were largely lost sight of in the effort to bring to a happy end the great military and political struggle. The men of 1861–1865 were then as the men of 1917, 1918 and 1919, in their full strength representing the moral and physical power of the nation.

The comparatively small number of survivors who remain deserve the recognitions they have received, and therefore the enfeebled veterans who have found their way to the State Soldiers and Sailors' Home to be maintained as State charges and who so well served the country in their days of vigor cannot be permitted to go without satisfactory care in their old age. A complaint has been made by one of the trustees of this institution that inmates have been abused and robbed; pensions have been misused, and helpless patients in the hospital have been neglected by attendants. These charges have resulted in a request from the Board of Trustees that the Governor order a special investigation and he has directed the Lieutenant-Governor of the State to conduct such an examination into the affairs of the Home, and no doubt all the charges will be sifted to the bottom and their truth, falsity or exaggeration established.

Ordinarily such an investigation would be conducted by the State Board of Charities or by a special committee of its members appointed for the purpose, but doubtless section 11 of the State Charities Law was in mind when the Lieutenant-Governor was directed to make this inquiry. This section exempts the New York State Soldiers and Sailors' Home "from the management and control of the State Board of Charities and in respect to said institution said Board is hereafter only to exercise its constitutional right to visit and inspect," which was probably interpreted by the Governor to mean that investigations when necessary are to be made by some other authority.

The constitutional functions of "visitation and inspection" cannot be taken from the State Board of Charities by statute, thus as the Board has never undertaken either "management" or "control," section 11 of the State Charities Law seems only to take from it "management and control" never either exercised or claimed and in fact inconsistent with its real powers. The section, however, makes clear the two facts that "visitation and inspection" differ from "management and control" as functions, and therefore as the constitutional duty of the State Board of Charities cannot be transferred to any other State Department the provision of section 11 of the State Charities Law like those of chapter 136 of the Laws of 1919 which seek to transfer to the Commissioner of Education

"all the powers and duties heretofore exercised and performed by the State Board of Charities relating to the 'regulation, supervision and control of such school (the State School for the Blind of Batavia)' under the provisions of the State Charities Law" is, in the words of the Attorney-General of this State, in his opinion dated July 21, 1919, upon the last quoted language

"as nearly nugatory as a statute could be."

It should be stated here that, as the constitutional functions of "visitation and inspection" devolved upon the State Board of Charities are very important, the Legislature has embodied some of their features in the State Charities Law in its statement of the general powers and duties of the Board; but it does not attempt to limit or define the words "visit and inspect" as it is apparent that the Board must decide for itself what it regards as necessary for the accomplishment of these two things.

The purpose of this method of supervision is the acquirement of information and to be satisfactory it should be sufficient to safeguard the institutions by the discovery and prevention of evils and abuses and for the advancement of the purposes for which the State charitable institutions are established.

The Legislature by section 9 of the State Charities Law which requires the Board to:

"visit, inspect and maintain a general supervision of all institutions, societies or associations which are of a charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory character, whether state or municipal, incorporated or not incorporated, which are made subject to its supervision by the constitution or by law" specifically requires that it shall:

"1. Aid in securing the just, humane and economic administration of all institutions subject to its supervision.

2. Advise the officers of such institutions in the performance of their official duties.

3. Aid in securing the erection of suitable buildings for the accommodation of the inmates of such institutions aforesaid.

4. Approve or disapprove the organization and incorporation of all institutions of a charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory character which are or shall be subject to the supervision and inspection of the Board.

5. Investigate the management of all institutions made subject to the supervision of the Board, and the conduct and efficiency of the officers or persons charged with their management, and the care and relief of the inmates of such institution therein or in transit.

6. Aid in securing the best sanitary conditions of the buildings and grounds of all such institutions, and advise measures for the protection and preservation of the health of the inmates.

7. Aid in securing the establishment and maintenance of such industrial, educational and moral training in institutions having the care of children as is best suited to the needs of the inmates.

8. Establish rules for the reception and retention of inmates of all institutions which, by section fourteen of article eight of the constitution, are subject to its supervision.

9. Investigate the condition of the poor seeking public aid and advise measures for their relief.

10. Administer the laws providing for the care, support and removal of state and alien poor and the support of Indian poor persons.

An examination of these requirements shows that they can be accomplished only through visitation and inspection and therefore may be taken as the minimum of duty involved in the terms. They are still further amplified in section 12 which gives full warrant for any action of the Board which it may deem essential for its information. From these two sections of the State Charities Law it is apparent that if properly exercised the functions of visitation and inspection are essential if any supervision of institutions is to be of real service to the Commonwealth.

The outcome of the pending investigation by the Lieutenant Governor under the Moreland Act should prove helpful to the institution and its inmates and settle once for all the oft-repeated rumors that the old men there are abused by employees. It is a fact that the human mind has a tendency to habit and where from day to day attendants see individuals suffering from incapacitating diseases the original tendency to sympathy may become dulled, even lost, and indifference take its place. If attendants and other employees responsible for the daily care of helpless patients were always of the highest moral and spiritual type, sympathy would not wane and indifference could never develop, but, as the institutions of the State are compelled to accept the applicants for service who present themselves, frequently among such applicants are individuals whose habits of life would not stand close scrutiny.

This is true of all classes of public institutions in which the attendants receive small salaries and especially does it affect those in which the service is made difficult and to some extent repulsive owing to the weakness and functional disabilities of the inmates. The Soldiers and Sailors' Home at Bath has a constant hospital population of approximately 500 very aged and diseased men, all of whom are physically unable to attend to themselves without assistance, and it is easily conceivable that without close supervision the repulsive nature of some of the duties of the orderlies might lead to indifference to the patients' needs, and even to criminal neglect. For this reason the investigation must in the end strengthen the morale of the service; for attendants suspected or accused of neglect will leave the institution and a more stringent oversight be maintained throughout all the departments of the Home.

NEW YORK STATE WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS HOME

Oxford, Chenango County

Established 1894

President, Board of Managers: Mrs. Georgianna Griffith, 54 East 59th street, New York City.

Secretary: Mrs. Mary E. Seely, 719 East Genesee street, Syracuse.

Superintendent: Col. James S. Graham.

This Home has capacity for 220 inmates. The number of inmates present July 1, 1918, was 158 and 81 were admitted, making the total number under care 239. During the year 35 died and 41 were discharged, leaving June 30, 1919, 163 inmates, of whom 24 were men and 139 women. The average number was 156, and the average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $11.32; excluding this value, $9.95.

This institution is closely associated in the public mind with the State Soldiers and Sailors' Home at Bath because not only are some of the aged veterans, formerly at Bath, now with their wives maintained in the institution but from the further fact that the widows and mothers of deceased former members of the Soldiers' Home make up a large majority of those who are now received in the Woman's Relief Corps Home.

The Woman's Relief Corps Home at Oxford is an outgrowth of the patriotic work organized by the Woman's Relief Corps of the State of New York which association is closely affiliated with the Grand Army of the Republic. The women recognized the urgent need of some provision for the relief, not only of dependent disabled veterans, but also for dependent women army nurses, and by chapter 468 of the Laws of 1894 they secured the establishment of "The New York State Home for the aged, dependent veteran and his wife, veterans' mothers, widows and army nurses, residents of New York," and obtained from the Legislature an appropriation of $2,000 which was followed by an appropriation of $25,000 in 1895, and another of $50,000 in 1896, whereby land was purchased, plans made for the buildings and the work of construction begun. It is now a well-arranged institution devoted mainly to the care of sick inmates.

The advanced age of the members of the Home makes them all infirm; many are bedridden and require constant lifting and other personal attention, careful nursing and medical treatment, so that the Home is practically a hospital where all the work must be done by employees.

Most of the counties in the State were represented in the Home during the fiscal year. Death caused many changes as there are new admissions whenever room is available from this or other cause, and as there are many women under sixty-five years of age eligible for admission no doubt the Home will continue to be taxed to its full capacity for years to come.

Like the New York State Soldiers and Sailors' Home at Bath, the mission of this institution is now extended by the ending of the Great War and before long its accommodations must provide for disabled army nurses and other women whose arduous duties abroad cause breakdown.

CITY, COUNTY AND TOWN ALMSHOUSES

These institutions in the several counties of the State have been under the close supervision of the Board during the past year, and in addition to the inspections made by inspectors assigned to this special duty, many of them have been visited by the President, Commissioners and Secretary of the Board. The beneficial influence of visitations by Commissioners and officials of the Board is recognized in the almshouses and both employees and inmates allude to such visits long after their occurrence. The old men and women realize they are subject to a friendly public interest, and are therefore more contented than they would be without periodic contact with representatives of the State.

It is gratifying to report that as a whole these institutions are doing satisfactory work and desirable improvements have been made in their equipment and to the buildings. The superintendents, keepers and matrons are as a rule competent administrators who try to make the inmates contented. Occasionally some inmates need discipline, which is given usually in the form of deprivation of some privilege, but since prohibition became effective this is seldom necessary as the rules established for the government of the almshouses are mild and usually obeyed without question.

It has been difficult during the past five years to secure or retain employees for almshouse service, especially in the rural districts. The farm work the past year was done with less help than ever before, as the high wages paid by manufacturing plants attracted the best laborers, and almshouses could not pay as much. In some institutions two men have done the work which required four laborers heretofore. The inmates were called upon to help but as they seldom were able to work on the farm the farm production fell below the usual annual average. Not only were few men available, the women employees were fewer in number, and kitchen and dining-room service suffered equally with the farms. Now that demobilization is completed it is anticipated the labor problem will be less difficult.

The inability of inmates to labor efficiently on the institution farms or even do the routine domestic work satisfactorily has often been noted, but when their physical and mental character is understood, it becomes apparent that successful farm work cannot be carried on by this class of laborers. They are usually untrained in farm work, and have not sufficient strength for the steady drive of the gardens, fields and orchards. Physically broken down, in many instances they lack mental power to conserve their strength or to follow directions carefully, hence cannot be depended upon for the performance of even comparatively simple tasks, although in some instances feeble-minded inmates have done good work, especially in connection with the care of stock.

The proper care of the aged sick inmates is often a difficult matter in rural almshouses, usually because of lack of facilities and competent attendants. Thus in the Livingston county institution the principal defect relates to the care of the sick. The brick building formerly used as the county asylum for the insane has become greatly dilapidated during the years which have elapsed since the insane inmates were transferred from county to State care. The county, with advantage to itself, could have utilized the building for hospital purposes for the past twenty years, and even now if repaired and remodeled it can be transformed into a good hospital and one more county enter the ranks of those credited with adequate equipment for the care of the dependent sick.

Almshouse inspection reports are classified and graded as to plant and administration. Institutions which are practically without defects are placed in Class I, those with few or less important defects in Class II, and those having many or very serious defects in Class III. For example, one almshouse is graded second class in administration because it may be unclean or the dietary unsatisfactory, and third class in plant in consequence of the fire danger or the physical condition of old buildings, but superintendents and keepers who are doing well with old buildings and inadequate equipment receive high rating on administration and the credit due for cleanliness, and order, even though the plants may be graded low.

The grading of all almshouses outside of New York City follows:

CLASSIFICATION OF ALMSHOUSES

First Class in Administration and Plant

Chautauqua County Almshouse.	Niagara County Almshouse.
Dutchess County Almshouse.	Oyster Bay and North Hempstead Town Almshouse.
Genesee County Almshouse.	Poughkeepsie City Almshouse.
Jefferson County Almshouse.	Saratoga County Almshouse.
Lewis County Almshouse.	Schenectady County Almshouse.
Monroe County Almshouse.
Newburgh City Almshouse.

First Class in Administration and Second Class in Plant

Allegany County Almshouse.	Oneida County Almshouse.
Cattaraugus County Almshouse.	Onondaga County Almshouse.
Chemung County Almshouse.	Orange County Almshouse.
Chenango County Almshouse.	Orleans County Almshouse.
Clinton County Almshouse.	Oswego City Almshouse.
Columbia County Almshouse.	Oswego County Almshouse.
Cortland County Almshouse.	Schoharie County Almshouse.
Delaware County Almshouse.	Steuben County Almshouse.
Essex County Almshouse.	Suffolk County Almshouse.
Fulton County Almshouse.	Ulster County Almshouse.
Greene County Almshouse.	Warren County Almshouse.
Hempstead Town Almshouse.	Westchester County Almshouse.
Kingston City Almshouse.	Wyoming County Almshouse.
Livingston County Almshouse.	Yates County Almshouse.
Montgomery County Almshouse.

First Class in Administration and Second Class in Plant

Albany City and County Almshouse.	St. Lawrence County Almshouse.
Cayuga County Almshouse.	Seneca County Almshouse.
Erie County Almshouse.	Washington County Almshouse.
Ontario County Almshouse.

Second Class in Administration and Plant

Broome County Almshouse.	Tioga County Almshouse.
Herkimer County Almshouse.	Tompkins County Almshouse.
Madison County Almshouse.	Wayne County Almshouse.
Rockland County Almshouse.

Second Class in Administration and Third Class in Plant

Franklin County Almshouse.	Rensselaer County Almshouse.
Otsego County Almshouse.	Sullivan County Almshouse.
Putnam County Almshouse.

The tables excluding New York City are consolidated as follows:

Classification		Number of institutions in class	Per- centage
Administration
I	48	80
II	12	20
Total number graded.....		60
Plant
I	12	20
II	36	60
III	12	20
Total number graded		60

The foregoing tables of classification show that 80 per cent. of the almshouse institutions are graded first class in administration, the other 20 per cent. being in the second class. The gradings as to plant, however, show that only 20 per cent. of the institutions are in the first class, 60 per cent. in second and 20 per cent. in the third, which clearly indicates that most of the administrative officers do the best they can with inferior plants and therefore receive credit for their good work in the Board's rating of administration.

In this connection examination of the group of five almshouses in the lowest classification, that is, those placed in the third class as to plant and the second in administration, as none during the year fell into third class as to administration, shows that the five institutions, the almshouses of Franklin, Otsego, Putnam, Rensselaer and Sullivan counties, have very serious defects, have been slow in making improvements, and the county supervisors failed to accept and act upon the suggestions of this Board prior to the close of the fiscal year June 30, 1919, although in Franklin, Otsego and Sullivan counties the classification has been changed since that date to reflect extensive improvements.

The Franklin County Almshouse is defective in its equipment, especially in the provisions for the care of the sick and those for protection against fire. The water pressure is insufficient for a three-story building, being dependent upon attic tanks and the canvass shute fire escapes are not adapted to almshouse or hospital use on account of the physical inability of inmates. The building has no sitting-rooms for inmates, and there is need of hospital facilities and equipment.

The Otsego County Almshouse, the main building of which was erected in 1827, is one of the older type and its dormitories long ago became insufficient to accomodate properly the county poor. In the old stone house, used for the women and for staff purposes, the basement floor has been cemented, but the ventilation is poor. Rooms below ground level are in use as bedrooms. The men's buildings are unsafe, and while there is a good small hospital and a fine service building, the poor and insufficient accomodations for the men inmates easily accounts for placing in the third class as to plant. In this almshouse the present superintendent assumed charge January 1, 1919, and has since striven to improve conditions so successfully that a later classification for administration has given it a higher rating.

The Putnam County Almshouse has been severely criticized by this Board because the building in the event of fire will be likely to prove a fire trap. It has no satisfactory provision for the care of the sick and in fact the small, unsanitary building called a hospital should long ago have been taken down and the few almshouse patients provided for in the nearest well-equipped public hospital. The board of supervisors of Putnam county has been urged to make arrangements with the adjoining county of Westchester for the care of its aged and infirm poor, as the new almshouse recently opened upon the Westchester County Farm has ample room to accommodate them. If this course should be followed the public charges would receive excellent care in one of the best arranged and equipped almshouses in the United States and at an expense to the county less than it must bear to maintain the unsuitable almshouse at Carmel.

The Sullivan County Almshouse has been subject heretofore to severe criticism for its condition and administration, and on June 30, 1919, the close of the fiscal year, was still rated in the third class as to plant and second class in administration. The new county superintendent of the poor who, since January 1, 1919, has been responsible for the administration of the institution, has taken a keen interest in making improvements. His efforts evince a desire to make the almshouse a credit to the county, and therefore since the close of the fiscal year and the completion of the foregoing tables his efforts have received recognition. The whole institution has been put into a state of repair, the buildings are now repainted inside and out, safety equipment has been installed to lessen the fire danger, and the general appearance of grounds and buildings now suggests attention and some degree of comfort. This indicates that Sullivan county officials have been amenable to persuasion and that the repeated recommendations of the State Board of Charities have borne fruit in great improvements. This much is said because the spirit of progress has been lacking in some counties as they have either stood still or retrograded, while the Sullivan county administration has made a praiseworthy advance.

The condition and equipment of the Rensselaer County Almshouse indicate that the county board of supervisors of Rensselaer county and the county superintendent of the poor do not fully realize the unsanitary conditions under which the aged men and women committed to the institution are maintained.

The main dormitory wards intended for inmates who are not sick are, especially on the men's side, gloomy and forbidding. Their unplastered brick interior walls, mill construction ceiling, dilapidated bedsteads, stained and dirty bedding are cheerless and have no promise of comfort for the crippled or enfeebled men assigned to such dormitories. The garret which has been used as a dormitory is even worse.

For years the attention of the controlling authorities has been directed to the meager provision for the sick at the almshouse and they have been urged to do something in the way of improvement of equipment and attention which would lead to more humane care of such cases. The two small wings in which the sick are kept are now and have been for years unsanitary, overcrowded and unsuitable for the treatment of disease. In the wards of both the so-called hospitals the unfortunate aged bedridden inmates can only hopelessly look forward to ultimate release from their misery.

There is no excuse for these conditions as a good hospital building stands vacant upon the almshouse grounds which, prior to July 1, 1919, was used for the care and treatment of patients suffering from tuberculosis. The county of Rensselaer erected a new and larger hospital for the treatment of this special disease and the patients were removed from the Lakeview Sanatorium which has stood unused since. There are ample supplies, furniture, well-ventilated wards, large screened verandas and sun-rooms and there should be no delay in using these facilities.

THE NEW YORK CITY HOME FOR THE AGED AND INFIRM

The three almshouses of the city of New York, now officially designated as "Homes for the Aged and Infirm," were at first separate institutions established as the county asylums for the poor and needy of New York, Kings and Richmond counties, when the city, then confined to Manhattan Island, was all within the boundaries of New York county. The original city almshouse after several removals was finally located on Blackwell's Island where it now stands. The Kings County Almshouse, established in Flatbush, and the Richmond County Almshouse on Staten Island came under the control of the city when its boundaries were extended to include these counties and also Queens and both the institutions are now branches of the City Home for the Aged and Infirm. Queens county formerly had its own almshouse, but when that county was divided and a part was made Nassau county and the remainder taken into the city its almshouse property was sold and the residents in that part of the city which constitutes the borough of Queens when in need of institutional care are sent usually to the Brooklyn branch.

It is a matter of historical interest that out of the original almshouse of New York City has developed the present great public hospital system which includes the hospitals of the Department of Public Charities, all of the institutions controlled by the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals and those of the city Department of Health. All the public hospitals, especially those on Blackwell's Island, are still closely connected with the City Home as their patients are frequently dependents who remain as public charges for long terms after transfer to the Home while many of the poor originally committed to the almshouses are subsequently transferred to the city hospitals for treatment. It is also significant that the recognition of the close relation between dependence and certain forms of delinquency, which made almshouse and workhouse a common home for all classes of public charges, has in these later years led to better measures for the reformation of those who were formerly deemed incorrigible. It may be said that modern penology in the United States had its birth when people gave heed to plea for a change in policy and real classification of public wards.

THE NEW YORK CITY HOME FOR THE AGED AND INFIRM

Manhattan Division

The Blackwell's Island division of the City Home has capacity for 3,000 inmates and when this number is exceeded, as it is from time to time, inmates are transferred to the Farm Colony on Staten Island unless they require hospital care. The overcrowding is noticeable in the inclement autumn and winter seasons and then the census of the institution is usually much greater than the actual bed capacity. Extra cots and mattresses are used until transfers relieve the congestion.

Some of the almshouse buildings are now quite old and many are too close together. Not much land is now available on this island either for additional structures or the wider separation desirable for the protection of the other dormitories, as a considerable part of the island is occupied by the workhouse under control of the Department of Correction. When the inmates in that institution are finally removed to Riker's Island, the workhouse buildings and grounds can be remodeled and used for almshouse purposes and should relieve this Home from its periodic overcrowding and also make a complete and desirable separation of the aged and infirm poor from the workhouse prisoners.

The State Board of Charities has heretofore recommended that this removal of the workhouse and penitentiary be made and Blackwell's Island be used exclusively for infirmary and hospital purposes. This would permit all dependents who do not require hospital care to be transferred to the Farm Colony, using the island Home as a reception and observation institution from which all transfers would be made after careful study. The Home needs additional dormitory buildings for both inmates and employees and many other improvements for the most urgent of which the Board of Estimate and Apportionment has made appropriations in part.

Attention has been called to the unsuitable accommodations provided for attendants and orderlies and to the inefficiency of many of these helpers. A larger and more modern service building with good dormitories for the help would attract a much better class of attendants if wages are increased, but the pay is small and therefore hospitals and other city institutions are compelled to employ many inefficient and unreliable helpers, often selected from the stronger inmates. The same condition exists in the three branches of the City Home and until men and women who are competent and reliable can be attracted to the service by the offer of higher wages the homes will continue handicapped.

The necessity of constant vigilance for the protection of inmates from inefficiency, carelessness and cruelty is evidenced by the receipt of complaints alleging the ill-treatment of inmates,—complaints usually without signature—although occasionally inmates or their friends sign their letters. Such complaints show that the superintendents of these Homes for the Aged and Infirm need the assistance of competent and conscientious nurses, orderlies and other attendants that the dependent wards of the city may be assured adequate care.

THE NEW YORK CITY HOME FOR THE AGED AND INFIRM

Brooklyn Division

Conditions similar to those which exist in the Blackwell's Island Home are found in the Flatbush Home which is closely associated with the Kings County Hospital, being under the same management and receiving many inmates therefrom after they have been discharged from medical care to this Home, formerly known as the Kings County Almshouse. Its buildings are both old and poorly planned and the general service plant is no longer adequate. The Home has capacity for 1,300 beds but when the winter season approaches so many persons unable to provide for themselves are forced to apply for admission that the dormitories are overcrowded and the number of inmates is much greater than the proper bed capacity.

Two new dormitory buildings, one for women inmates, the other for employees, would relieve this condition. The latter building has been needed for years and would not only open up for inmate occupation rooms in the present buildings now used for attendants but would attract to the service a better class of employees. Besides these two buildings there is also need for a modern service building to provide greater comfort for inmates and employees and better administrative facilities than the present inadequate quarters.

Another necessary improvement is the arrangement of general day rooms so planned that groups of inmates may have opportunities for reading and other recreations apart from smokers and the annoyances incident to the usual overcrowding in general day rooms where separation into congenial groups is impossible.

In connection with these extensions of the plant, industrial facilities should be provided so that such inmates as are found competent for light industrial work could be given employment. The deadly monotony of almshouse life when passed in idleness soon breaks down the desire to be self-supporting, and accounts for much of the pauperism which keeps such institutions filled with comparatively able-bodied inmates who, although not able for heavy labor, are fit for light employment under careful supervision. Employment should be provided for all inmates capable of work and if their labor is utilized properly it will prove a large factor in the maintenance of a proper morale. Among dependents in almshouses are many who, owing to shiftlessness, indifference, ignorance, or other characteristics, have never been able to retain positions, yet even these can be made useful. It is highly desirable for health and contentment therefore that workrooms for various light employments shall be provided, so that all inmates may be encouraged and stimulated to continue active.

NEW YORK CITY FARM COLONY

Staten Island

This branch of the City Home for the Aged and Infirm was formerly known as the Richmond County Almshouse. Its buildings now have capacity for 1,200 inmates but the constant growth of the city requires the erection of additional dormitory buildings so that ultimately 2,500 inmates can be cared for at this institution. The enlargement of the Farm Colony will prevent periodic overcrowding in the other two branches of the City Home for the Aged and Infirm and at the same time will afford a better opportunity for a reclassification of all the almshouse inmates than is possible at present.

As its name — Farm Colony — implies, this institution is intended for comparatively able-bodied aged men and women committed to the City Home who are capable of doing more or less work upon the farm. The large tract of land owned by the city and devoted to gardening affords an opportunity for inmates to work in the open air under congenial conditions with benefit to themselves and the city. Many persons who have been in the public hospitals of the city require a period of after-care for the complete restoration of health, but such patients when discharged from hospitals where after-care cannot be given, are frequently compelled to begin strenuous labor at once and soon break down again, in some instances becoming permanent public charges upon the city. A period of residence at the Farm Colony while unfit for work and convalescing after discharge from the hospitals would in many instances prevent this permanent break down and restore to the community individuals who otherwise would fall into the ranks of the incapables.

In the immediate neighborhood of the Farm Colony is Sea View Hospital, the city's largest institution for the treatment of tuberculosis. This hospital is closely related to the Farm Colony and was at one time under the same superintendent. Although now separate it will benefit from an enlargement of the Colony. In fact, not only in the two large institutions on Staten Island, but in the branches of the City Home for the Aged and Infirm on Blackwell's Island and in Brooklyn, and also in the hospitals of the Department of Public Charities, the products of very extensive farms and gardens can be profitably utilized.

The Colony having many inmates capable of domestic service is better able to face the serious employment problem than are the other branches of the City Home although inmate labor in its domestic service is only one factor in the problem. Conscientious and competent paid employees are necessary at the Colony for many kinds of labor and also for the supervision of the inmates. The distance of the institution from Manhattan and its lack of recreational opportunities make employees restless, changes are frequent and in fact it is sometimes almost impossible to obtain efficient persons for the general service.

The inadequate transportation facilities on Staten Island are a drawback to the Colony as sometimes there are serious delays in the reception of necessary supplies. The Island trolleys if extended to the Farm Colony would remedy this to some extent, but direct tunnel communication when provided will be a great convenience and add to the comfort of inmates and employees. Easy access to the centre of the city will in large measure remove most of the discontent which causes frequent change of attendants and other employees.

THE MUNICIPAL LODGING HOUSE

432-438 East 25th Street, New York City

The Municipal Lodging House of New York City is a fine seven-story fireproof building with accommodations for 1,000 lodgers although upon occasions when the inclemency of stormy winter nights has driven the homeless into such shelters as they could find, over 2,400 lodgers have been kept over night, some sleeping in the beds and others upon the floors. Although able to accommodate such a large number of destitute and needy persons there are days when less than 50 have applied for shelter. Owing to improved industrial conditions the demands upon the institution have greatly lessened in the last two years.

The men applying for lodgment are usually nonresident transients who have used all their resources in various ways in the city, sometimes in seeking for work, or who in passing through have become destitute and need an opportunity to seek work. Some, however, who are cared for in the Municipal Lodging House belong in the city and not infrequently families evicted by landlords from tenements have had recourse to the Lodging House for temporary shelter.

The institution is, through its Social Service Bureau, enabled to assist many of the transients to employment, the number of such placements approximating 200 each month. That Bureau was much interested in the welfare of the soldiers in the city during the demobilization period. In the first seven months of the fiscal year, which was the time of greatest activity in this direction, 7,651 soldiers on furloughs or passes were given lodgment, meals and other aid, the greatest number received being in the months of August and September, when 2,800 were sheltered.

An institution as large as this needs constant care to keep it in sanitary condition especially as many of the temporary lodgers are careless and even filthy in their habits and during the year the attention of the responsible authorities was called to the necessity of many repairs including among others the laundry machinery and the facilities for ventilation.

Many of the employees are unpaid helpers taken from the applicants for temporary shelter. Usually these persons render good service, but necessarily there is a constant change. They are employed in the boiler-room, at the fumigation plant, in the laundry, the kitchen and the dining-room, besides in general cleaning.

Such an institution properly managed is exceedingly useful as a social agency in the city of New York. The Superintendent and other officials have had a long experience in the public service and make the best of the means in their power to assist those who are placed in their charge and although many repairs must be provided for in the annual appropriation the Municipal Lodging House is a credit to the city.

PRIVATE HOMES FOR ADULTS

Churches and charitable organizations in the State of New York have established and maintain under private control many homes for the care of aged and infirm adults. As a rule these institutions are entirely supported by the contributions of friends or by income from endowments and bequests. When thus independently supported they are not subject to visitation and inspection by the State Board of Charities as are twenty-eight other homes of this class which receive public funds for the care of persons committed to them by overseers of the poor, commissioners of charities, or county superintendents of the poor.

The twenty-eight private homes for adults visited and inspected by this Board may be grouped as follows:

IN NEW YORK CITY AND VICINITY:

The Church Home for the Blind, 452 Herkimer street, Brooklyn.

The Lakeview Home, Fingerboard Road, Arrochar, Richmond.

The Lincoln Hospital and Home, East 141st street and Concord avenue, Brooklyn.

The Ozanam Home for Friendless Women, 46-48 Concord street, Brooklyn.

The Peabody Home for Aged and Indigent Women, 2084 Boston road, Bronx.

St. Catharine's Infirmary, North Amityville, L. I.

The Salvation Army Rescue and Industrial Home for Women, 316-318 East 15th street, Manhattan.

The Society for the Aid of Friendless Women and Children, 20 Concord street, Brooklyn.

IN BUFFALO AND VICINITY:

The Church Home of the German Evangelical Churches, Forks.

The Home for the Friendless, 1500 Main street, Buffalo.

King's Daughters Home, 134 Mariner street, Buffalo.

The Lutheran Church Home for the Aged and Infirm, 217
East Delevan avenue, Buffalo.

The Lutheran Hospice, 115 Glenwood avenue, Buffalo.

Orthodox Jewish Old Folks Home, 210 Porter avenue, Buffalo.

St. Francis Asylum, 337 Pine street, Buffalo

St. Francis Asylum (Gardenville Branch), Gardenville.

St. Francis Asylum (Williamsville Branch), Williamsville.

Salvation Army Rescue Home, 69 Cottage street, Buffalo.

The Society for Deaconess' Work, 563 Riley street, Buffalo.

IN OTHER CITIES:

The Auburn Home for the Friendless, 46 Grant avenue
Auburn.

The Bethesda Home, 1627 Third avenue, Watervliet.

The Church Home of the Protestant Episcopal Church, 509
Mount Hope avenue, Rochester.

The Cortland County Home for Aged Women, Main street, Homer.

The Jewish Home for the Aged of Central New York, 712½
Irving avenue, Syracuse.

Ogdensburg City Hospital and Orphan Asylum (Department for the Aged), 45 King street, Ogdensburg.

The Refuge of the City of Binghamton, 64 Fairview avenue, Binghamton.

St. Ann's Home for the Aged, 1971 Lake avenue, Rochester.

Syracuse Home Association, Hawley and Townsend streets.
Syracuse.

It will be noticed from the titles of several of the institutions that all are not solely for adults nor are any of them exclusively for dependent persons although all do receive public charges. Some, like "The Salvation Army Rescue and Industrial Home for Women," in the borough of Manhattan, New York City, have hospital departments used principally for maternity cases. Others receive mothers with their children for temporary care. "The Refuge of the City of Binghamton" is an example of this class and several are emergency homes intended for temporary care and occasionally used for the detention of young women who may be in dire need stranded in the city.

In committing persons to these homes an effort is made by public officials to utilize their facilities for the special needs of the individuals, but as they are all under private control the strict classification necessary for public charges is not always maintained yet they serve the public for the special cases not otherwise provided for. They are an excellent type of institutional homes and stand apart from the almshouses of the State as usually the majority of their inmates are not wholly dependent upon the public. Their managers and supporters deserve commendation for the benevolent work the institutions are doing in their special fields and for the high standard of efficiency they represent. Until the public makes its own provision for the various types of special cases which need permanent institutional care the activities of many philanthropic men and women must continue to be exercised through these private homes, and the incorporation of more of them seems to be a public need.

IV. DIVISION OF MENTAL DEFECT AND DELINQUENCY

Committee on Mental Defect and Delinquency: Commissioner Lewis, Chairman; the President, ex-officio; Commissioners Marquand, Kevin, Higley and Glynn.

Chester Lee Carlisle, M. D., Superintendent of Division.

The Division of Mental Defect and Delinquency has general supervision of the State, city, and private institutions caring for mental defectives and epileptics, and of all reformatories, except those for children, which are subject to the supervision of the State Board of Charities.

The number and classification of institutions supervised by the Board through this division are as follows:

	State	Other public	Private	Total
Institutions for mental defectives.....	4	1	1	6
Institutions for epileptics	1	1
Reformatories	3	1	10	14
Totals	8	2	11	21

Nine meetings of the committee were held during the year, at which careful consideration was given to reports of inspection of institutions belonging to the division, and to the various problems of mental defect and delinquency to which reference is made in this report.

The Bureau of Analysis and Investigation is also included in this division and has for its functions the collection of data relating to social problems, particularly the existence of mental defect, and its presentation to the public in the form of bulletins issued by the Board. The analysis of social data as it comes to this office through the medium of admission records of dependent-defective individuals has been elaborated on the case-history cards and forms an extraordinary means of tracing related families which are producing dependent or defective units. The files of case records afford means by which the Board frequently is enabled to assist the social workers of the counties of the State in arriving at definite conclusions concerning specific problems in their local community work. Letters received from such social agents gratefully acknowledging this help are evidence of the value of the data preserved in this way.

The State Board of Charities has cooperated with the work carried on by the Commission for Mental Defectives by the assignment of the investigators of the Bureau to make psychometric examinations in mental clinics, and by furnishing reports and other data of value to the commission. Mental examinations are also made upon the request of public officials and institutions, as the limited staff permits. Such requests have come from county agents, probation officers, superintendents of the poor, commissioners of charities, reformatories, institutions for children, and school authorities. The State institutions for mental defectives have in some instances asked for information as to local conditions surrounding homes of inmates whose discharge has been under consideration, which information has been secured when possible and furnished to the institutions.

Owing to the absence of the Division Superintendent, Dr. Carlisle, in the army during the greater portion of the fiscal year, no new bulletins were issued. The following is a tabulation of some of the general activities of the Bureau during the year:

New cases written.....	2,392
Old cases added to by office staff.....	1,248
Bulletins distributed	1,300
Census cards prepared.....	2,494
Mental examinations made.....	1,068

SOCIAL UNREST AND DELINQUENCY

Before the great cataclysm of the world's war took place, experts had formulated ideas concerning the type of delinquents rather clearly into a few groups, namely, delinquency due to gross mental defect; delinquency due to slight mental defect (moronism) associated with affective deviation; delinquency due to constitutional psychopathic states associated with an inadequate personality, tendency to pathological lying, wanderlust, and other allied traits not useful to society; delinquency due to definite psychoses either of a constitutional type or organic in nature; delinquency due to extraordinary environmental reactions and occurring in presumably normal mentality. It was felt in pre-war days that the problem of caring for delinquent types could be fairly well met by the extension of mental clinics which would separate the various types known to exist and leave the residue of so-called normal individuals largely to the care of a modified parole system, after the abnormal mental types had been placed in institutions suited to their care, whereby much of the old horror of prison life would be abolished, with much better results as to the chances for the rehabilitation of the individual.

The world war with its consequent upsetting of all ordinary balances in social and commercial life, flame-colored by the extraordinary emotional swings of the whole human race in connection with the death and devastation produced, has demonstrated that delinquency among the so-called normal type in the groups enumerated above is a thing which depends upon many factors, some but dimly recognized in the past, all of which affect the individual. Some of these traits reach back into heredity; others depend upon environment in childhood and general training; others are influenced by the constitutional peculiarity of the individual's character which may show extraordinary emotional traits, particularly in the direction of overvaluation of ideas, easy suggestibility, and the like. Individuals of this latter group in ordinary times might have remained staid and plodding citizens in a simple and unchanging environment, but ambitions and long submerged wishes were able to find an outlet through the excitement of the war or through extraordinary commercial situations arising during the course of the war, including unexpectedly high wages and vastly increased ability to satisfy personal whims and cravings. Under such circumstances many persons developed a peculiar attitude of mind quite at variance with former concepts of their station in life and the possibilities of their community. As a result we read of waves of crime which have swept over the world, orgies of dissipation, and in particular an increase in crimes of acquisitiveness, as witnessed in the tremendous increase in automobile thefts, silk stealing, and the like.

Delinquency, then, must be looked upon not only as the reaction of an individual possibly of an abnormal type, but also as the reaction of an individual in any of these types in relation to his environment when the environment itself shows extraordinary variation from what might be expected.

The consideration of these things demonstrates more forcibly than ever before how the whole future of the problem of delinquency depends first upon adequate diagnosis of existing mental or physical defect, the correction of these defects so far as possible, and the training of the individual in a scholastic and vocational way, and finally the placing out of the individual under supervision in the community in a sphere to which he will be suited by reason of the foregoing diagnosis and specialized training. It is important that institutions be adequately manned by a personnel having insight into these needs who will further assist in the rehabilitation of social liabilities under their care through an adequate graded scholastic and vocational system, and finally through a modern parole system which by social service will reduce environmental stress to the minimum.

Psychopathic states of all kinds represent abnormal mental reactions and a certain number of such individuals will always be found in any institution caring for delinquents. It is therefore a matter of administrative efficiency as well as of scientific value that such institutions have at least one ward equipped for the care of psychopathic cases wherein they may be treated by approved methods, including hydrotherapy and continuous baths. As is well known, many of the psychopathic upsets in such individuals are quite transitory in nature and the ability for each institution to care for its disturbed cases from time to time will prevent an undue number of transfers. This plan implies that cases showing actual psychoses or mental defect of such a character as to render the individual unable adequately to care for himself should be cared for in hospitals and institutions built and equipped for the care and treatment of such cases.

It is probably true that the human race as at present constituted requires a certain amount of repression and fear of consequences in order to prevent those less highly endowed from becoming antisocial and a nuisance. Therefore, just laws must always be the rule of the State, but we shall have taken a great step in advance when, in arranging for the care of crass delinquency as it now appears in our courts, we provide for its proper determination, care and treatment rather than punitive measures alone which are as old as the world and which to-day are as unsatisfactory as they always have been.

INSTITUTIONS FOR MENTAL DEFECTIVES

As has been noted in previous reports of this Board one of the greatest needs of the State is enlarged facilities for the care of the mentally defective. With approximately 30,000 feeble-minded persons in the State there is provision in the State institutions for only about 4,000, and in the New York City Children's Hospital for 1,705, a total of approximately 5,700. The only material increase in bed capacity in recent years is in the new buildings erected at Letchworth Village and in the establishment of colonies for some of the inmates of the Rome State School for Mental Defectives. It has been the policy of the State to send to the Syracuse State School those children who are teachable, but this institution has become filled to its capacity with inmates, some of whom are not capable of benefiting by the special educational work maintained and these should be provided with custodial care in some other institution. Meanwhile, there are 100 applications on the waiting list of the Syracuse School. The progress made in erecting new dormitory buildings at Letchworth Village with an increase of approximately 500 beds in the early fall of 1919 is encouraging. It is expected that by July of 1920, 500 more will be available. This institution takes inmates largely from the metropolitan district but through the opportunity for transfer the increase in the bed capacity of this institution aids in meeting the needs of all parts of the State.

In common with other institutions there has been unusual difficulty in retaining teachers and other employees as the wages paid in other employments have attracted many of them from the State service. The result has been in some instances a lessening of some of the social and educational activities. At the present time there are a number of vacancies in practically all the institutions.

Saxifrage Cottage (for female inmates)

SYRACUSE STATE SCHOOL FOR MENTAL DEFECTIVES

Syracuse, Onondaga County

Superintendent: Dr. O. H. Cobb.

The capacity of this institution is 600. The number of inmates enrolled July 1, 1918, was 624 and 78 were admitted during the year, making the total number under care 702. Of this number 652 were supported by public funds and 50 by private funds. During the year 64 were discharged: 8 returned to parents or legal guardians, 7 discharged to take employment, 7 returned to committing officers, 23 transferred to other institutions, and 19 died. On June 30, 1919, 638 remained. The daily average number of inmates was 594. The weekly per capita cost, including the value of home and farm products consumed, was $6.26; excluding this value, $5.49.

During the epidemic of influenza there were 165 cases, with 8 deaths. There are 11 cases of tuberculosis in the institution at the present time, also 2 cases of tubercular adenitis. The increase in the number of tubercular cases is believed to be a sequel of the influenza epidemic.

The subject of parole has been taken up actively and nearly 30 children are now on this list, at a material saving to the State in maintenance costs. It is hoped that in the not distant future a suitable country site may be secured, and more adequate provision made for the needs of the institution, which should be greatly enlarged. In the meantime it is desired to remove as rapidly as possible all children who are not improvable, especially those of the defective-delinquent type, to custodial institutions. This change would enable the school to function in the manner intended, namely, in the training of the more teachable type of mentally defective children.

NEWARK STATE SCHOOL FOR MENTAL DEFECTIVES

Newark, Wayne County

President, Board of Managers: Mrs. Sarah F. Armstrong, Penn Yan, N. Y.

Secretary: Mr. James A. Randall, 705 S. A. & K. Building, Syracuse, N. Y.

Superintendent: Ethan A. Nevin, M.D.

This institution, which cares for feeble-minded women, has capacity for 1,045. Number of patients present July 1, 1918, 939. During the year 108 patients were admitted, making the total number cared for 1,047. During the same period 59 patients were discharged; of these, 6 were returned to parents or legal guardians; 3 returned to committing officers; 2 left without permission; and 48 died. The number of patients remaining June 30, 1919, was 988. The daily average number of patients was 939. The average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, was $4.74; excluding this value, $4.43.

In order to meet the need of the State in admissions to this institution as many of the women are kept on parole as is felt to be compatible with their own best good. The new hospital building recently occupied has been named the Stephen Smith Hospital in honor of Dr. Stephen Smith who at the time of his retirement from the State Board of Charities in 1918 had been a member of the Board for twenty-six years. The institution needs additional facilities for vocational and other educational work and for recreational activities.

LETCWORTH VILLAGEThiells, Rockland County*Established 1907

President, Board of Managers: Frank A. Vanderlip, Scarborough.

Secretary: Franklin B. Kirkbride, 7 Wall Street, New York City.

Superintendent: Charles S. Little, M.D.

This institution has an acreage of 2,084; 400 acres are under cultivation. The number of inmates in the institution July 1, 1918, was 348. During the year 54 were admitted, 42 were discharged, including 14 who died, leaving 360 on June 30, 1919. The daily average number of patients was 347 and the average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, was $11.09; excluding this value, $9.13. During the early fall of 1919 the capacity was increased to 622 by the completion of new buildings.

Building operations during the past year have been encouraging. The Boys Group and the Female Group have been progressing slowly and water and sewerage system have been installed. The industrial building and assembly hall are now progressing satisfactorily though the work has been slow owing to war conditions. The present capacity is 622 as four new cottages are now in use and four more will become available during 1920.

The building operations and improvements are: The completion of a central laundry building; composite building for storehouse, bakery, refrigerating plant and cold storage; four dormitory units, a central assembly hall, considerable advance made in the construction of a service building in the female group; a second attendant's home, and four other cottage units (second group); and considerable engineering work is going on in connection with the central heating plant.

The Legislature of 1919 made liberal appropriations to continue the building operations, so that through the coming year, general construction work should go rapidly forward. In doing so and getting the dormitory units equipped without delay, it will be possible in the near future to reduce materially the State's waiting list of mental defectives needing institution and colony care.

The school and gymnasium work has been going forward under the difficulties incident to an incomplete plant. Beside the usual instruction along these lines, classes for looms, sewing, advanced dressmaking and embroidery have been held daily. Eighteen girls have been receiving musical instruction for orchestral purposes.

During the recent epidemic of influenza, 244 inmates and 30 employees were afflicted, with 21 cases of pneumonia developing. There were 8 deaths from this disease.

The institution maintains a woman fieldworker who investigates genetic problems and obtains histories of the inmates. The farm was very successful this past year and the dairy supplies 1,250 quarts of milk daily. In these departments many inmates find useful employment.

ROME STATE SCHOOL FOR MENTAL DEFECTIVES

Rome, Oneida County

Established 1893

President, Board of Managers: Cyrus J. Severance, M.D., Rome, N. Y.

Secretary: James A. Douglass, Oriskany Falls.

Superintendent: Charles Bernstein, M.D.

This institution for the care of mental defectives has a capacity of 1,650. The number present July 1, 1918, was 1,840; 434 were admitted during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, making the total number under care 2,274; 335 were discharged, of whom 150 died, leaving 1,939 in the institution on June 30, 1919. The daily average number under treatment was 1,859. The average weekly cost of support, including the value of home products consumed, was $5.40; excluding this value, $4.30.

The personnel of the staff has shown many changes owing to war conditions, there being an unprecedented number of vacancies. The overcrowded condition of the institution has as yet not been relieved by new construction with the result that many cases diagnosed as mental defectives could not be received owing to the lack of available beds. The institution has continued to establish additional colonies which now number 10 for boys and 8 for girls. The total beds in these colonies are 414;— 230 for boys and 184 for girls.

Two colonies for boys, one located at Indian Lake in Hamilton county, and the other at Akron, in Erie county, were closed during the year and one new one was opened. Nine of these are operated for agricultural purposes and one as a home for working boys who find employment as general laborers in the city of Rome. All the others are in the vicinity of Rome. Three are on farms which have been purchased by the State and the remainder occupied rented property. Two new colonies for girls were opened during the year and one was closed.

The girls' domestic colonies really accommodate and serve as homes for a larger number of girls than the number of beds indicate, as a number of proven trusty girls room in their employers' homes, but continue to use the colony home as their social center and real home.

In the main institutions scholastic and vocational training has been continued as formerly but a modern building suitable to industrial use is needed. Military drill a certain number of days is a recent addition. A parole agent is now employed to assist in the after-care work. In common with the rest of the community the institution suffered from the epidemic of influenza, there being 358 cases in October, November and December, 1918, with 37 deaths directly due to this disorder.

The problem of the defective delinquent is a prominent one at this institution and it is hoped that the State may make provision in a separate institution for this particular class of patients.

CRAIG COLONY FOR EPILEPTICS

Sonyea, Livingston County

Established, 1894; opened, 1896

President, Board of Managers: Percy L. Lang, Waverly.

Secretary, William P. Biggs, Trumansburg, N. Y.

Superintendent: William T. Shanahan, M.D.

Capacity, 1,400 beds. Number of patients present July 1, 1918, 1,448; number admitted during the year, 247; number discharged, 66; deaths, 281. The number of patients remaining June 30, 1919, was 1,348. Total number cared for during the year, 1,695. Average number of patients, 1,354. Per capita weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $6.77; excluding this value, $6.12.

The policy of continuing intensive research into the causes of epilepsy and paying special attention to matters concerning prophylaxis has been continued. During the year owing to the violence of the epidemic of influenza in the fall of 1918, an unusual number of deaths occurred. Of the patients who were discharged, 6 were recovered, 31 improved, and 27 unimproved. About 40 per cent. of the population represents a non-improvable class.

The two new dormitory units now completed will materially assist in a closer classification of patients. New construction in the colony has been greatly facilitated by the fact that all the brick used there now has been manufactured by patient labor.

The colony has maintained its training school for nurses notwithstanding the difficulties in its way due to war conditions and the general unrest following the armistice. In conjunction with the United States Public Health Service, immunization of all persons at the Colony was undertaken to prevent the future spread of pneumonia. Cases of pulmonary tuberculosis are isolated in a separate pavilion. The educational activities of the Colony have been revised along lines which take cognizance of the presence of cases showing varying degrees of mental defect and having also in view a preliminary survey of all new admissions for the same reason. Vocational training and institutional industries have been active and willow furniture making has been added. The institution needs additional buildings for employees and inmates, a reception building for new patients, and a reformatory for low-grade patients.

STATE REFORMATORIES

NEW YORK STATE REFORMATORY FOR WOMEN

Bedford Hills, Westchester County

Established, 1892

President, Board of Managers: William G. Barrett, Katonah.

Secretary: Mrs. Henry Marquand, Bedford Hills.

Superintendent: Miss Helen A. Cobb.

The institution has a capacity for 400, exclusive of infants, the hospital and the disciplinary building. The number of inmates present July 1, 1918, was 356, including 27 infants. During the year, 225 adults and 17 infants were admitted, a total of 242 new admissions; total number cared for during the year, 598. During the same period, 227 were paroled or discharged; of these, 120 were paroled; 18 infants were placed with friends; 40 were discharged, sentence having expired; 12 were transferred to other institutions; 11 left without permission and 21 adults were otherwise discharged; 4 women and 1 infant died. At the close of the year, June 30, 1919, 371 remained in the institution, of whom 23 were infants under two years of age. The daily average number of inmates, including infants, was 349. The average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, was $10.91; excluding this value, $9.80.

During the year a constructive campaign for the diagnosis and treatment of the various types of venereal diseases has been carried on. Curative work along these lines is a very positive benefit not only to the patients but to the State, inasmuch as it is now known that venereal diseases not only cripple the individual as an economic unit, but that syphilis as the cause of general paresis, a deteriorating form of mental disorder, furnishes a high percentage of all cases admitted to State hospitals for the insane. The services of the laboratory of social hygiene with its supplementary psychopathic hospital, the Frances Bement Cottage, having been discontinued at the close of the fiscal year June 30, 1918, the psychometric tests of the inmates were carried on through investigators sent to the institution from the State Board of Charities.

As might be expected, the defective types of delinquent women fall chiefly in the fairly high grade moron group and delinquent conduct in such cases is due not only to mere quantitative intelligence lack but also to constitutional psychopathic deviations. This explains many otherwise unaccountable mood fluctuations, tantrums and other reactions showing difficulties of adaptation to environment. In view of the large number of recidivists and other cases of social maladaptation committed to this institution, this Board strongly urges the establishment of a ward adapted to the care of psychopathic types needing special care and attention but who are not insane in the ordinary sense of this term. Such a ward should be fitted with a complete hydrotherapeutic outfit, including at least two tubs adapted for continuous baths for disturbed cases; rooms where sedative packs may be given and similar approved hydrotherapeutic measures under the direction of a physician and under the care and supervision of trained nurses experienced in handling such cases.

WESTERN HOUSE OF REFUGE FOR WOMEN

Albion, Orleans County

President, Board of Managers: Monsignor John L. Reilly, 412 Liberty street, Schenectady.

Secretary: Mrs. Pearl S. Elias, 237 Linwood avenue, Buffalo.

Superintendent: Mrs. Flora P. Daniels.

Hart Cottage and School Building

The Hospital

WESTERN HOUSE OF REFUGE FOR WOMEN, ALBION

The capacity of the Western House of Refuge is 215. On July 1, 1918, there were present 201 women and 16 babies, making a total of 217. During the year 110 women and 14 babies were received, 141 women and 16 babies were discharged, of whom 8 women and 2 babies died. Of the women discharged, 26 were returned to parents or legal guardians; 15 were transferred to other institutions; 65 were discharged to take employment; 14 were returned to committing officers. Total number cared for during the year, 341. The daily average number of inmates was 203. Average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, $9.83; excluding this value, $8.74.

This institution has continued to serve the western part of the State in caring for women of a delinquent type. The general atmosphere is one of constructive help and obsolete punitive measures have been minimized. The farm acreage has been increased and besides caring for the institution needs and products, the inmates have by their own labor assisted neighboring farmers with fruit picking, thus saving crops which otherwise would have spoiled for lack of labor.

These women loyally met the country's war needs and subscriptions were raised for every Liberty Loan, including the fifth. The influenza epidemic in spite of strict quarantine, caused 130 cases among them and 13 among the officers, 8 deaths resulting.

An active campaign is now carried out in respect to venereal diseases and all cases requiring arsphenamine are now receiving it. Case histories have been elaborated and psychometric tests made through the cooperation of the board of health of Buffalo which arranged for mental examinations of all inmates committed from that city, and through the State Board of Charities for the balance of the State.

New by-laws for the institution were adopted by the managers at the meeting in June, 1919. This will facilitate administrative procedure and enable the superintendent to fix responsibility in each department.

A tractor provided by the State Agricultural Department has been placed in farm use. Electric equipment has been added in the laundry. A nursery cottage is needed to care for the infants always found in the institution. A staff physician was appointed in July, 1918, to fill a vacancy. The new root cellar has made it possible to preserve and utilize homegrown crops which the institution was unable to do previously.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE REFORMATION OF JUVENILE DELINQUENTS IN THE CITY OF NEW YORK

The House of Refuge, Randall's Island, New York City

Established, 1824

President, Board of Managers: Isaac Townsend, 1 East 51st street, New York city.

Secretary: Gordon Knox Bell, 20 Exchange place, New York city.

Superintendent: Col. Edward C. Barber.

The House of Refuge has a capacity of 1,000 beds. The number of boys present July 1, 1918, was 624; 584 boys were admitted during the year, making the total number cared for 1,208, all supported by public funds. During the year 534 boys were discharged; of these, 429 boys were returned to parents or legal guardians; 43 were discharged to take employment; 8 were returned to committing officers; 19 left without permission; 16 were transferred to other institutions and 11 were otherwise discharged; 8 died. The number of boys remaining in the institution June 30, 1919, was 674. The daily average number present during the year was 656. The average weekly cost of support, including the value of home and farm products consumed, was $7.90; excluding this value, $7.20.

As about half the commitments to the institutions are under chapter 607, Laws of 1913, for misdemeanors, it is evident that the problem of differentiating the defective delinquent is an active one. As the years go on the buildings show gradual deterioration and when the time comes for reconstruction plans it would be well to consider a plan based on the cottage type which would allow a closer classification of inmates by mental and chronological age and prognostic differences. In such a plan suitable housing of employees is imperative in order to attract a higher class of attendants and other employees.

Owing to war conditions the matter of obtaining efficient personnel has continued as a pressing difficulty but recently the situation has been less acute. The course of scholastic and vocational training is under a corps of 23 teachers and a principal. Architectural drawing has been added during the last year. It is hoped that in time better shop buildings may be added to the plant and the technical equipment increased.

During the year 23 boys were kept on the property purchased for the New York State Training School at Yorktown Heights, Westchester county, where they cared for the 41 head of cattle and were engaged in raising farm products which were sent to the city plant.

Fortunately, the institution suffered little during the influenza epidemic. Four boys are known to have been killed in the World War and many others were in service.

MUNICIPAL INSTITUTIONS IN NEW YORK CITY

NEW YORK CITY CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

Randall's Island

Established, 1847, as the Randall's Island Nursery Hospital.

Governing Body: Department of Public Charities, City of New York.

Commissioner: Hon. Bird S. Coler.

Medical Superintendent: James F. Vavasour, M. D.

This institution has a capacity of 1,705 beds but has been considerably overcrowded. The patients are all cases of mental defect. On July 1, 1918, there were 2,044 patients in the hospital, 33 girls and 43 boys of this number being under five years of age, while 255 men and 343 women were over 21. During the same period 760 new cases were admitted; 211 by judicial commitment, 304 from parents or guardians, and 245 by transfer from other institutions. There were 1,066 discharges: 468 returned to parents or guardians, eight to placing-out agencies, 429 transferred to other institutions, 32 left without permission, and 129 died. On June 30, 1919, 1,738 patients were remaining in the institution.

The institution has occupied a group of twenty-two old buildings dating back to 1847, some of them being frame structures and all in poor condition. Initial appropriations for the erection of new buildings for the institution amounted to $1,600,000, and plans for twelve buildings were laid out — two for housing the staff of physicians, teachers, nurses, and other employees and ten for patients with a capacity of about 1,400 beds. Three additional buildings planned include a central kitchen, a modern dockhouse at the 125th Street pier and a dockhouse at Randall's Island. War conditions have delayed new construction but it is hoped that the new buildings will soon become available for occupancy. The general educational and vocational program for the inmates has been elaborated but satisfactory progress in this direction has been impossible with the facilities at hand. An increase in the items for personal service which has been asked would attract a more desirable class of attendants and other employees, the need of which is apparent.

NEW YORK CITY REFORMATORY FOR MISDEMEANANTS

New Hampton, N. Y.

Governing Body: Department of Correction of the City of New York.

Commissioner: Hon. James A. Hamilton.

Superintendent: Maj. Louis E. Lawes.

This institution caring for delinquent boys over 16 years old has a capacity of 520 beds, including 100 beds in the "Honor Camp." The city of New York has some 700 acres at Warwick, N. Y., also about 290 acres at Grey Court, N. Y., intended to be developed as a city reformatory for delinquent women. Both of these farms were tilled by "Honor Groups" sent from the institution at New Hampton. On July 1, 1918, there were 497 inmates. During the year, 754 were admitted, 748 by judicial commitment for misdemeanors, and six who were escaped inmates. The total number cared for during the year was 1,251. During the same period 793 were discharged, of whom 71 were transferred to other institutions of the Department of Correction, eleven left without permission, 709 were paroled, and two died. On June 30, 1919, there were 458 inmates remaining in the institution; 159 being between 16 and 21 years of age, and 299 being over 21; the daily average number was 462.

The open winter of 1918-19 permitted uninterrupted progress in the work of excavation and general building operations, in process of which the labor of the boys saved approximately $28,000. The new building for "administration, reception and classification" will greatly assist the administrative and clinical work of the institution.

The future plans for this institution contemplate modern fire-proof buildings of the cubicle type. They will include hospital facilities, treatment and operating-room, and special isolation for tuberculosis. A modern sewage system recently installed discharges in the Wallkill river on the premises. The water supply is from artesian wells pumped to two reservoirs. Water storage now approximates 250,000 gallons. The value of the farm products during the past year was evidence of the spirit of helpfulness and patriotism on the part of the boys, as the total value of the agricultural and cannery products was $59,575.28. On the recreational side of the institution's activities are a library of 2,000 volumes, band concerts by the inmate band, orchestra concerts, and solos by inmates, moving pictures twice a week and all holidays, boxing, basketball, baseball, and amateur theatricals. School sessions are held daily. During the coming year it is planned to add handball, football, tennis and calisthenics on the recreational program, and trade lectures by special instructors. School attendance will be increased and educational moving pictures embracing agriculture, trades, health and historical topics will be used. This it is hoped will awaken a new spirit in the individual and instill an initiative impulse which will assist him when he is ultimately placed on parole.

PRIVATE INSTITUTIONS RECEIVING PUBLIC FUNDS

The Brunswick Home for Idiotic, Epileptic, Paralytic and Feeble-Minded Children, Amityville, Suffolk county, is a private business corporation undertaking the care of all classes of mental defectives, except the insane. On July 1, 1918, 300 cases were in the institution. During the year ending June 30, 1919, 145 cases were admitted. Of these 445 cases cared for during the year, 325 were supported by public funds and 120 by private funds, 138 cases were discharged, leaving a total of 307 inmates present on June 30, 1919. Of this number discharged 14 were under five years of age and 60 were between five and sixteen years. The existence of this institution has permitted county poor-law officials to make provision at county expense for a considerable number of cases of mental defect which, if there had been sufficient capacity in State institutions, should have been cared for at State expense.

The remaining institutions subject to supervision through the Division of Mental Defect and Delinquency include the private reformatories for women, and temporary homes for women and children, the inmates of which, women and children, were as follows:

INCORPORATIONS

During the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1918, and ending June 30, 1919, pursuant to the provisions of section 9 of the State Charities Law, the Board approved the incorporation of the following institutions, societies and associations:

1. Yorkville District Dispensary, principal office, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Incorporated to establish and maintain a general hospital. Approved November 14, 1918.

2. Utica Dental Infirmary, principal office, Utica, Oneida county. Incorporated to establish and maintain a dispensary.

3. Kirkpatrick Home for Childless Women, principal office, Cuba, Allegany county. Incorporated to establish and maintain a home for aged childless women. Approved October 9, 1918.

4. The Elizabeth A. Horton Memorial Hospital, principal office, Middletown, Orange county. Incorporated to establish and maintain a general hospital. Approved November 14, 1918.

5. Israel Orphan Asylum, principal office, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Incorporated to provide a home for orphan or destitute Jewish children. Approved January 9, 1919.

6. After Care Home for Crippled Children, Inc., principal office, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Incorporated to establish and maintain an infirmary or sanitarium for the care and treatment of children suffering from paralysis and deformities. Approved January 9, 1919.

7. Maternity Center Association, principal office, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Incorporated to establish dispensaries and provide a nursing service to give prenatal and after care to maternity cases, mothers and infants, in their homes in the city of New York. Approved February 6, 1919.

8. The Infantorium, principal office, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Incorporated for the dietetic and hygienic treatment of subnormal or improperly fed infants, those having a pretubercular anaemia, those suddenly deprived of one or both parents, and the temporary care and shelter of abandoned infants until their adoption. Approved February 6, 1919.

9. Rochester Girls' Home, principal office, Rochester. Incorporated to provide a home and care for girls under sixteen years of age. Approved February 6, 1919.

10. Jewish Communal Home Dispensary, principal office, Syracuse. Incorporated to maintain a general dispensary. Approved April 10, 1919.

11. Children's Home of Wyoming Conference, principal office, Binghamton. Incorporated to conduct and maintain a home for orphan, friendless and destitute children in the town of Fenton, Broome county. Approved April 10, 1919.

12. Jewish Mothers' Club, principal office, Buffalo. Incorporated to establish a nursery for the children of needy and helpless mothers and to counsel and assist needy mothers in the care of their children at home. Approved April 10, 1919.

13. James Gordon Bennett Memorial Home for New York Journalists Corporation. Incorporated pursuant to the will of James Gordon Bennett to provide a suitable and comfortable home and provide pecuniary aid to aged, infirm or indigent persons who have been employed for at least ten years in connection with any daily newspaper or journal regularly published on or after November 11, 1916, in the Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Approved May 15, 1919.

14. Irene Fresh Air Fund, Inc., principal office, Borough of Manhattan, New York City. Incorporated to establish and maintain a fresh air home. Approved May 15, 1919.

15. Onondaga General Hospital, principal office, Syracuse. Incorporated to establish and maintain a general hospital and dispensary. Approved May 15, 1919.

16. The Recreation Home and Camp Gerard of Rockland Lake, Inc. Incorporated to establish and maintain a fresh air home. Approved June 19, 1919.

17. Home for Aged Couples and the King's Daughters, New York branch of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons, principal office, Dansville. Incorporated to establish and maintain a home for invalids, aged or indigent persons or couples. Approved June 19, 1919.

The following applications for approval of incorporation were denied for cause after thorough inquiry and investigation and a public hearing at which the applicants were afforded an opportunity to present all facts bearing upon the merits of the applications:

1. Bayside Maternity Hospital, Brooklyn, N. Y. Disapproved October 9, 1918, for the reason that there did not appear to be sufficient need for the proposed hospital.

2. Northern Manhattan Hospital, New York. Disapproved February 6, 1919, for the reason that no efforts had been made by the applicants during a year and a half to proceed with plans for the institution.

3. Upper Manhattan Hospital, New York City. Disapproved February 6, 1919, for the reason that it was not shown at the public hearing that the applicants have any tangible financial means or definite assurances of an income which will provide for the support of a hospital.

4. Annie Eisenstein Day Nursery Association, Brooklyn. Disapproved March 13, 1919, for the reason that at the public hearing it appeared that the financial resources of the proposed incorporation and its sources of future revenue were not sufficient for its proper operation.

In addition applications for approval of the incorporation of the following societies and associations have been made during the fiscal year and referred to the usual committees which, after careful inquiry into the merits of each application, made reports of progress to the Board. However, as the proposed incorporators have not complied within a reasonable time with the suggestions contained in the several committee reports, the Board considers the applications as having been withdrawn:

Syracuse Protestant Baby Home; home for infants; principal office, Syracuse.

L. G. Kaufman Hospital for Children, principal office, Manhattan, New York City.

Temporary Shelter for Friendless Jewish Children, principal office, Manhattan, New York City.

DISPENSARIES LICENSED

PLANS FOR BUILDINGS

During the past fiscal year the following plans for the construction of buildings for charitable institutions were passed upon by the Board:

1. International Sunshine Branch for the Blind; reconstruction of building damaged by fire and erection of two-story addition. Approved as filed July 10, 1918.

2. Troy Orphan Asylum; alterations in east wing. Approved as filed July 10, 1918.

3. Erie County Hospital, Buffalo; fire escapes. Approved as filed November 14, 1918.

APPLICATION FOR CERTIFICATE

The license to the Committee of Fourteen, under the provisions of section 2237 of the Code of Civil Procedure, originally issued April 15, 1914, was renewed on July 10, 1918, and June 19, 1919, each renewal being for a one-year period.

SOME EDUCATIONAL MOVEMENTS IN THE FIELD OF CHARITABLE WORK

FORTY-SIXTH NATIONAL CONFERENCE OF SOCIAL WORK

The National Conference of Social Work, formerly the National Conference of Charities and Correction, held its Forty-Sixth Annual Session in Atlantic City, New Jersey, June 1-8, 1919. The President of the Conference was Miss Julia C. Lathrop, Chief of the Children's Bureau, Department of Labor, Washington, D. C. The subject of the Presidential address was "Child Welfare Standards a Test of Democracy," and the discussions of the conference included the subjects of "Children," "Delinquents and Correction," "Health," "Public Agencies and Institutions," "The Family," "Industrial and Economic Problems," "The Local Community," "Mental Hygiene," "Organization of Social Forces," and "The Uniting of Native and Foreign Born in America."

The State Board of Charities was represented at this conference by the secretary and other members of the Board's staff and by several of its commissioners.

The Forty-Seventh Conference will be held in New Orleans, La., April 14-21, 1920.

The Sixteenth National Conference for the Education of Defective and Delinquent Children was held in Atlantic City also on June 2-5, 1919. This conference was organized for the purpose of bringing together institution superintendents and others interested in the problem of the difficult dependent child in order that those incident thereto may have special discussion from those who have had experience with these problems. The President of the Conference was Hobart H. Todd, Superintendent of the State Agricultural and Industrial School, Industry, N. Y., and Charles H. Johnson, Secretary of the State Board of Charities was its Secretary. The Seventeenth Conference of this organization will meet in New Orleans approximately at the same time as the National Conference of Social Work. The President is Mrs. Amy F. Everall, Superintendent of the State Industrial School for Girls, Lancaster, Mass.

TWENTIETH NEW YORK STATE CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTION

The Twentieth New York State Conference of Charities and Correction met at Syracuse, N. Y., November 11-13, 1919. Rev. Dr. Augustine M. O'Neill of Rochester was the President and his address touched upon the various problems incident to reconstruction work, including the questions of housing, the home, and Americanization.

The several sessions were devoted to "Delinquency," "Public Health," "Mental Hygiene," "Home Care and Relief," "Reconstruction Problems" and "Children."

As has been the custom the meeting of the State Board of Charities for the month of November was held in the same place and at the time of the conference and the Commissioners were present at several of its sessions. The Board was also represented by a number of members of the Board's staff.

Rev. Louis J. Kopald, of Buffalo, was selected President for the Twenty-First Conference which will be held in Buffalo in 1920. Mr. Richard W. Wallace, Superintendent of Inspection of the State Board of Charities, is secretary.

THE FORTY-NINTH ANNUAL CONVENTION OF COUNTY SUPERINTENDENTS OF POOR

This convention affords an opportunity for the poor-law officials throughout the State who are engaged in the actual administration of poor-law relief to confer on essential public matters, to exchange experiences and devise plans for the better administration of poor-law relief in the several localities.

The President was Mr. George Clark, Superintendent of the Poor of Chemung County, and the sessions were held at Shelter Island, Suffolk County, on June 24-27, 1919. The Board was represented by the secretary and by Dr. Robert W. Hill, Superintendent of State and Alien Poor.

The next convention will be held at Chautauqua June 22-25, 1920, and William Hunt, now warden of Great Meadow Prison, is President.

THE TENTH NEW YORK CITY CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTION

The Tenth New York City Conference of Charities and Correction held its sessions in New York City in May, 1919, the sessions being divided between Manhattan and Brooklyn, except that the last two sessions were held at the Mission of the Immaculate Virgin, Mount Loretto, Staten Island, by which the conference was entertained.

Hon. Franklin Chase Hoyt, Judge of the Children's Court, New York City, was President and Mr. George C. Rowell of the staff of the State Board of Charities was Secretary. Hon. Abram I. Elkus was elected President for the coming year and the meetings will be held in May, 1920.

SEVENTH CAPITAL DISTRICT CONFERENCE OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTION

The Seventh Capital District Conference of Charities and Correction met at Albany on April 2-3, 1919. Miss Mary Hinkley, of Poughkeepsie, was President. Five sessions were held with the following subjects: "Children," "Correctional Problems," "Prevention of Poverty," "Community Recreation," and "Employment Problems." Nearly all of the papers and of the discussions were related to the general topic of reconstruction problems following the war.

The conference for 1920 will be held at Albany, probably in March. Hon. John J. Brady, Justice of the Police Court, Albany, is the President, and Mr. Clarence E. Ford, Superintendent of the Division of Medical Charities of the State Board of Charities continues as secretary.

Appended to this report is a transcript of the addresses made and the letter read upon the occasion of the dedication of Stewart Hall and the laying of the cornerstone of the new service building at Letchworth Village, Thiells, July 9, 1919.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM R. STEWART,

President.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS

BY FRANK A. VANDERLIP

President of the Board of Managers of Letchworth Village

I do want to take this occasion to recall to your memory some things which may have been forgotten, but which have had a most important bearing on the success of a piece of work which owed its inception in a great measure to the man in whose honor the Governor will name this building. From the start there has been but a single object in view, to build the best institution possible, to get the best possible type of men and women to manage it, and to give the best of care and treatment to the children who are sent here, often for the term of their natural lives.

I believe I can safely say there has not been a single compromise made since the Board of Managers was originally appointed. Expert advice and assistance have been sought whenever differences of opinion arose, and the fullest opportunity for discussion and investigation of mooted problems has always been encouraged. One of the most remarkable things which has happened in connection with the development of Letchworth Village has been that a line of governors, from Hughes to Smith inclusive, have had a vision to provide the funds to enable the Board of Managers to get the best of expert assistance in connection with the solving of problems which all too often are forgotten during the period of development, only to result later in disaster and expenditure due to failure at the outset. Two State architects have been equally farsighted, and have welcomed cordially the coöperation of experts who have been retained to assist us and them. I want to take this opportunity of once more thanking Mr. Pilcher for his coöperation in this regard.

Do you realize that the type of construction, the question as to whether hot water or steam should be used, and many other problems, have been fought out in a friendly way and settled, as we now know, by actual experience, in the right way? Do you realize that this is not only to become the largest State institution of its kind in America, but that the Letchworth dormitory has been adopted by other commonwealths, and the system of forced hot water heating being installed here is becoming more and more the accepted method in spite of the higher original cost of the installation?

My particular interest in Letchworth Village is to see that it is made a credit to the State, that there shall be no waste of the taxpayers' money, and that every effort be made to push through to completion one of the most needed of the State's activities. There has been no politics in the development of Letchworth Village. Differing opinions, races and creeds are forgotten here, and the main object in view is always supported no matter what political party is in power. The wisdom of divorcing politics from the charitable work of the State has borne rich fruit. It is a satisfaction to me to welcome Honorable Alfred E. Smith, Governor of the State of New York, a man, who, born and bred in New York, believes in his city and State and has the pride in his commonwealth which every true citizen should have. We are fortunate in having a governor, who, after long years in the Assembly, takes the Governor's chair with a first-hand knowledge of the needs of the State, with a purpose to add new lustre to the commonwealth by an administration devoted to the interests of all the people, irrespective of class, race or condition.

ADDRESS

BY HON. ALFRED E. SMITH, GOVERNOR

Every citizen of New York State is justly proud of the commonwealth in which he lives. Rockland county combines woodland hills and agricultural country, and in addition has many diverse industries which contribute to the productive wealth of the State. The playgrounds within the county are attracting more and more of our people to this side of the Hudson, and I am glad today to have the opportunity of drawing the attention of our people to the many activities, governmental and private, which have their location here. The commission which selected the site for Letchworth Village did well to come to a community which welcomed a new and great State activity. This institution is beginning at last to show to the eye what the completed institution is to be. I have always insisted during my long term of service in the Legislature and more recently as governor that adequate provision should be made for the insane and defective. I want to repeat a sentence from my inaugural message: "The whole question of the care and treatment of the feeble-minded is one of immense importance to the State of New York." I had the satisfaction early in the session to transmit to the Legislature the first report of the State Commission for the Feeble-Minded. It is a great satisfaction that the Legislature received the proposals which had been made after exhaustive study in a spirit of coöperation which has resulted in a most important advance in the State care of defectives. Not only was the new Mental Defective Act placed on the statute books, but the largest appropriation and authorization for new construction was made during the session.

While I was forced with regret to accept the resignation of Dr. Walter B. James as chairman of the Commission on Feeble-Minded, I had the satisfaction to secure for this important post Colonel Pearce Bailey, of New York City, whose work for the Federal government during the war needs no comment. I believe during my term as governor more beds for the feeble-minded will be made available than during any other similar period in the history of the State. New York, many years ago, was the pioneer in the care and treatment of mental defectives. Even though the State may have lagged behind other commonwealths in more recent years, the steps taken during the last six months go a long way to restore New York to her former enviable position. The most conservative estimates indicate that there are not less than 33,000 defectives in this State, of whom only about 5,000 are in proper institutions. All the institutions are full and have waiting lists. Every community has its quota of feeble-minded who are not receiving proper care.

We are here today to inaugurate the new construction of another year, which will make available 560 more beds, and we shall shortly inspect four new dormitories with their 280 beds, which will be occupied during the next few days. All the preliminary work has been done here, and from now on the money spent will be largely in providing additional accommodations, until a total population of possibly 5,000 patients is ultimately provided for. It is possible here to provide beds more quickly and at more moderate cost, than through the creation of additional institutions. I hope the day is coming when not only will the institution itself be completed, but when a considerable number of small farm colonies inexpensively built will dot the countryside and make possible the graduation from the parent institution, after training, of those capable of the freedom of farm life under proper supervision.

The new Commission for the Feeble-Minded, in close coöperation with the State Board of Charities and the other State departments charged with different phases of the main problem for which the new commission has been appointed, are ready to press forward with a constructive program which is bound to have an important bearing on the future well-being of the entire population of the State. The census which is to be taken will tell us just how many individuals need the help of the State. The system of institutional care will provide for a steadily increasing number of those who should not be at large. The Department of Education in its special classes will care for an increasing number of those who fall behind the normal child but can safely be left at home with adequate training. Colonies of the right kind, properly coördinated with the parent institution, seem to me to offer so much in the way of practical results that the whole question of colony care should be studied with the greatest diligence by the State Commission, which I believe will ultimately formulate plans for a wise extension of what has heretofore been largely experimental. Dr. Fernald, in his colonies at Templeton, Massachusetts, has done magnificent pioneer work. We can well afford to go slowly when going beyond the principles which he has proved workable and sound.

The defective delinquent presents a more difficult problem, which I believe must be considered by the experts before a program can be undertaken. It is obvious that this type of patient cannot mingle with those who can be permitted the freedom of an institution like Letchworth Village.

In spite of the handicap of war conditions, the progress which has been made here has been surprisingly good. I hope the Board of Managers will do everything in its power to pletion of the work now under construction. It is undoubtedly destined to become one of the greatest, institution for defectives in the Un another Waverley, and as it has had Dr. Ferna

STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES

CHARLES H. JOHNSON

for Mental Defectives*

STATE OF NEW YORK

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT OF THE STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES
287 Fourth Avenue

NEW YORK,

MR. FRANK A. VANDERLIP, President of the of Letchworth Village:

DEAR MR. VANDERLIP.—It is a pleasure addressed to me on May 15th, by Mr. Frank A. Vanderlip, Secretary of the Board of Managers of Letchworth Village.
The Board had, by a resolution adopted the day before, Assembly Hall of the Boys' Group my name, opened and dedicated in the presence of the State on Wednesday, July 9th, on which occasion an invitation is extended to me to attend and take part in the exercises.

I am deeply sensible of the honor conferred by the Board, and of the generous terms in which the resolution was framed. Strange though it may appear, in one who has now for more than a generation taken some part, though usually a quiet one, in the public life of this State, a constitutional reluctance, which is now controlling, disinclines me from attending and participating on public occasions such as this. In support of this feeling, let me quote Joseph Addison, that master of sentiment and style, who opens one of the numbers of his "Spectator" with this observation: "It is very difficult to praise a man without putting him out of countenance." So in lieu of my presence in "Stewart Hall" on July 9th, allow me to ask that this letter may be read by Mr. Charles Henry Johnson, Secretary of the State Board of Charities, to those assembled there.

In the spring of 1909 the Commission appointed by Governor Hughes in 1907 to establish a new State institution for the care of the feeble-minded, of which Franklin B. Kirkbride, Alexander C. Proudfit and I were the members, upon approaching the end of its work, suggested that the new institution located by it near Haverstraw, should be named "Letchworth Village" in recognition of the life-long services to suffering humanity, and especially to those afflicted by some form of mental disease, of William Pryor Letchworth, of Portage, a philanthropist of international reputation, long time a member and from 1877 to 1888 President of the New York State Board of Charities.

This suggestion was communicated to Mr. Letchworth, for the Commission, by me in a letter written March 22, 1909, in which he was informed that a bill making it effective was then passing unopposed through the Legislature, and assured that "your name, like those of your friends and associates, Dr. Willard and Oscar Craig, will forever be associated with a great State philanthropy." "Letchworth Village," added to Willard Asylum and Craig Colony, completes the trinity of State colonies laid out on lines as broad as the sympathies of those whose names they bear. We hope to make the new institution more useful than any which has preceded it, and having drawn much inspiration from you

From the time of the appointment and organization of the Board, the Managers have taken no important action without careful consideration based upon the best expert opinion obtainable. They immediately had an accurate survey made of the site, so that in the location of buildings and their relations to each other, efficient administration might be secured. The problems of sanitation, water supply, sewage disposal, heating, transportation and industrial organization were studied before construction began, and ever since appropriations have made building operations possible, these essential features of institutional efficiency have been constantly in view. The abundant supply of pure water was scientifically availed of, and from a storage reservoir built in the hills a distributing system can now carry water by gravity to every part of the widely extended site. A comprehensive plan of heating from a central plant, which has already justified the wisdom of its choice, was decided upon and a new hot water system installed, notwithstanding important opposition. The managers also wisely selected the cottage type for the dormitories, and favored the single story plan because they realized that stairs in constant use by feeble-minded persons involve grave dangers. Such cottages harmonize better with the landscape, are more homelike in appearance, and suggest a degree of liberty not associated with the several story congregate building.

Governor Hughes' appointment of the Secretary of the Site Commission, Mr. Franklin B. Kirkbride, to the membership in the Board of Managers of the Village, was a well merited recognition of Mr. Kirkbride's work as member and Secretary of the Site Commission, and of the painstaking and convincing report of the Commission, which came from his pen. Elected Secretary of the Board on its organization, he has for ten years devoted much of his time and energy to the steady and intelligent development of the institution along the best lines, undiscouraged by many disappointments, and the State is under greater obligation to him than it is ever likely to realize. More in his praise could well be said were it not for Addison's observation already quoted in my own behalf, which, Mr. Kirkbride being present, might reasonably plead against me in estoppel.

ADDRESS

By DR. PEARCE BAILEY

Chairman, State Commission for Mental Defectives

This laying of a new cornerstone at Letchworth Village is a significant evidence of the awakening of the public consciousness to its obligations in relation to the most numerous of the State's dependents -- to those dependents for whom until now least provision has been made, and yet who, more than any others, will repay well directed efforts in their behalf. This repayment will become evident by an increase in public order and safety, in economy and productiveness and in the happiness of the feeble-minded themselves.

It is not meant to imply that what we are here to dedicate is the first step. Such is by no means the case. The first steps were taken many years ago, by men of vision, and have been continued ever since by talented men and women, who have quietly, conscientiously and persistently been at work both in our own institutions and outside of them. They have made this day possible. We medical men are somewhat prone to consider the question as solely our own, but we should not forget that the movement, especially in its relation to education, has been materially advanced by those who have approached it from its human and sociological, quite as much as from its medical side.

One cannot view this imposing and soon to be beautiful municipality, this model spotless town, without stopping to inquire what it all means; without being seized by the desire to know what the problem of the feeble-minded is, where it is leading us, what the future holds for a necessity which already has resulted in so many buildings and streets. The statistics in reference to mental defect gathered by the medical department of the army justify the belief that there are at least 40,000 feeble-minded persons outside of institutions in this State. Realizing, as everyone in this audience does, that a feeble-minded person if left to himself easily become a menace to public welfare, and certainly cannot make the best of himself, we are forced, in the face of the above figures, to inquire, with no little dismay, if we must go on multiplying institutions until every defective is under institutional control and we have contracted for ten Letchworth Villages.

That would surely be a discouraging program. But fortunately it is one which we do not have to contemplate at the present time. We are urgently in need of more beds, several thousand of them, but we do not need to contemplate a mammoth program of construction just yet for the reason that the final method of providing for the feeble-minded has not yet been determined. The problem is still in its infancy, is still one which requires extended study and experiment before the final answer will be plain. The hope, the well founded hope is, that with better classification, earlier observation and perfected measures of control the stay of inmates in institutions will be for briefer periods, after which they can be returned to the community under some supervision; and the brightest hope of all is that perhaps, even in our lifetime, science will find a way by means of which the production of mental defect may be checked at the source so that with the years the percentage of mental defect in our population will decline. If these hopes are well founded, and I believe that they are, the estimate that today would have to be made, as to the number of beds required for mental defectives would appear wildly extravagant twenty-five years from now.

The note of victory that this day seems to sound, is that the lavish provision, the architectural triumph of Letchworth Village reveals a new public interest in the problem of the feeble-minded and that those who authorized this wonderful creation will not now be satisfied until our knowledge concerning the problem is better founded.

The public is now so far involved and faces such an extension of its program that it will insist upon knowing, and must be informed, not only as to the best methods of caring for the feeble-minded, but also as to what feeble-mindedness is, how it arises and what are the means available to a civilized and democratic community of bringing about its decrease.

We who are intrusted for the present with the charge of these matters can give the answers to the questions the public will become more and more insistent upon having only if we immediately provide means of research. We this day make a big blaze in the trail of custodial care, but we cannot stop there. We must this day also make a beginning along the way of fundamentally confronting the problem, which is the way of research.

Research must follow three principal lines,—sociological, psychological and pathological.

Sociological and psychological research go hand in hand and consist in the study of individuals and the adaptation of individuals by groups to appropriate surroundings, training, education and ultimate vocations. It involves the highest coöperation between many different agencies. Prisons, reformatories, orphan asylums, labor organizations, all are involved. Psychiatrists and psychologists must work together in harmony, so that the result of an individual study will contain information concerning temperament and character as well as mental capacity. There must be the closest touch between the schools, where feeble-mindedness first comes to light, and those agencies which are designated to have charge of the feeble-minded after the school age. One or the other of two departments, the Department of Education or the Commission for Mental Defectives, must be supplied with an adequate probation system, so that high grade feeble-minded boys and girls shall not be left, after the school age, in improper surroundings, where they are certain to socially fail and become institutional candidates of some kind.

But perhaps the most important line of research at this time, and the one which has received little or no attention, is that concerned with pathology.

Our government spends millions in investigating diseases of men, animals and plants, but it spends nothing in research of the human brain, which is after all the seat of all the activities of mankind. We know much more about what kills apple trees, and of what oysters die, than we do of the causes of insanity; and the causation of feeble-mindedness, bound up as it is with all the questions of development, with nutrition, early influences and surroundings, is still a closed book. Perhaps we have already gone too far in calmly dismissing the whole matter as one of heredity, and so more or less beyond our control. Perhaps what we have been in the habit of calling hereditary is not wholly that, not enough that to prevent our stepping in and averting what now seems inevitable.

DIRECTORY

THE STATE BOARD OF CHARITIES.

The State Board of Charities was established in 1867, and became a constitutional body January 1, 1895, under the provisions of article VIII of the Constitution of the State of New York, which was adopted in 1894. This article of the Constitution provides that the State Board of Charities shall visit and inspect all institutions, whether State, county, municipal, incorporated or unincorporated, which are of a charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory character, including institutions for epileptics and idiots, and all reformatories (save those in which adult males convicted of felony shall be confined), and excepting institutions for the care and treatment of the insane.

The Constitution also provides that the members of the Board shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, that all the existing laws relating to institutions above mentioned, and to their supervision and inspection, in so far as such laws are not inconsistent with the provisions of the Constitution, shall remain in force, and that the Legislature may confer upon the Board additional powers. It further provides that while payments by counties, cities, towns and villages to charitable, eleemosynary, correctional or reformatory institutions, wholly or partly under private control, for care, support and maintenance, may be authorized but shall not be required by the Legislature, no such payments shall be made for inmates of such institutions who are not received and retained therein pursuant to rules made by the State Board of Charities.

The Board is composed of twelve Commissioners, one from each of the nine judicial districts of the State, and three additional members from the city of New York. They are appointed for terms of eight years and are required to reside in the districts and city from which they are respectively appointed. The President and Vice-President of the Board are elected annually from its members. No Commissioner, while a member of the Board, can act as a trustee, director or other administrative officer of any institution subject to the visitation and inspection of the State Board of Charities.

Each Commissioner is paid actual expenses necessarily incurred while engaged in the performance of the duties of his office, and receives, as compensation, $10 for each day's attendance at meetings of the Board, or of any of its committees, not exceeding in any one year the sum of $500.

The principal duties of the Board are to visit, inspect and maintain a general supervision of all institutions, societies or associations which are of a charitable, eleemosynary or correctional character, whether State or municipal, incorporated or unincorporated, made subject to its supervision by the Constitution and the statutes of the State. Other duties are to establish rules for the reception and retention of inmates, to approve or disapprove the organization and incorporation of all the institutions which are or may become subject to the supervision of the Board, to license dispensaries, supervise the placing out of dependent children, secure the just, humane and economic administration of all institutions subject to its supervision; advise the officers of such institutions in the performance of their official duties; aid in securing the erection of suitable buildings for the accommodation of inmates in such institutions; aid in securing the best sanitary condition of the buildings and grounds of all such institutions, and advise measures for the protection and preservation of the health of the inmates; aid in securing the establishment and maintenance of such industrial, educational and moral training in institutions having the care of children as is best suited for inmates; investigate the condition of the poor seeking public aid and advise measures for their relief; administer the laws providing for the care, support and removal of State, nonresident and alien poor, and the support of Indian poor persons; collect statistical information in respect to the property, receipts and expenditures of all institutions, societies and associations subject to its supervision, and the number and condition of the inmates thereof, as also of the poor seeking temporary public relief.

The Board is required to report to the Legislature annually. Its seal is the arms of the State surrounded by the inscription, "State of New York — The State Board of Charities."
